Gabrielson says there have been 22 or 23 extremely close calls, just on her bus, where students narrowly escaped an unattentive driver.

"They even pass on the right while students are getting on or off the bus," she said. "I honk my horn and they don't even acknowledge me."

On an average morning, she estimates 10 drivers pass while the warning lights are flashing and this stop sign is out.

"People don't realize they have to stop if they're facing the bus. When they take their driver's test it's right on the exam."

She said people tend to blame high school students but most violators are adults.

"It's their kids and they don't even stop."

Bert Fredette, a part-time bus driver, says the town is also at fault for not clearing snow as well as they could.

He points to 43 St. north of St. Anthony's school as a deadly example of poor maintenance.

"The snow is pushed up quite high on one side," he said. "That's where children choose to walk."

Flashing lights and stop signs haven't been enough.

Because of the narrow street, he said students would surely slip under a passing bus or car if they slipped off the snowbank.

Fredette was also angered that 43 St. was "one of the last streets to be cleared" after the recent snowfall.

"We pay high enough taxes, we should see that our children are safe," he added.

While Gabrielson says high school students are wrongfully blamed for the problem, Fredette disagrees.

"Kids come out the (Frank Maddock high) and they want to be first," he said. "They're headstrong and in a hurry."

Gabrielson says a local awareness program, in school and on the street, is necessary to end this "dangerous" situation.

"When you drive them for two or three years, you get close to them," she said. "It just makes me sick."

School board raises salaries

Members of the Roman Catholic Separate school board gave themselves a raise last week.

The trustees will be paid $75 for each monthly meeting they attend. This is a $25 raise.

This is their first raise in 10 years.

"It stayed that way for a number of years. The budget didn't permit it," trustee Lorne Pinkoski said in making the motion.

"It's still less than some jurisdictions," Pinkoski added.

A survey of meeting fees carried out by administration indicated a range between $80 and $250.

A meeting fee for the chairman was tabled pending more information.

Vandals could cost Oilmen's bonspiel set ski club $4,000

By Frank Ryan

The Drayton Valley Ski Club needs your help. In the past two months facilities at the hill have been broken into.

On one occasion three radios, used by the ski patrol, were taken. Their replacement value is $3,200.

On Christmas Eve, Christmas Day or Boxing Day someone broke the locks on the control panels and tried to start up the equipment.

Shortly after, when the hill opened for business, the main motor burned out.

Ski club president Dale Rendflesh isn't sure the break-in had anything to do with the motor burning out, but he isn't happy.

The two incidents will add approximately $4,000 to the ski club budget.

"We're running on a tight budget. We need a $4,000 bill like we need a hole in the head," Rendflesh says.

Public asked to keep eyes open

The ski club is looking into the possibility of having someone live at the hill, but in the meantime, asks the people who live in the area, to call the RCMP if they suspect anything.

Rendflesh says quad tracks were found around the chalet after both incidents.

He says the recent break-ins have put considerable pressure on the executive and volunteers who keep the facility operating.

"The volunteers have been just tremendous this year," he admits.

Meanwhile on the hill, Rendflesh has confirmed two injuries during the past couple of weeks. A lady suffered back injuries after falling near the bottom of the hill and a boy had his face scratched.

Other than that, Rendflesh is not aware of any injuries. All injuries are reported to him by the ski patrol.

The 18th annual Breton Oilmen's bonspiel will be held Feb. 20-26.

There's room for 36 rinks. To enter call Roy Young at 696-3692 (evenings).

The week-long spiel will include a supper and dance Saturday night and a pancake breakfast Sunday morning.

Minor hockey wants UPCs

Minor hockey teams in town are collecting UPC symbols.

They are located on the back of any Kraft product.

Minor hockey will receive 10 cents for every label they collect.

A drop-off box has been set up at the sports centre.

Anyone having these Kraft symbols are asked to drop them off there.

Youth bowlers from Drayton Valley collected four medals at the recent high-low provincial tournament held in Stettler. Elaine Wilcox and Daria Kuhn teamed up to win the gold medal in the junior girls. They bowled 249 pins over their average.

The team of Michelle Scharr and Laura Glazebrook won the silver medal in pee wee girls eight and under. They finished 128 pins over average.

Jason Tryon and Neil Mason placed fifth in bantam boys and the team of Dale Horn and Steven Ciuryski placed fifth in senior boys.

The bowlers, who compete in the Youth Bowling Association of Alberta (YBA) are coached by Laura Barker.

Teams from Westlock, Edmonton, Rocky Mountain House, Vegreville, Calgary and Stettler participated in the tourney.

Another group of youth bowlers from town will be travelling to Calgary Feb. 19 for the family twosome provincials.

White-out!

Ice-racing season began in earnest Jan. 15 at Big Island Lake near Sherwood Park. Local racer Mike Bennett's luck ran out early, his vehicle breaking a ball joint during a practice run. The second race takes place Jan. 29.

Rocky victorious in Norette division

Out-of-town teams won all the marbles at a weekend bantam tournament at the Drayton Sports Centre.

In the 'Norette' division, Rocky Mountain House downed Spruce Grove 11-6 in the final.

Norette, the local team lost all three of their games. They opened the two-day tourney with a 12-7 loss to Stony Plain, then lost 7-2 against Spruce Grove and were 11-1 victims against Rocky.

Todd MacLure had two goals for Norette in both the 12-7 and 7-2 games.

In the 'Elks' division, Rimbey humiliated Leduc 21-3 in the final.

The Elks, the local team in this side of the tournament managed one win in three starts.

They opened with an 8-5 loss to Rimbey with Craig Pinkooski notching a pair of goals. Then they dropped a 10-3 decision to Leduc before bouncing back with a 6-4 win over Evansburg.

Darryl Winters had two goals for the Elks in their win over Evansburg.

Midget Clippers skate to tie

The midget Clippers earned their second point of the season last Friday night.

But, it could have been a two-point.

Leading 5-1 at the halfway point in the game the Clippers appeared on the way to their first win of the regular season.

But the Wabamun Jets had other ideas.

They scored two before the second period ended and struck for three more in the third for a 5-5 tie.

Len Johnson, defenceman turned forward, had the first two Clipper goals. Chris Hutchinson, Daylen Panummueller and Adrian Aguinis had singles.

Two Clipper goals were disallowed. According to the referee the first one was kicked in and in the second case, a Clipper player was standing in the crease.

George Bergquist, who handled the coaching reins in the absence of Lynn Oberle was disappointed with the tie.

"We went into a defensive shell in the final period," the interim coach stated.

Bergquist admitted having a few anxious moments in the third period.

Overall, he was pleased with the players' performance.

Despite allowing five goals Steven Foster turned in a solid effort between the pipes for the Clippers.

The Clippers host Whitecourt this Friday in an 8 p.m. game at the sports centre. It's their last regular season game at home.

If the Clippers want to make the playoffs they will have to win their four remaining league games.

More interest shown this year in gymnastics club

Submitted by Colleen Bryant

As the gymnastic club's spring season is underway, it seems there is more interest in the club as compared to previous spring sessions. This spring we have 116 students registered and we look forward to welcoming more young gymnasts in the future.

We are pleased to announce the club will be moving to a new, larger facility for our September session. According to the building committee at the new sports centre, if completion is on schedule we may be able to hold a summer session! Watch for more details.

We will be hosting a "fun meet" tentatively scheduled for April 22. Out-of-town clubs will be invited to compete against our top six or eight girls chosen from the advanced I and II classes.

The gymnastic club held a coaching in-service Jan 21 in which our two highest level coaches, Colleen Bryant and Corinne Joneson, taught the other coaches spotting methods, instruction and progression techniques.

Winners of the gymnathon were Christine Thesen (first), Tara Winttingham (second) and Garret Swap(third). Next year we will be having our gymnathon/chocolate bar fundraisers in separate sessions to try to alleviate the constant door-to-door selling of the past fall sessions.

Again will set up a parents/friends viewing night near the end of this session, enabling the public to see how well the gymnasts have progressed.

We would like to welcome Joanne Fedorus, Kerri Meston and Dawn Winttingham as new junior coaches. Marla Johnson is returning as adult coach, Sherry Winttingham is the new head coach, Joanne Karach is treasurer and Colleen Bryant is president.

Thurber holds introduction in Breton

Only a handful of people turned up at Breton's municipal centre to meet Tom Thurber, the first candidate in the PC nomination race for the Drayton Valley riding.

Thurber concentrated much of his speech on past achievements like his involvement with the upgrading of the Breton hospital and lobbying for an extended care wing. He believes the riding should look to diversification of industries.

"We have to look at a changing agriculture sector in the next few years."

With leading countries becoming more self-sufficient, Thurber wants to see an expansion within the riding.

"If Russia can ever feed themselves Canada and the United States will have to diversify into other markets right away," he stressed.

He also spoke about the disproportionate taxes in the community for farms and businesses, stating it was "reasonable to expect the tax payer to help with that".

The exodus of young people from the constituency was also a concern for Thurber.

"We are going to have to change things to keep some people in the community," he said, adding that Breton should remain the centre for high schools in the area.

Thurber talked about his background in politics, including his service on agricultural boards and councils.

He says he will maintain Cripps' office in Drayton Valley, if elected, to stay in touch with the constituents.

The nomination meeting will take place Friday, Feb. 10 at 7:30 p.m. at the Rec Plex in Drayton Valley.

Rocky Rapids helps family

The Community League of Rocky Rapids raised $2,410 Jan. 14 at a dinner and dance to help Tim and Colleen Sekura who lost their home in a Dec. 9 fire.

According to Eileen Belva, who helped organize the event, community response was incredible.

"One-hundred-and-fifty-seven people bought tickets and quite a few personal donations were made," said the league's secretary treasurer.

Belva said Drayton Valley Printers also donated a desk-top set that brought in an additional $55 for the family.

Colleen Sekura said she was overwhelmed by the number of people who had pulled together to help her family.

"I was just really proud to be part of a community that cared the way they did," she said. "I'm so grateful to every one."

Labels no longer block Western Review's news

A new address and inserting machine has been installed by Lynard Publishers (owners of The Western Review) at their printing plant in Leduc that will keep mailing labels further away from news copy.

Labels will be located horizontally on the top left corner of the front page.

The new addressing machine will guarantee the labels will no longer conflict with news copy on the front page and should also enhance front page layout.

The equipment, using a conveyor belt system, also inserts flyers or sections at the same time labels are being attached. It can combine both labelling and inserting or do each function separately.

Town shovels through snow budget

The new year is only three weeks old and the town has already used up a large chunk of their snow removal budget.

Clearing up after the worst January snowfall in years cost between $25,000 and $30,000.

The town's total snow fall budget for 1989 is $70,000.

Howard Olsen, chairman of the town's transportation committee, says the average snowfall cleanup usually costs about $20,000.

The budget has hardly been touched the last free or four years due to a lack of snow.

"For a small town we do a pretty good job," Olsen says.

School receives late gift

Five staff members at St. Anthony's school got a late Christmas present from the board last week.

The board decided last Thursday that support staff receive regular pay for Christmas, Boxing and New Year's Day. They also authorised 2.5 hours overtime pay for ECS classroom assistants who were in attendance for the primary Christmas concert.

The decision amounts to an additional $600.

"They do a great job," board chairman Joan Anderson stated.

"All of our support staff are dedicated people," principal Ron Williams added.

MD to coordinate new library funding plan

The Brazeau municipal district wants to set up a new scheme to deal with the funding of the Yellowhead Regional Library System.

Council agreed at its last meeting Jan. 12 to coordinate a new funding plan between itself and five other jurisdictions in the area — Drayton Valley, Breton and the three school systems.

Municipal manager John Eriksson told council the Yellowhead system, established in 1970, is "geared to counties."

The MD shouldn't have to pay both school and municipal levies, he added.

Municipalities pay $2.90 per capita per year to belong to the library system.

Eriksson said the MD will "get together and try to work this out" with the other organizations involved.

Representation on the library board and a new cost-sharing strategy will be discussed.

Mischief maker in jail

A Lodgepole man has been handed a four-month jail term after pleading guilty to 10 counts of mischief.

Reginald Edward McIlwain, 24, appeared in Drayton Valley Provincial Court last week.

He also pleaded guilty to one charge of the careless use of a firearm.

The charges stemmed from an incident Oct. 12, in which several businesses in town suffered damage from rifle blasts.

Correction

A story in last week's issue of The Western Review incorrectly identified one of the singers in a contest at the Cook County Saloon as Felicia Fleishacker. In fact, the singer's name is Felicia Frunchak. Frunchak will be singing in the semi-finals of the competition on Feb. 27. She is one of 42 to make it to the semi out of the 156 who competed. Top prize in the contest is a $30,000 recording contract.

Substance abuse taking its toll on the community

By Steve Fletcher
Substance abuse continues to take its toll on area residents.

The district AADAC office reports 102 people sought counselling between April 1, 1987 and March 31, 1988.

Of these, more than 20 per cent were friends or family members of abusers.

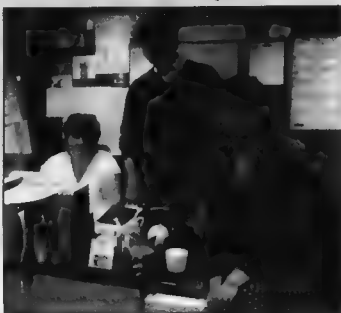

Alcohol remains the most prevalent substance abused, says area supervisor Carol Robertson Baker.

Statistics show that more than three quarters of clients are abusing alcohol. The second drug of choice is cannabis: nearly 10 per cent of AADAC clients are addicted to the substance.

Robertson Baker and co-worker Allan Aubry counsel abusers in the vast Drayton Valley district, which comprises a population of roughly 45,000.

Robertson Baker says the job can be frustrating at times but maintains they are always encountering success stories.

The frustrating part comes when the counsellors must deal with clients who really have no intention of reforming themselves.

"The toughest people to counsel are the ones from probation," said Robertson Baker. "Quite often they'll say what they think we want them to say."

Nevertheless, she denies suggestions that treating these people is a waste of time.

"At least they're recognizing that others see them as having a problem...maybe five years down the road something will click."

According to recent statistics, 37 per cent of the local office's clients have been referred there by Corrections.

Robertson Baker believes this is typical of AADAC's clients.

Often, she noted, it takes a crisis — such as trouble with the law — before abusers are provided with enough incentive to seek out help.

People who enter into AADAC counselling programs on their own volition are always the easiest to treat, added Robertson Baker.

"They are the more successful because they have motivated themselves to come in here."

Statistics reveal, however, only 19.8 per cent of last year's clients were non-referrals.

Nevertheless, society's changing attitudes about seeking treatment have increased counsellors' caseloads over the years. Despite this, Robertson Baker says dispelling myths about substance abuse is still far from over.

She sees little connection between the economic climate and abuse levels.

"I've never heard (a client give) that as a reason for abuse before," she pointed out.

Instead, clients often relate their problems with drugs stem from an inability to cope with shyness or boredom.

Robertson Baker noted the average client requiring additions counselling is a male between 18 and 40 who is a problem drinker and suffers from low self-esteem.

Sixteen per cent of the abusers are between the ages of 12 and 17, she added.

Thieves escape with $5,000 worth of cable

Thieves escaped with at least seven reels of copper cable after breaking into an area TransAlta Utilities substation on the Jan. 14 weekend.

Value of the stolen goods has been estimated at $5,000.

RCMP Const. Art Servante says the reels were of a large, industrial-type size. A number of hand reels were also stolen.

The break-in at the Lodgepole-area station occurred sometime between 8 a.m. on Jan. 13 and 3:30 p.m. Jan. 14, added Servante.

TransAlta is unable to accurately assess the exact number of cable spools stolen, but believes at least seven are missing.

Padlocks on the substation's front gate were broken in order to enter the facility, Servante said.

Anyone who has information regarding this theft should contact the RCMP at 542-4456.

School work experience program helps teens in the work force

By Wendy Carruthers
The classroom is not always the best place to prepare for the dog-eat-dog adult working world.

That is part of the reason for the work experience program at Frank Maddock high school.

Over 140 businesses in the community take part in the program, from offices to auto repair shops, providing training for high-school students in various positions.

"From 50 to 60 students participate over two semesters," says one organizer, Vern Harrison.

He says students must complete 250 hours of work to receive 10 school credits.

Businesses who take on work experience students are monitored by Alberta Education to provide a standard of work.

"They (employers) must have something for the students to learn," says Harrison, adding they try to steer away from plain labor jobs.

Harrison has been working with the work experience program for about four years now. He says there has been up to a 70 per cent high for students taking on jobs with the companies that hired them during school after graduation.

A regular schedule for a student would be a three-hour work day, every day of the week.

This arrangement would be able to teach the importance of punctuality and dedication to a job.

Not all students join the program to start careers, some just want the credits, says Harrison.

"There are those that are really good and those that don't fit in at all," he says, "can't be selective, we try to accommodate everybody that comes in."

Students no longer receive any pay for the work they do, to discourage students from taking advantage of the program.

Sometimes problems develop between students and employers and Harrison has had to place one student four times in different companies.

"We give the student the benefit of the doubt (the first time)."

Holly Schmidt is one of the Grade 12 students completing the last 30 hours of her term. She works at Esso Resources as a girl Friday and does secretarial work.

She thinks the work experience program is a great idea.

"It gives students a boost and they feel secure that they know how to do something," Schmidt says, "as long as they (students) take it seriously."

Schmidt feels ready to enter the work force now and is considering continuing an office career, though not at Esso.

"They've offered me all they can without taking someone's job," she says, "I feel I can do it on my own now."

The work experience program has given Schmidt the chance to choose her career and find out what the working world is like. She says the experience has been irreplaceable because it has taught her that "every office is different" and you have to adjust to it.

After high school she will try for another office, hopefully with a good recommendation from her current employers.

Janis Johnson, also a Grade 12 student, has chosen retail work for her program.

She is a clerk at Mary's House of Fabrics and "really loves it".

"It's a great way for students to learn about handling a job after school."

Johnson plans to return to Mary's for a summer job after graduating from school, but would really like to go into clothes design.

This experience has given her the confidence to go after her goals and she isn't looking forward to leaving the job which finishes this week.

"I enjoy it and am regretting leaving," For Johnson, Schmidt and the many other students who participate in the work experience program they may have learned the most valuable lesson school will teach — how to progress in the work force.

Auto insurance costs will see increase

Drayton Valley residents should prepare themselves for a jump in the cost of auto insurance this year.

Car owners with clean driving records should expect increases of four or five per cent, says a local broker who requested anonymity.

"On average, most of the insurance companies are increasing their rates," said the broker.

Drivers with blemished records face even stiffer liability insurance costs.

For example, the broker pointed out that one conviction for speeding in a school zone results automatically in a 15 per cent surcharge.

Liability insurance is compulsory for all vehicles.

A rise in claims and repair costs precipitated speculation across the province that the rates would go up, said Frank Easton, general manager of the Insurance Brokers Association of Alberta.

"As a group, they haven't really raised the rates for four or five years," he added.

Easton said insurance companies wishing to increase their rates must first get approval from the Alberta Automobile Insurance Board.

Family devastated by fire

By Belinda Atkinson
She was so hysterical, her husband didn't recognize her. "Who is this?" he asked after some woman had just said, "The house is on fire, come home."

Colleen ran home again but it was too late.

"At that point it would have been foolish to go back into the house," she said.

The firemen salvaged everything they could but within two hours Tim and Colleen Sekura were homeless.

Furniture was laying out on the lawn, half burned. The entire house was like someone had poured tar down the walls," she described the scene that night.

"A jumbo bottle of Ivory detergent had melted all over the fridge. Tim's glasses were actually soldered to the microwave."

"There was a big bag of potatoes under the stairs," she continued, "and the ones on the outside were baked."

The fire had been contained to the living room but smoke had left imprints in the carpet wherever there had been slippers, toys and furniture.

One toy, a beloved teddy bear that Colleen went into the house to find, was nothing more than fibres and melted glass.

The couple moved in with Tim's family and although the children — Cody, 19 months, Kimberly, 3 — had plenty of room to run and full use of a swimming pool, they kept asking to go home.

"I told them they couldn't because we were building a new one," Colleen said.

"Now Kimberly tells people she can't go back into the house because the doors are dirty."

Colleen said it's hard to describe the feeling of loss. "It's like someone reached in and ripped out my heart," she finally says.

Colleen remembers someone saying she is lucky to be able to buy all new clothes and furniture.

"I just wanted to deck her because I don't want new things; I want my old things back."

"We went window shopping for furniture but both of us were kind of shopping for what we had before," she said.

The Sekuras will adjust. With the help of an "incredibly generous" community that pulled together to raise $2,410 as well as advice and emotional support from friends, they'll put the fire behind them.

"People who don't even know me have donated things," she says as if overwhelmed.

Kimberly has a new bear and assumes her old one "walked off into the bush" because he was getting old. Cody is too young to feel the loss.

"They're still working on my wedding dress but I can't see them getting all the smoke out," says Colleen.

If any good could come out of a personal catastrophe, Colleen says it's appreciation for others.

"There are people you used to see every day that you might not pay that much attention to but you think differently about them now."

"Kimberly's learning how to swim."

"It's kind of like a death...the tragedy never goes away but it gets easier."

Thank You

Special thanks to our friends and neighbors for your overwhelming support.

We really appreciated your kindness and generosity.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters to set up office in town

Big Brothers/Big Sisters plan to upgrade their visibility in the community.

They are also looking into obtaining office space in town. "We want to become more visible in Drayton Valley," Martina Wollen, the group's executive director stated following an executive meeting last Monday.

Wollen also says there is an urgent need for big brothers.

"We have a couple of kids on the waiting list," Wollen says. Big Brothers/Big Sisters is working on a monthly activity, putting up posters around town and Wollen has lined up a number of speaking engagements.

During the past two months, Wollen has been visiting similar offices in Rocky Mountain House, Stettler and Wetaskiwin.

Annual Charity Auction
February 16, 1989

As February approaches we are once again in the process of conducting our annual charity auction which is to be held on February 16, 1989 at 6:00 p.m. at Sekura Auctions here in Drayton Valley. For this year's auction, as in the past, we are and will continue to solicit donations of both new and used items. In addition, we will also accept donations for services that can be auctioned. Receipts for income tax purposes will be issued for all cash donations and new items that are donated. All donations can be delivered prior to the day of the auction by calling 542-3113. Pickup can be arranged if necessary by calling the aforementioned number. We have also arranged for a drop off center in the Demick Mall. This will be open Monday to Saturday from 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. February 1 to the 15.

Again this year's auction proceeds will go towards a building project. Our present structure was originally designed to provide services to 15 clients. We are presently servicing 30 clients and the demand for our services continues to grow.

We look forward to working with you all to make this year's event an even bigger and better Auction and make a new facility for our clients that much closer to becoming a reality.

Remember, our clients and the Association are counting on "YOU"

Brass group world-travelled

By Belinda Atkinson
Foothills Brass, which has long been a medal on Calgary's cultural lapel and a heavyweight in the world's competitive classical scene, graces Drayton Valley with a one-night performance Feb. 1.

This world-travelled quintet brings to town a mastery over a lengthy repertoire including popular pieces by Henry Mancini, classics such as Bach and Canadian contemporaries such as Ward Cole.

American, Canadian and Israeli critics have raved of the group's "high degree of expressiveness," "skillful blending," "full control over practically all parameters of music," etcetera, etcetera.

Whether playing to the Canadian Embassy in Tel Aviv, the opening ceremony at the winter Olympics or elementary school students in Stettler, Alberta, the quintet's prowess has been heard, passion felt.

To miss the Foothills Brass

Feb. 1 at H.W. Pickup Jr. high would be to pass up a jewel or forego a trip to the Orient.

Positions are filled

Special Olympics for the mentally handicapped is starting the new year off on a positive note.

After struggling most of last year with a lack of coaches and executive members, all those positions have been filled.

Rita Monteith reports that four programs — floor hockey, swimming, bowling and pee wee athletics — are underway. And all their executive positions have been filled.

Many of the competitors in the programs are preparing for the upcoming winter and summer Games.

Quartet leaves town humming

By Belinda Atkinson
Guild strolled down memory lane Jan. 12 like Carol Burnette used to cross a stage — with natural talent and a lot of silliness.

The Calgary-based quartet left Drayton Valley humming along with carefully orchestrated a capella pieces including Manhattan Tranfer's Operator and laughing over spoofs such as Down in the West Texas Town of High River.

The audience roared with laughter as Big Bad Billy Sue, a.k.a. Marilyn Buehning, told the terrible story of an unfaithful man and a big-bosomed woman. But the spoofery didn't stop there.

Hal Kerbes gave an oh-so-serious rendition of My Body Lies, She Smellth, or something to that effect.

The elegantly tailored three-member backup ohhed and abhhed as Kerbes described his love: "She looketh like a jewel, smellth like a mule."

Then there was Susan Dyer, the tenor, whose hair was described as spun gold and mind portrayed as "spun something."

Dyer performed mostly backup but any moment in the spotlight left the audience amazed at her seemingly unending vocal range.

Michael Shields was the comedian of the group whose outrageous comments brought Burnette and other standups to mind.

The bass of the quartet, Shields, provided the "yaha," "doo-ops" and "ahuhidoonhs" and occasionally got himself confused with Dizzy Gillespie.

But the giggling subsided when Buehning threw herself, not literally of course, into a difficult but superbly handled performance of Stormy Weather.

Only then did the audience see the full scope of this quartet's musical capabilities.

Had there been less holding back in the musical department more often, the evening would have been perfect.

As it was, Guild deserved an "eight," according to a member of the audience.

Local promotions set

The Retail Merchants Committee decided Jan. 19 to follow a slate of promotions tried last year which proved to be "highly successful."

According to chairman Judy Forrest, the group will organize the following activities in 1989: a car giveaway June 19 to Sept. 9; a sidewalk sale July 18 through 22; a back-to-school promotion Aug. 15 to 19; a coupon day Nov. 26; a moonlight madness Dec. 7 and a half-price sale Dec. 16.

"Most have been really successful," she said. "People in town really supported the merchants last year."

RECEPTIONIST/STENO REQUIRED

Duties will include meeting visitors; handling telephone and 2-way radio system; general typing and filing of letters; daily reports, etc. Other routine office work duties. Work hours will be 7:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Monday to Friday. Good salary with comprehensive benefits package.

Girls perform despite pressure from insensitive audience

By Wendy Carruthers
What started as an amateurish effort by nervous girls slowly turned into a performance to be noticed.
The FMHS performing arts class Evening of Dance was marred — not by the dancing, but the audience. Through the first number, Girls, the dancers were obviously too nervous to carry off the complicated synchronization.

During Dynamo the interpretive dancing was misread by the audience who had the gall to openly laugh at the production.
Not until Intertwine, which the class had choreographed themselves, did the girls regain the confidence lost in the first three numbers.

When the production was taken seriously their movements became smoother. Although they never did reach the perfect synchronization they were after, mistakes went unnoticed by each other.

Special projects student Dana Miller, who performed the only solo dance of the evening, finally put the audience in their place.

With that, everyone was ready to accept this form of dance.

The entire program could have been improved with a couple of faster numbers, and more than the occasional smile from the dancers.

A couple of dancers stood out during the performance, ones who took the presentation seriously.

Although this is to be the only performance of the year the dancers might consider a repeat showing — only if they learn to ignore the audience and take criticism like professionals.

St. A's needs repairs

St. Anthony's school in Drayton Valley is in desperate need of some major repairs.

Valerie Keates, acting superintendent of schools told the local Roman Catholic school board last week she had sent a letter into the department of education asking for a facilities study.

"We need to have an evaluation," Keates told The Western Review.

Parts of the school are 25 years old.

At last Thursday's board meeting, the trustees looked at some problems with the hot water tanks. The board is hoping the facilities study will be finalized soon and some funds will come through that for the hot water tanks.

Ed Cooper, 76, a permanent fixture at service company

By Belinda Atkinson
How many 76-year-old men would call a rig worker a stay — to his face?

How many seniors would go to work, decide they need a drink, and take off for a few days?

Just one, Ed Cooper. And his employers love it. Ed's a permanent fixture at Wardin Well Servicing.

"If they don't run me off, then when I leave here you know where I'm going," he points to the sky.

Cooper started with the company 19 years ago when working the rigs meant "working."

"Those boys (today) make me sick," he says. "They got to have everything hydraulic or electric."

"Before, we did it the hard way...with our hands. Sometimes you look at those slaves and ships and it makes you cry. Whew, they was heavy."

Despite the hard work, Cooper had to be dragged off a lease site at 70.

"I walked back in the shop honey and I took off for a drink," he described his first reaction to working inside.

But Cooper knows, as do his employers, that if he wasn't happy where he was he'd be gone.

"It's okay in a way, for my age. I can come and go as I please."

And that he does. "Sometimes I go in to town and don't end up coming back for a couple of days," he says.

"I can go uptown and have more fun than a jack rabbit." Cooper is kind of a rabbit in the romance department too.

"The women come, oh they do, they do," he says practically clicking his heels.

Fellow employees estimate the number of Cooper's female companions nearing the thousands but Cooper is quick to say they're just friends.

"I got one girl. She's nice but bossy," he laughs.

He wouldn't go into too many details but he said she has managed to keep him out of the bar since Christmas Eve.

"I'm kind of quitting that now. There's too many bums in there," he says. "I'm going to go in there this weekend but just to collect some debts."

Like Wardin Well Servicing, the Drayton Valley Hotel considers

Ed Cooper's been around the block but he "ain't" slowing down, baby!

Senior profile

who occasionally tried to kill him, and nights in jail for carousing could fill a book.

Cooper, part of the family.

"I patronize that place so damn much they gave me a free room," he said.

"I asked, 'is that because I'm an old pensioner?' and they said, 'no, it's because you could own the damn bar by now.'"

But Cooper's escapades go beyond the Drayton Valley Hotel.

His stories of rocky romances, including a commonlaw wife of 30 years

In fact, his former boss, Maurice Warden, for whom he was a pallbearer, often talked of writing Cooper's life story.

"The boss said he was going to write a book on me and I'd never have to work another day in my life but I said, 'yah, that's cause I'd be in jail.'"

"Maybe some day before I bite the dust I'll tell it all," he said.

8 years of memories

Cpl. Tom Turner packs up his belongings at the RCMP detachment as he prepares for his transfer to Red Water. Turner began his job as Redwater's detachment commander Jan. 23. Turner, active in the community during the eight years he spent in Drayton Valley, was also promoted to the rank of sergeant.

The Drayton Valley Chamber of Commerce outlined a "very aggressive schedule" Jan. 16 in their first directors meeting, according to the chamber president.

President Grant Monsour said the tourism committee discussed three major projects for 1989 that will make the town more visible to travellers.

"There is talk about building a new tourist booth," he said.

"The old one is quite a run down," he said, adding "dress up" alterations were made last year but the facility is still not very big or bright.

Monsour said the project is still under discussion and may not advance beyond that in the 1989 term.

The tourism committee also laid down plans for the tourist brochure which will be distributed through the chamber office, the tourist booth and the Battle River Tourist Association.

The committee will reprint the Outlook brochure outlining statistical information about Drayton Valley's business sector.

"It's a helpful little brochure for anyone interested in doing business in town," Monsour said.

He said the economic development committee also put forward some industrious plans to improve relations with out-of-town groups and entrepreneurs.

"They plan to set up a formal mechanism so groups coming in to town will be greeted by a representative such as the mayor," he said.

He gave an example of the Northern Alberta District Conference scheduled for the fall when roughly 100 members of the Scouts Association will meet in town.

"They're also going to solicit hotels and restaurants for discounts," he said, explaining these extra efforts would ensure future conferences.

The retail merchants committee discussed another major retail promotion similar to the car give-away last September as part of a large campaign urging people to shop locally.

The committee will also expand the employee of the month program and possibly develop a business of the year award.

The merchants committee discussed expanding employee education through seminars.

The first will be a sales and promotion seminar in April in which the committee hopes to involve at least 40 local employees.

"We had 25 last time (fall 1987) and they were so pleased with it that I don't think there will be a problem this year," he said.

'Aggressive schedule' planned

Colorful baskets, juicy apples keep Alder Flats couple active

By Wendy Carruthers

The kitchen may be a nightmare for a modern-day Tom Sawyer.

Flexible willow switches ranging up to about five feet long lay in bundles across the floor.

But George Kohut does not use them for dishing out punishment—they are the materials for his handmade baskets.

Kohut, 88, and his wife Joanne whom he affectionately calls "mother," don't seem to notice the switches and baskets in various stages of production strewn about.

Kohut has been weaving the colorful baskets since his 12th year.

"My grandfather used to make baskets in the winter and I was always with him," Kohut says of his unofficial training.

The baskets were used for storage and gardening by his mother who prompted him to make them for transport of garden potatoes.

The production of the baskets is a time-consuming task. At each stage of production the shells must dry out. Then each switch is weaved through the base.

The results of this labor are colorful, practical holders.

Now these baskets may be

George and Joanne Kohut must wait out the winter to return to their ga-used for decoration—but not when he was young and the work was required and not a hobby.

His family used the sturdy baskets for various household chores. Then, he says, the baskets were not made for a profit, only to save money.

The switches he uses are from the back lane of their Alder Flats residence. The yard is large with snow covering what is obviously a big garden.

"I brought the willow bushes from Montana and planted them in the back."

Now, decades later, the bushes produce more than enough material for Kohut.

George and Joanne now travel twice a year to Montana to soothe themselves in the hot springs.

"My son also cut some switches last year from Ma Me O Beach."

The baskets are sold to supplement the Kohuts' income and used as a hobby in the winter for the couple who can no longer get about in the snow.

"If you concentrate on your work it makes you forget and not worry," says Kohut, "and I went through plenty."

Kohut and his wife immigrated to Quebec in 1928 from their native Hungary. He transported his wife and two sons to Lethbridge and "stayed in Alberta ever since."

In Hungary Kohut was injured in a mining accident, and the lack of proper compensation prompted his move to Canada.

In 1932 the family settled four-and-a-half miles east of Alder Flats to farm before taking over the store next to his house, now called the Lucky Dollar, in 1944.

After his retirement in the spring of 1959 because of medical reasons, Kohut wanted to "use my ability to introduce something to Canada."

He decided on apples.

A friend in Breton, who Kohut calls "a good tough Swede," gave him some apple seedlings which produce a small, juicy yellow apple.

There are now more than 10 varieties of apple trees in their yard.

At this time of year the garden looks like an Arctic scene. Empty bushes and lifeless trees have an orderly, but deathly appearance.

In the spring the Kohuts say their garden comes to life.

The apples, which Joanne eats at least two of every day, are given to friends and the staff of the Kohuts' doctor's office.

He says he has to take more and more apples each time to meet the demand.

"I told them to come and pick them for themselves," Kohut is angry at his body for aging. It has prevented him from the active, gardening he used to do and slowed down his basket production.

There was a time when he made two baskets a day—now it takes about two days to make only one basket.

His body movements are slow and his chairs padded with foam for extra comfort. As he puffs on his pipe, Joanne putsers around the kitchen oblivious to the switches lying about.

She breaks apart bread to put in the many bird feeders in their yard. That is the one activity she will not give up even though plodding through the snow around the yard could be dangerous.

Although their activity has been restricted by the heavy snowfall in the past few weeks, they look forward to spring when they can watch the apple trees and lilac bushes in their garden bloom again.

The Kohuts' yard is a desolate place in winter with lifeless trees and vines.

The Alder Flats Lucky Dollar store, once owned by the Kohuts.

Don't ignore transmission

What is the most ignored part of your car? Most of us think to check the oil, radiator and tire pressure now and then. The trouble is, we often forget about automatic transmission maintenance.

This can be a costly mistake. An overhaul starts at $400 and can easily top $1,000. Front-wheel drive transmissions cost even more to fix—up to $1,500. That is because they are smaller and more intricately designed.

You can save yourself the expense with some simple preventive maintenance.

Automatic transmissions are complicated, and some mechanics understand them better than others. The

Consumer's Corner

By Samia Valleevand

Canadian Automobile Association and the Automobile Protection Association can help you find a reputable specialist. To further help avert disaster, check the transmission fluid every few months.

Avoid a nasty surprise — take good care of that transmission.

Start with a routine check once a year. This should include a road test, an examination of the drive train for leaks or flaws and a change of transmission fluid and filter.

Adolescent years time for growth, experimentation

What is it about us that we always focus on the negative?

The unemployment statistics are always stated as a percent unemployed — never the percent employed! A cup is half empty instead of half full! If you ask someone to list good points and bad habits, the list of bad is easiest. Are we a society of pessimists?

This seems especially true when we talk about teens. The behaviors and activities that hit the news are usually the sensational, the dramatic, and those things that go against what is acceptable to the community. We worry about kids and peer pressure rather than looking at all the valuable aspects of peer influence during the adolescent years. When we focus on teenage sexuality or teen alcohol and drug use, anxiety is the very highest.

As adults, the memory of our own adolescent years has conveniently dimmed. Yet whatever generation we come from, the adolescent years were a time for growth, exploration, and yes, even experimentation. Have you ever shared with your child stories of what went on "out-behind-the-barn" or admitted to some of your experiences and worries as a youth?

The role of parents and other adult role models is to set a good example and to provide guidance and support to young people. The most effective tools are communication of correct information, statement of expectations, and transmission of family values. This process supports youth in exploring and developing skills and personal competence.

AADAC's prevention program is designed to complement the efforts of parents and educators in helping adolescents to make good decisions. Principles of the prevention program seek to:

- * get teens committed to a positive lifestyle with concern for the well-being of themselves and others,
- * encourage self-directed learning and development,
- * help teens become better able to manage their own lives by developing a broad range of skills and abilities,
- * encourage teens to draw on the support of their friends in learning situations and to return that support when needed.

The aim is to encourage teens to find a positive direction in life and develop the confidence and competence to pursue that direction. Thus equipped, they stand a much better chance of avoiding many of the problems associated with alcohol and drug use.

AADAC has developed materials to support this process. Available for use with the Personal Life Skills course at junior high is "Teen Action," a resource designed to match curriculum objectives of Alberta Education.

"Drive Alive" — developed with the involvement of adolescents across Alberta will assist teachers involved with the new career and life management (CALM) curriculum in high school.

"Peer support" materials encourage schools to use the positive aspects of natural peer relationships in a creative, helping way through establishment of peer support teams.

To assist parents as educators of their children a new family drug education program, Touchstones, has been released.

AADAC hopes to help communities to see and appreciate the positive potential of our young people, Alberta's greatest resource!

For further information on AADAC services or resources, call the Drayton Valley AADAC at 542-5669.

If you are committed to being an "askable" parent or helping professional, plan to attend a public presentation on Monday, Jan. 30 at the Drayton Valley hospital starting at 7:30 p.m.

AM I GETTING THROUGH TO YOU?

You are invited to attend an informational evening as part of the Interagency Presents Series. This month we welcome Carol Cameron, Manager of Community Education Services Branch of Alberta Alcohol and Drug Abuse Commission.

Topics to be discussed include:

- Providing guidance and support to young people
- Empowering adolescents to assume control and take action
- Differences in adults vs adolescents values and perceptions

If you are a parent, educator, community group leader or any one faced with the challenge of communicating with adolescents we would very much like to see you at:

Olympic legacy lives on

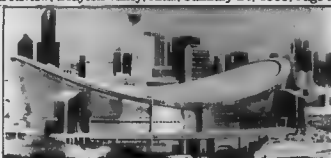

The 1988 Winter Olympics are finished forever but the memories will last a life time. We will never forget the excitement of those 18 days in February, nor the athletes who worked so hard to get there.

The venues from the Olympics stand today in the same majesty as they did last year, perhaps as the best reminder of the glory the Games brought to Calgary.

This winter, take a tour of the venues from the Olympics and relive the memories. See the legacy left to Calgary and try for yourself some of the sports that were held at the Games. For more information about touring the Olympic venues, contact Travel Alberta toll-free at 1-427-4321 (Edmonton).

Canada Olympic Park was built especially for the Olympics with the idea it would develop into a premier recreation and training centre after the Games were over. It has evolved into just that.

The world's only Olympic Hall of Fame is located in Canada Olympic Park, which pays a special tribute to our winter Olympics. There is a 15-minute film documenting the history of the Olympics as well as dynamic displays and audio visual presentations.

One of the world's three-covered skating facilities, the Olympic Oval is reputed to hold the fastest ice in the world.

The Saddledome is one of the most impressive arenas built in North America. During the Olympics it hosted the exciting hockey and figure skating competitions. Today it is home to the Calgary Flames hockey club but memorabilia from the Olympics are still found in parts of the building.

Beware of raw meat

Consumers have to be aware that meat is extremely perishable and raw meat can rapidly spoil even in their refrigerator.

Cuts such as steaks and roasts may have a refrigerator shelf life of only four days. As the bacteria grow and reach high numbers, the natural red pigment of the meat is changed to a brown color. At this stage, the meat is old but not bad. Ground beef or pork may discolor after only one day. This is a good indication of the meat's "age" but not how safe it is to eat.

Consumers are used to a bright red color of beef, in particular, which occurs naturally as the beef is cut and exposed to oxygen in the air. In the retail meat counter, refrigerated meats are generally packaged with a film that allows oxygen to pass through it.

Spoilage bacteria, present in the air, eventually will cause meat to smell and taste unpleasant. This bacteria must reach numbers of 10 to 100 million per gram or per square centimetre of the surface of the meat before the meat is spoiled.

The storage temperature of meats affects the rate of bacteria growth. As the temperature is reduced, the rate of growth decreases so the same bacteria that doubled every 15 minutes at 20 to 37 C, only doubles every six to eight hours at refrigerator temperature.

Our Town in Review

Jan. 24, 1979

After unveiling a proposal for a $20 to $30 million government complex in a 49-minute state-of-the-town address at the chamber of commerce annual meeting, Mayor Nevis LaBranche indicated she would go to great lengths to make her dream a reality.

Council was looking at a bylaw that would outlaw the use of snowmobiles within town limits.

The RCMP dealt with 157 impaired drivers in 1978.

The Royal Canadian Legion junior men's rink made a clean sweep over rinks from Hinton and Edson to win the Zone 2 championships. Members of the rink included Al Morgan, Adam Musylowski, Doug Hutson and Bob Metcalfe.

Jan. 22, 1969

The provincial cabinet authorized a change in name of the County of Stony Plain to the County of Parkland.

Doug Ibbotson scored 17 points and Dan Boushard added 14 as the Frank Maddock high school Warriors defeated Warburg 55-44 in a Pembina basketball league game.

Jan. 22, 1959

A juvenile hockey team was formed by Jack Falls and Bill Repke.

A nine-pound two-ounce baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lainschbury in an Edmonton hospital on Jan. 16.

The Meier rink defeated the Reglin foursome 9-5 in British Connel playoff action.

Animals need winter shelter

Winter is hard on animals. When the temperature starts to drop, the winds start to blow and snow falls, animals feel the cold.

Animals living outside need shelter and enough food to keep them warm.

An outside dog needs a good doghouse, insulated and with straw bedding to keep him warm. Short-haired dogs such as the doberman are not suited to living outside through winter months. An inside dog should not be expected to stay outside during the day. His body cannot adjust to the extreme changes of temperatures of being inside at night and out all day.

Horses and cattle need shelter and feed. Every winter, animals starve to death because their owners do not feed them properly. Acreage owners in particular should make sure they have enough hay to feed their livestock until next May or June. Livestock should also be provided with drinking water throughout the winter.

For advice on winter care of animals, phone your local humane society, the Alberta SPCA or your district agriculturalist. And please report all cases of animal neglect to the SPCA.

New stamps out

Canada Post Corporation has issued three definitive stamps in various denominations and featuring the walrus, musk-ox and the grizzly bear, continuing the series of large mammals appearing on medium-value stamps.

The 44-cent stamp, the rate for first class letters addressed to the United States and weighing no more than 30 grams, features the walrus. The 59-cent stamp, the domestic rate for first class letters weighing between 30 and 50 grams, features the musk-ox while the 76-cent stamp, the rate for first class letter mail (up to 20 grams) to international points other than the United States, features the grizzly bear.

Two of these stamps, those of the 44-cent and 76-cent denominations, will also be available in five-stamp packs.

'As humans, we're prisoners of sin'

By Tim Lees
Youth Pastor
Calvary Baptist Church

Have you ever done something that has created hard feelings with someone? And after it's over you realize you never wanted to do it in the first place, but something beyond your control motivated you to do it.

Maybe it was greed or anger or selfishness, but in the end you wished it hadn't happened.

The Apostle Paul had the same problems. He writes in Romans 7:18-19: "For I have the desire to do what is good, but I cannot carry it out. For what I do is not the good I want to do; no, the evil I do on doing."

You see, as humans, we're prisoners to the law of sin... It's our nature. We were born that way. It's always our nature to do what's wrong, what's selfish, what will gain the most for ourselves.

There are social pressures in our culture which keep us from displaying the basest part of ourselves. But if we're honest we have to admit we weren't born nice.

So is there a solution? I believe there is. Paul goes on to say in Romans 7:24-25: "What a wretched man I am. Who will rescue me from this body of death? Thanks be to God through Jesus Christ our Lord."

The only way to be free from sin's control of our lives is to be free from ourselves. You and I are the problem! It's our sinful nature together with a few choice temptations that makes it so easy to do what's wrong.

That's where Jesus comes in. The Bible tells us those who have trusted Jesus for their salvation have made Him their Lord. If Jesus is Lord, He's the boss... He's in control of our lives.

Can you see how there comes a difference in our behavior if Jesus is in control? Instead of doing what I want, I do what the "boss" wants.

But the choice is ours. Jesus never steps in and takes over. Revelation 3:20 says: "Behold, I stand at the door (of your life) and knock." We must let Jesus in, give Him control and He makes all the difference! Have you ever let Jesus in?

I would invite you to think seriously about making that kind of decision. Jesus says in John 10:10: "I am come that you might have life, and have it to the full." A full life can only come as we're freed from the nature that makes us do what we wish we didn't do. We become free as Jesus becomes Lord.

Fighting world hunger

In more than 200 schools and churches across Canada, young people are steeling themselves for a 30-hour famine Feb. 17-18 — to help fight world hunger.

"Every day, around the world, an average 40,000 people starve to death," says Dennis Johnson, World Vision representative for this area. "Our 34-hour famine is an organized group fast where young Canadians can seek donations in support of their brief 'famine' in response to prolonged starvation in other communities."

He explains the teens usually stay together, with adult advisors, throughout the 30 hours, watching films, discussing hunger, playing games, etc.

World Vision Canada expects to raise more than half a million dollars this year through the 30-hour famine. Donations will be used to provide immediate food aid where most needed, and for long-term community development projects in needy countries.

It's over

Drayton Valley civic workers were finally able to take down the town's Christmas decorations last week. The engineering department was kept busy with snow removal before then.

WI Christmas fair a success

The Women's Institute donated $100 to Santas Anonymous.

The Christmas Fair held in the Rec Plex was a great success.

A cairn marking the 80th anniversary of the formation of the first WI will be dedicated at Les Parks in July.

The present executive will stay on for another year.

The next meeting will be held Jan. 31 at the home of Winnie Hammerlindl.

Association meeting tonight

By Mae Tryon

The Lindale Hall Association held its annual meeting Jan. 16 at the Lindale Hall.

Plans were discussed for Farmers' Day which is in June. A letter will be sent to the new municipal district of Brazeau and the Twin Rivers school district stating their wish of keeping Farmers' Day a holiday.

Two fans will be installed in the west wall of the hall to help eliminate the smoke problem. Liquor prices were also discussed.

Bids are now out for the janitorial job at the hall.

Elections were held with Dennis Martin named president, Jamie Floden as vice president, and Anna Kiemele will handle the secretarial/treasurer's duties. Other board members include Ed Hagen, Stanley Sunderland, Coreen Townsend and Monica Hagen.

Congratulations to Crystal Van Ember and Ken

Berrymoor

Campbell on their recent engagement.

Kim and Kathy Gilchrist are the proud parents of a new daughter born Jan. 6. Proud grandparents are Russell and Thelma Gilchrist of Berrymoor.

The next meeting of the Lindale School Association will be tonight (Jan. 24) at 7 p.m. in the school library.

Ball diamond issue will be discussed

Violet Grove

By Sylvia Davidson

A special meeting will be held tonight (Tuesday, Jan. 24) at the 4-H hall to decide the fate of the ball diamond issue and whether there is enough interest to go ahead with any renovation plans.

Otto and Pat Stordalsvill visited son Ray and family, during the Christmas holiday.

A moose hair tufting course will be held at the Violet Grove 4-H hall Feb. 18 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Students' scholastic achievements honored

By Shelli Carson

Several students were presented with awards at the Breton junior and senior high school recently.

The Royal Canadian Legion awards for the Remembrance Day poster and essay contest were presented to Adrian Dorsey, who received an award for both his poster and his literary efforts. Sandra Berman, Karlene VanDerZouwen, Selena Dorsey, Shannon Dean and Craig Blize.

Also returning to accept awards for last year's achievements in Grade 12 were Mark Waldron (Parents Association award and ATA award), Larry Biever (Rutherford Scholarship, County of Leduc, ATA award and Women's Institute award), Chris Bijou (Rutherford Scholarship) and Shane Freeson (Governor General's award, Rutherford Scholarship, County of Leduc, ATA award and the Bus Drivers' award for highest achievement in Grade 12).

The Funnell Society held their annual meeting Jan. 9 beginning with a pot-luck supper.

Certificates of appreciation for their duties on the board of directors for one year were presented to Brenda Hannem, Reg Gillespie and Elmer Ellis. Margaret Fenneman received an engraved desk set for her duties as secretary for many years. Janet Ellis received a plaque for her part in card parties, bridal showers and Christmas concerts.

Ray Ellis remains as president of the society, vice president is Elmer Ellis, Margaret Fenneman is secretary, with Brenda Hannem as treasurer. Directors include Ernie Mockerman, Reg Gillespie and Janet Ellis.

The club welcomed three new members. If anyone would like to join the club contact any member or come to a meeting on the second Monday of every month at 7:30 p.m.

Sympathy is extended to Cliff and Susan Eliuk on the recent death of Dick Eliuk.

The Breton parents' association meeting will be held tonight (Tuesday, Jan. 24).

Highway collision near Alder Flats

Ambulance workers attend to one of the drivers involved in a two-vehicle collision at the junction of highways 22 and 13 near Alder Flats. The other vehicle involved in the accident was a pickup truck (partially visible at right). Status of the drivers was not available at press time.

Howse Pass low on MP's priorities

By Belinda Atkinson
Yellowhead MP Joe Clark places the proposed road through Howse Pass low on a list of transportation priorities, says his executive assistant.

David Hoff says the external affairs minister sees upgrading to the Trans Canada Highway and the current twinning of Hwy 16 as projects that should be dealt with before new highway construction can begin.

"We're still trying to get information on the pass," Hoff said. "We haven't even received a formal proposal yet."

He said it is difficult for Clark and other MPs to judge a proposal when no one has a definitive plan.

The Red Deer Chamber of Commerce heads a Howse

Pass campaign that is, according to numerous reports, verbally supported by most MLAs in the province.

But in terms of cost, Hoff says "B.C. has a lot more responsibility than Alberta" since much of the road would be across the provincial border.

He said feasibility studies, environmental impact reports and cost estimates would have to be done before the project could be completely analyzed.

"It's an expensive process to get something like that done," Hoff said.

Then, he explained, there would be the question of who picks up the tab for a road spread over public land, park land and designated wilderness, which is in some areas federal responsibility and others provincial.

"I'd hate to hazard a guess of how long it will take," Hoff said. "A process like this takes time."

Oilpatch thieves take $30,000 from firm

RCMP are investigating another substantial oilpatch theft that occurred near Cynthia last week.

Police estimate the take at between $30,000 and $50,000. Victim of the theft was Geo-X Seismic Systems of Calgary, which had been performing some testing in the area.

Const. Grant MacDonald said the RCMP is requesting the public's assistance in solving this crime.

The theft took place sometime between 10 p.m. on Jan. 23 and 7:30 a.m. on Jan. 24.

MacDonald said the thieves broke a padlock to enter a trailer at the site.

They then carried away various equipment, including a welder, five Jack-A-Lis, a Verosol parts washer, 50 pounds of welding rods and various power tools, sockets and wrenches.

Three vehicles parked at the site also had their spare tires removed, added MacDonald.

He said last week that the company is working to compile a complete list of the stolen goods.

Birchwood seeking concessions

Birchwood Village Greens is seeking tax concessions from the Brazeau municipal district.

The Lindale-area resort would like the MD to exempt it from taxes on its clubhouse and its unsold lots.

Birchwood owner Stan Bucar appeared before council last Thursday to request the tax holiday.

Initial taxes are "onerous on the developer," said Bucar. "Often a good development goes haywire because of immediate tax requirements."

In pleading his case, Bucar pointed out the MD would be the recipients of a "very, very fine tax base" once the resort is fully operational.

Birchwood has sold 70 of the 175 lots included in phase one of its huge development project.

The resort hopes to sell the remaining lots by this fall, Bucar told council.

Birchwood plans to leapfrog over phase two — the largest development portion — and begin construction of phase three later this year.

When all 550 sites are sold "they'll all be paying taxes...and that's a lot of money" for the MD, Bucar said.

Council will decide whether to grant Birchwood Village Greens a concession once it receives a written report from the resort detailing the tax request.

A minor fire was reported last Tuesday in the science lab at H.W. Pickup junior high school. It was extinguished by the teacher.

The Royal Purple and Elks Lodge have each donated $500 to the Purple Pansy Senior Citizens Association. The money will be used for drapes at the Wishing Well.

Renovations are well underway on the new Radio Shack store in town. They will be occupying the old library.

The town is expected to move from their present location into the new $1.4 million administration complex (the old arena) on Feb. 3.

A spokesman for Weyerhaeuser says Al Owen will remain on as their general manager in Alberta.

It was announced earlier this month that Weyerhaeuser had become majority owner of Pelican Spruce Mills.

Yellowhead MP Joe Clark has been invited to Drayton Valley where he would be presented with a 7,000-name Charles Nig petition. Petition organizers are hoping to get Clark's support on the issue.

Bruce Clemmer skipped his Wild Card rink to a 6-4 win over Le Jay Trucking in the championship game of the 7th annual Red Deer Oilmen's bonspiel on Sunday.

Clemmer also won the title in '84.

Library's brand new look awaits bookworms

By Steve Fletcher

Library patrons — returning to the bookshelves after an absence of nearly two months — are in for a shock, says chief librarian Lois Peterson. She said residents happily dusting off their library cards will discover a more spacious and visibly-pleasing environment.

"It's new and it's bright and colorful," chimed Peterson last week — one day before the library opened its doors to the public on Jan. 24.

The library is the first facility at the administration complex to open.

The complex, a renovated structure that formerly housed Centennial Arena, also includes the town office and the fire hall.

Peterson said the new facility contrasts sharply with the old library located just west of Main Street.

"Patrons will notice right away the wide aisles, which will make it much easier to access material.

"There are also areas where people can sit down and read you won't have to move when somebody wants to get to a filing cabinet or something."

The library's new quarters is substantially larger than its predecessor. At 3,930 square feet, it easily handles the 15,000-volume inventory.

Closed since Dec. 1,

Peterson acknowledges that "people are anxious to get in."

She said, however, a further temporary shut-down will probably take place sometime over the next few weeks so new shelving can be added. That should be the final upgrading for the library, although Peterson noted with enthusiasm "a few special touches (are planned) as we go along."

Total number of Conservative party candidates still up in the air as deadline fast approaches

How many people are seeking the Progressive Conservative nomination in the Drayton Valley/Devon constituency?

That's the $64-dollar question. Tom Thurber of Winfield, Wayne Gent of Tomahawk, Erwin Zoltman from Warburg and Grant Monsour of Drayton Valley have officially taken out their nomination papers.

However, Calmar Mayor Louise Rumbles, who announced her intentions to seek the seat in a Jan. 17 front page article in the Leduc Representative, kept organizers guessing last week, as she hadn't picked up her papers. She has until noon on Feb. 3.

Lorne Henderson of Devon, who was reported to be considering the opportunity last week, has dropped out of the running.

Chad Nichols, chairman of the local PC party, told The Western Review that shortly after Shirley Cripps announced her intentions not to seek re-nomination, he had received calls from 14 prospective members.

Gibeau seeking seat

Phil Gibeau has decided to take another crack at provincial politics.

Gibeau will represent the Liberal party in the Drayton Valley constituency.

He was unsuccessful in the last provincial election. The Liberals will hold a nomination meeting March 1 at the Breton high school starting at 7:30 p.m.

Gibeau felt Calmar Mayor Louise Rumbles might contest the Liberal nomination. But instead, Rumbles is running for the vacant Progressive Conservative spot.

The recent resignation (after the next provincial election) of MLA Shirley Cripps didn't catch Gibeau offguard. "I had heard rumors she may not run again," he stated.

In the same breath Gibeau said, "Her resignation has opened many doors."

However, Gibeau doesn't believe Cripps' excuse that she is stepping aside for a younger person.

"Things are a mess. The formation of the municipal district is a mess. There's no direction. She had a tough job in tough times."

He also feels the resignation is a great opportunity for new people, for new direction.

PEC considers move

The Fambina Educational Consortium is considering a move into new quarters at Whitecourt.

The issue will be discussed this week at a directors' meeting, says executive director Joe MacLellan.

The two school districts in Whitecourt have agreed in principle to proceed with the development of a education complex geared to providing high-technology courses.

The districts are seeking a third partner with a "recognized adult education mandate," states a recent news release.

MacLellan believes the PEC board will "study with interest" the details of the proposal.

"It's a rare opportunity to pool capital resources and avoid a lot of duplication," he said.

MacLellan added increasing enrolment at the consortium and the on-going economic development taking place in the Whitecourt area would both benefit from the new complex. Demand for consortium courses has increased by over 100 per cent in both Whitecourt and Drayton Valley.

Recent forestry-related mill projects announced for Whitecourt will fuel this already growing demand, said MacLellan.

However, he added it would not be feasible for Whitecourt to replace Drayton Valley as the consortium's central office. Drayton Valley as a base "makes sense geographically," noted MacLellan.

The consortium has tentatively scheduled early September as the date for its move into the old civic building in town.

Clark rumor 'bunk'

By Belinda Atkinson

Reports that Joe Clark will be "put out to pasture" as the newly appointed governor general were squashed Jan. 30 when Prime Minister Brian Mulroney re-assigned the Yellowhead MP to external affairs.

An Edmonton Journal article last week had pegged Clark along with six other MPs in new positions and outlined at least three departments to be reorganized under the much awaited cabinet re-shuffling.

A full list of reappointments had not been released at press time but Clark's executive assistant, David Hoff, said last week that the newspaper's conjecture was nothing more than "rumour."

"There's no substance to that," said Hoff of a Jan. 25 Edmonton Journal article placing Clark in the sedate governor general position.

"Not much is going on for the political news people in Ottawa," he said. "The House isn't sitting right now and they (reporters) are trying to think of something to write about."

Hot Mustang

No one was injured when this Mustang caught fire along Highway 39 last Friday afternoon near the Berrymore turnoff. The mother and two children were on route to Drayton Valley. The fire department and an ambulance from Breton were both on the scene.

Jaime Gilbert may seek treatment in California clinic

A local girl with a rare brain malformation received both good and bad news from her doctor Jan. 25.

Jaime Gilbert was told she can't return to school yet, bringing to one month her absence, but she may receive treatment in California where many Arterio Verois Malformation (AVM) patients have been cured of the disorder.

"(The doctor) said he's not happy with Boston or Pittsburgh so he's sending all of her tests down to California," said mother Jane Robinson. "He's sure they will accept her but if they don't she'll have to have an operation."

An operation would mean total loss of speech and memory for the 12-year-old girl but Robinson says the treatment has cured many.

Now it's the waiting game," says Robinson, adding it could be six months before the family hears if Jaime's been accepted for treatment.

"By that time a clinic could be built in Toronto and that'd be even closer," she said. In the meantime, she said Jaime could have another hemorrhage like Dec. 7 when an artery burst and Jaime collapsed in pain.

"He said once (patients) have one, they can have another," Robinson said.

"If she has any headaches that Tylonol won't take away then she's going back to the Royal Alexandra Hospital," she said.

The mother and daughter have gone through a great ordeal in just a short time, with the collapse, tests, and diagnosis and Robinson says the whole thing is "too unreal" for either to fully accept.

Robinson has received countless calls from people who've had similar experiences or who want to help and Robinson said the support has made it a lot easier.

In fact, donations to a Jaime Gilbert fund in Entwistle have reached $185 and Drayton Valley's Bank of Montreal now has $690 in a special account.

Cherie Gwin, a local mother, combined efforts with the Elks Club to organize a Valentines Day dance for Feb. 12 at the Elks Hall. Admission is free and the club will donate $3 for every child in attendance.

The family of recently-deceased Opal Ward, of Carnwood, asked that all donations from a Jan. 26 funeral be made to Jaime Gilbert though the total has not been released.

Students at Evergreen elementary, Jaime's school, raised $110 from a volleyball game between teachers and Grade 6 students. Proceeds from a doughnut sale will also go toward Jaime's treatment.

The Lariettes hockey team also plans an exhibition hockey game against local teachers though a date has not been confirmed.

"I'm so happy that people will go out and help someone they don't even know," said Robinson. "People have been so kind."

Donations can be dropped off at the Credit Union in Entwistle or Drayton Valley, the Bank of Montreal in Drayton Valley and The Western Review office.

Opinions

Time to take stand before it's too late

Fish and wildlife officers, and members of the county police have one thing in common.

Both agencies are being asked to do a very dangerous job without the aid of hand guns.

Fish and wildlife officers have been trying for years without success, to get hand guns, while the province's solicitor general recently stripped the County of Parkland's police force of their side arms.

Because of these identical situations, it's time for the province to arm their game wardens or disband the program. The County of Parkland needs to address the same issue.

Both the wardens and the county police are often dealing with people who are armed. Is it fair to send them out to do their job, without the necessary tools?

In December a Nova Scotia game warden was attacked and beaten by suspected deer poachers. The incident sheds a light on a problem in Nova Scotia that wardens have complained about for years. Armed with only battons, they say their job is too dangerous to do without guns.

The Department of Lands and Forests in Nova Scotia disagrees and has ordered the wardens to stop airing their beefs in public.

Fortunately, a similar incident hasn't been reported in this province. Let's not wait.

It's time for the provincial fish and wildlife people, those who calls the shots, to take a stand and protect their officers. Or, get out of the business.

At the same time, the department should seriously consider beefing up their regional offices, such as Drayton Valley. It's a big job for one man and a part-time office clerk.

Fair was disappointing

Dear Editor,

I am very disappointed in the way the Christmas Fair was run this year.

Some of the people that rent tables every year have been renting these same tables for several years now. This year, though, was a big disappointment for a few of us.

Every year, in November, a craft sale is held in the high school gymnasium. In the past the craft sale had been held on a Saturday from noon to 4 p.m. We were allowed in about 10 a.m. to set up and be ready by noon. That gave us plenty of time to set everything up the way we wanted it. Then, about a half-hour before closing we were told to pack up.

This year it was totally different. The person in charge of bookings had forgotten to reserve us a table, so it's a good thing the sale was held for two days instead of one.

We were lucky to get a table on Sunday and were told we couldn't get in until noon (or whenever she decided to get there). She said the janitor wouldn't open the door before she got there. We were let in at 11:45 a.m. which gave us barely enough time to set up properly.

The public was wandering in about noon because there was no sign at the door telling people when it opened for the public.

Advertising was also inadequate. After being told we would be allowed tables only one day, we found out people using a table on Saturday were also there on Sunday. We were told before the sale that we were not allowed to have a table two days in a row, only one day to give everyone a chance to have a table.

I asked the lady that runs the fair why there were people there on Sunday when they had a table on Saturday, and she didn't know anything. I said she must have known who they were when they came in the door on Sunday at noon. She should have refused them a table and explained they were here Saturday and they could not be there Sunday, too. There were about 30 stall holders on Sunday and several of them had been there on Saturday.

Some of them have a table at the farmer's market every Wednesday and should not have been so selfish. We were told at 3:50 p.m. to start packing our stuff up because we had to be out of the gym by 4 p.m.

I only wish they could find someone who is capable, organized, honest and fair to everyone, not just a certain few!

Jenny Brisebois

Lodgepole highway dangerous

Dear Editor,

There is just too much traffic on the Lodgepole highway to be deemed safe for the driving public.

Not only does one have to contend with regular traffic but also gravel trucks, service rigs and now large logging trucks.

The road is just too narrow to carry this amount of traffic and there is no room for the slightest driving error.

The provincial government must accept its responsibility for their part of this increased traffic as they selected the site for Pelican Mills. Therefore they must assist our MD in finding a solution to this problem — and quickly.

Heart fund organizers hope for repeat of '88

Heart fund organizers are hoping local residents will be as receptive as they were last year to the group's annual fund-raising drive.

The week-long campaign gets underway Feb. 1.

"Have a heart, give generously," stressed Judy Buckert, a Drayton Valley volunteer.

Buckert, who, along with Dianne Tink is again coordinating the drive, says she's expecting the same sort of success that occurred in 1987.

"We're confident the people of Drayton Valley and area will come through again," she said.

In 1988, donations rose by a whopping 38 per cent over the previous year.

A total of $6,853 was raised during the fund-raising campaign.

Buckert said the drive is being run in conjunction with February Heart Month.

Dianne Tink

All proceeds will go to the Alberta Heart and Stroke Foundation.

Canvassers are urgently needed, noted Buckert. "We are always looking for volunteers."

She added the first night of the campaign, Feb. 1, has been targetted as Blitz Night.

For more information, contact Judy Buckert at 542-4562 or Dianne Tink at 542-4157.

A Breton man has been fined $1,500 for driving over the .08 mg blood alcohol limit.

The Lumberjacks ham it up.

Drayton Valley teens won't fast in February

The 30 hour nation-wide famine to help fight world hunger will not be joined by Drayton Valley teens on Feb. 17 and 18. They will, however, be participating in their own staged famine with youth pastor Tim Lees of the Baptist Church.

Lees says Drayton Valley's famine will take place at the end of April or first part of May.

"We did that last year and found it very profitable," he said.

Lees did not only mean the donations they hope to receive for the famine as the profits.

"They get a deeper understanding of what it means to go hungry."

There is still time for interested students to participate in the World Vision famine Feb. 17-18. Interested parties should call Alan Hassell, contact for World Vision, at (604) 272-0140.

French-Canadian performers a treat for junior high class

The students in French class at HW Pickup were treated to an hour of French-Canadian entertainment Jan. 24.

Les Bucherons, a touring act of three French-Canadians who sing, dance and generally ham it up drew grand applause from the junior high students.

In English Les Bucherons translates to The Lumberjacks, and true to their name they dress in toques and sashes, using axes, saws and wooden spoons in their act.

The Lumberjacks have been performing for six years across Canada and the show's popularity increases with each performance.

Audience participation seems to be the key to their success. The finale includes a log-sawing competition between girls, boys and teachers.

Two teachers won the race by sawing off a chunk of log in just three seconds.

Les Bucherons get the help of students with dancing wooden men, spoons and clappers. Teachers are also put to work playing the saw. The unorganized troupe played well to finish the hour-long French-Canadian presentation from the three travelling performers.

Pesticide container site picked

A pesticide-container site may soon be in place at the Drayton Valley landfill if the Brazeau MD gets the financial green light from the government.

The MD sent in a grant application just prior to the Feb. 1 deadline. The application wasn't received until Jan. 19.

The Alberta government program allows for a maximum of $10,000 grant to municipalities seeking to establish pesticide-container sites.

The site planned for the Drayton Valley area will be 11 metres in diameter and should hold a maximum of 10,000 containers.

Richard Woloshyn, an MD employee, told Brazeau council last week Alberta Environment will probably collect the containers on a yearly basis.

If the grant application is successful, work on the project would begin in early summer, he added.

The intent of the province-wide program is to upgrade current landfill sites to environmentally safe standards, says a government news release.

Even smokers want cleaner workplace

Many smokers in Drayton Valley have welcomed new in-company non-smoking policies and some even say they love the cleaner working environment.

A small survey showed employees are turning toward the new regulation with full support of staff, both non-smokers and smokers who wait until breaks and lunch hour to light up.

"It doesn't bother me," said an Amoco employee who smokes on his way home for lunch. "I couldn't stand working in a smoky office."

"(The regulation) has been accepted fairly readily. I haven't seen anybody smoking in the washroom."

He said Amoco's policy, which went into effect July 1988, restricts 360 employees from smoking on any land owned by Amoco, whether in offices or on lease sites.

While that employee still has the occasional cigarette, a chart analyst for BMP Energy Systems has taken the policy more literally.

Madeline Hutton worked in the foyer following September's shift to a smoke-free environment but recently gave up the habit all together.

"I'm very much in favor of (the regulation). For starters I don't like the smell of smoke. There's nothing worse than smelling like an ashtray," said the reformed smoker.

She said giving up smoking brought back the productivity that had been lost to five or six cigarettes per day that accumulated to a wasted quarter of an hour.

There are still many companies where non-smokers are fighting to initiate a policy, in many cases failing because owners and upper management smoke.

Brandette Well Servicing Ltd. is such an example. Office manager Gertie Love has initiated a non-smoking policy in her office but can't hope for an enforced policy until the owner gives up the habit.

"My office is a smoke-free zone. I have a sign and everything," she says.

If someone tries to enter her room with a cigarette, Love says the policy — telling them to leave it outside — is immediately enforced.

Others such as Terry Bills, a secretary with Bob Dale

Gertie Love has declared her office a smoke-free environment despite the owner's habit.

Oilfield Construction, don't have the seniority to clear the haze or the private office to go to.

"I can't stand it. There's nothing worse than working with someone and having them blow smoke in your face," said the employee of two or three months.

"The employees are aware that I don't like the smoke. I let it be known," she said, adding that is all she can do.

Breton pioneer dead at age 83

By Wendy Carruthers

Breton has lost one of its last pioneers. Henry (Hank) Diador Pearson died Jan. 14 at Indio, California at age 83.

Born in 1905 in the North West Territories, Pearson is probably best remembered for his contribution to the lumber industry in Breton when he owned Pearson Brothers Ltd., a sawmill his father and uncle built from scratch.

Pearson took over his father's mill in 1945 when he and his brother Alvin bought out their dad's half share of the mill. (In 1933 the brothers had made a deal to buy their uncle's share — with the payment made in lumber over a number of years.)

By the time Pearson took over the mill it was already a going concern since the advent of WWII. Lumber was in great demand for use as crating material.

There were many more mills in the area, smaller and larger, which eventually lead to a decline in the amount of timber available.

In Pearson's day the timber business was a hard job. The lumber that had to be transported by land could only be done in the winter because roads were like swamps in the summer months and would never hold the weight.

In 1953 Pearson and his wife Mary moved to Burns Lake, B.C. where he owned and operated a successful lumbering industry.

He sold out his operation in 1965 to a Vancouver company and took his wife and son, Harlen, to Salmon Arm, B.C. to retire.

In the beginning of 1973 Mary died. Pearson married his current wife Adeline at the end of that year and continued to live in Salmon Arm until his death.

Clippers end losing streak with 2 wins

The midget Clippers saved the best for the last.

After going winless all season, the Clippers broke into the win column last Friday with a 6-3 win over Whitecourt.

Then on Saturday, in a four-point game at Westlock, the Clippers all but cinched a playoff berth with a 2-1 win.

Len Johnson had two goals against Whitecourt with Kevin Bergquist, Chris Hutchinson, David Hill and Jason Woods notching singles.

Johnson had the opener against Westlock and Daylen Pfannmueller got the winner.

The Clippers have just one league game remaining against Mayerthorpe.

Len Adler was outstanding between the pipes in the 6-3 decision.

Rookie coach Glen Johnson, who has three wins and a tie in four starts, says the Clippers played their best game of the season in Westlock.

Rangers win two on weekend

The Pile Base Rangers were unbeaten during two games on the weekend.

The Rangers downed the Morinville Mohawks 11-9 in provincial A competition on Saturday.

Scoring for the local club were Bryson Kuzek (four), Greg Thompson (four), Clayton Lindsay (two) and Trevor Depaige.

The next game in the two-game total point series will be in Morinville Feb. 27.

In regular league action Sunday, the Rangers romped to a 16-1 victory over Alix.

Scoring for Pile Base were Travis Brigley (four), Bryson Kuzek (four), Trent Williams (three), Ian Cathres, Greg Thompson (two) and Scott Risko.

Ski club plans events

The Drayton Valley ski club has announced the dates for two major functions.

A family ski day is planned for Sunday, Feb. 12 from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

The day's activities will include a scavenger hunt, fun run obstacle course, slalom course run and a downhill race. Prizes will be awarded at the end of the day.

Then on March 1, a student ski free night will be held from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. Lift tickets will be free. However, there will be a charge for rentals.

Skiers try Whitecourt

The Pembina Nordic ski club sent four entries to the Nordic Ranger Sandhills loppet recently in Whitecourt.

Shaunna Cartwright placed third in the girls' 13- and 14-year-old five kilometre.

Jonathan Satterland placed second in the boys' 12-and-under five kilometre.

Tyler Jackson came in seventh in the eight-and-under one kilometre and Chris Cartwright participated in the boys' 12-and-under five kilometre.

Tips up

The H.W. Pickup Huskies walked on the Breton Tigers Jan. 26 with a 39-5 win after a one-sided match on the winning team's home turf.

ATV regulations not cut and dried - RCMP

Driving ATVs in the area is not a "cut and dried" proposition, says RCMP Cpl. Dave Caporale.

According to government statute, for example, all off-highway vehicles are prohibited from driving on public roads.

However, municipalities are allowed to legally circumvent this regulation by enacting their own bylaws. The County of Parkland, for one, has passed such a law.

Caporale said this gives ATV owners the right to travel on public roads throughout the county.

Roads in the Brazeau MD are still restricted to highway vehicles.

He went on to stress that operators of ATVs — including quads, dirt bikes and trikes — are limited in their use of public roads even in municipalities such as Parkland.

The Off-Highway Vehicle Act prohibits access to these roads to between 8 a.m. and midnight, forbids speeds over 30 kms per hour and restricts ATVs to the extreme right of the road.

An ATV operator choosing to travel on a county road must also possess a valid driver's licence.

Crossing the roads "by the shortest route possible" is the only contact allowed ATVs in all other circumstances, said Caporale.

All operators must also possess valid registration and insurance unless they are riding on their own land or have the consent of the respective landowner.

With such a complex set of regulations, Caporale says the detachment sees a lot of law-breaking ATV operators.

But he adds that ignorance of the rules is used as an excuse in only a minority of the cases.

"A lot of them are out there in the country and believe they won't get caught," said Caporale.

"Show cuts — that's basically it," he added. "Almost all of them are aware they're not supposed to be on the roads."

Caporale pointed out off-highway vehicle owners are required, like anyone else, to report an accident when it causes personal injury or in excess of $500 damage.

Common sense regulates snowmobiles

Common sense is enough to regulate snowmobiles, says a local recreational equipment store owner.

John Luchyk, half owner of Tracks and Wheels, says the few restrictions placed on the sport combined with responsible driving habits, are enough to keep snowmobiling off the list of dangerous sports.

In fact, with last year's accident-free record, the sport may be safer than walking or driving a vehicle.

"You have to have a valid driver's licence to operate a snowmobile on Crown land but you don't have to have a specific licence for the sport," Luchyk explained.

Once on private land, he said the "sledder" is pretty well free to do what he or she wants.

But Luchyk said common sense and proper supervision for a new rider are necessary to counter the equipment's power since some are capable of speeds up to 100 mph.

"It's as safe as the individual riding wants to make it safe. You've got to remember that if it's made by man, it's going to kill you if you don't treat it with respect," he said.

Luchyk can imagine future legislation limiting the sport or calling for specific training and licensing.

But he says respect and common sense, such as not drinking before a trip, are probably suitable to maintain 1988's accident-free record.

John Luchyk says common sense is enough.

NHL teams interested in Sherwood Park player

The outstanding year Greg Pankewicz is having with the Sherwood Park Crusaders of the Alberta Junior Hockey League isn't going unnoticed.

Crusaders general manager Al McDonald says at least 10 Western Hockey League teams and the Quebec Nordiques have expressed interest in the 18-year-old Drayton Valley product. The Nordiques are apparently the second NHL team to inquire about Pankewicz.

Last week Pankewicz notched his 23rd goal in 42 games in helping the Crusaders to an 8-6 win over the Fort Saskatchewan Traders.

Right now Pankewicz, who recently played with the north division team in the league's all-star game, says he is looking at playing in the western league next season.

Greg Pankewicz...hasn't gone unnoticed

At the present time he is not on any of the WHL's protected lists.

Large turn out for bonspiel

Thirty-six rinks participated in the recent inter-club bonspiel at the Drayton Valley curling rink.

Don Regenwetter was the top Kinsmen entry. He was joined by Helen Paley, Stewart Fedorus and Betty Lundberg.

Alex Salzi was the top Lions foursome. Other members of his rink included Janice Fedorus, Rod Schultz and Mary MacIntosh.

Knights of Columbus honors went to the three-member rink that included skip Joan Anderson, Glen Salzi and Taletta Sanderson.

Elsie Dusterhoft took the Legion title. She was accompanied by Gary Wilneff, Judy Siegers and Mike Selwood.

Marshall VanDerploeg skipped the Elks rink to victory. He was joined by Ellen Cox, Bruce Harrison and The Western Review's Steve Fletcher.

A Hinton player celebrates a goal in a 9-2 win over the Lariettes in tourney action.

Local Lariettes lose in A final

The Drayton Valley Lariettes' debut in a tournament A final had the home town fans cheering last weekend.

The end result, however, was less than auspicious — losing 9-2 to a much stronger team from Hinton.

Manager Larry Nelson was nonetheless content with his team's performance in the third annual Lariettes invitational girls' hockey tournament.

"We've only ever made it to the B final before," he said, adding his team still requires some fine-tuning before the provincial championships are held here in March.

In other action, the Thorhild Angels downed the Warburg Pink Panthers 5-4 to win the B final.

The C final was won by the Mayerthorpe Mojoes, who defeated cross-town rivals the Mayerthorpe Rebels to claim the trophy.

The Brooks Brookettes were victorious in the D final, getting by Whitecourt by a 4-2 score.

Nelson said he was pleased with the quality of hockey showcased during the two-day event.

It was a very good tournament...basically the games were all close, and we were pleased with the fan support."

The Lariettes will be playing in tournaments in Warburg, Whitecourt and Barrhead over the next three weekends in an effort to develop stamina before the championships.

The Midget Provincial Girls Championship, slated for the Drayton Sports Centre March 25-26, will be the first tourney of its kind in Alberta.

The Lariettes, if they continue to improve, have a good shot at a gold medal, maintained Nelson.

Teacher Bev Erikson found 22 students within three months, more than she's ever had coming in to a new community.

Piano teachers never jobless

By Belinda Atkinson

Tickling the old ivories is a popular pastime in Drayton Valley, say piano teachers who are often forced to put potential students on a waiting list.

"I've never been stuck for a student," says Dale Melnychuk, a teacher for 11 years. Melnychuk's students range from six years to adult with interests varying from popular to classical music. Some are in it "just for fun" while others are working toward a musical degree.

She currently has 12 students but says she could have many more if she were interested in teaching full time.

Like Melnychuk, Lorna Muth teaches in her spare time but could turn it into a full-time venture if she so desired.

Instead, she juggles her evenings to accommodate 20 students.

Muth guesses a lack of choices may be the reason for the piano's popularity.

"(The piano) is one of the few instruments you can actually take in Drayton Valley," said the eight-year veteran teacher. "There aren't any teachers for instruments like the guitar, cello and violin."

Up until this year, even piano students had problems finding instructors capable of teaching the upper grades.

Melnchuk said most of the approximately 10 local teachers could only bring students as far as Grade 8 in the Royal Conservatory method, a grading system based at the University of Toronto which acts as a national measurement for students.

In the fall Bev Erikson moved to Drayton Valley to become to only local teacher with a musical degree and certification necessary to teach Grade 10, the highest level attainable under the Royal Conservatory system.

Erikson already has 22 students, more, she said, than she's ever had coming into a new community.

"I usually start with six students in a new community," she said, referring to Slave Lake, Whitecourt and Grande Prairie where she has taught.

"The most students I ever had was 28 in Grande Prairie but that was after three years," she said.

Youth broaden horizons

An upcoming local youth conference will challenge students in the mental, social, physical and creative arenas, says coordinator Allan Aubry.

The day-long conference at Frank Maddock high school, scheduled for March 14, will give students the opportunity to choose subjects from a roster of roughly 65 different workshops.

The workshops — ranging from ballroom dancing to job readiness — are designed to broaden the horizons of today's youth, said Aubry.

"What we hope to achieve is to provide challenges that will get their minds thinking about different activities."

Aubry said most of the workshop speakers will be Drayton Valley residents.

The conference will be attended by junior-high students from St. Anthony and H.W. Pickup schools as well students from Frank Maddock.

Titled Youth Challenge '89, the conference is a revamped edition of previous youth-oriented seminars.

Aubry said the conference was facilitated by the inter-agency organization, but added that students were also involved in organizing the event.

The workshops are based on interest lists provided by the students, Aubry noted.

Each student will be required to participate in about four workshops.

Brazeau MP drawing up general plan

The Brazeau MD is in the first stages of drawing up a general municipal plan.

The preliminary draft of the plan was presented to council last week.

John Andrew, a planner with Yellowhead Regional Planning Commission, told council the plan is in an "extremely draft" stage.

Currently, information on population and natural features is being accumulated, he said.

The draft includes a list of eight priorities which identify the prominent concerns of council in respect to land development within the MD.

Future of RNA program appears uncertain

By Belinda Atkinson

The executive director of the Pembina Educational Consortium is uncertain whether funding will be provided to continue the Registered Nursing Assistant (RNA) program in Drayton Valley next year.

Joe MacLellan says the 38-week course will be dropped if provincial government funding is reduced. If grants remain at the current level, alternate funding will have to be sought.

"It's a deep, dark mystery to us," MacLellan says of the course's future. "A decision would simplify the lives of all the instructors and students in the program."

Career Development and Employment will decide in two months whether the RNA program will remain in town or be moved to an educational consortium in Rocky Mountain House or Whitecourt.

"We believe there's a strong market here," he says. "I don't think we can run the program indefinitely but we could another year, at least, without saturating the market."

He said the Drayton Valley and District Health Complex has actively supported the course both during training, by housing all clinical experience toward the RNA diploma, and at its completion by hiring the students.

In the three years the program has run locally, he said they have also been fortunate to have three highly trained instructors from Drayton Valley.

But MacLellan said the very nature of a "shallow market" (an educational facility placed in a less populated area) demands flexibility to changing demands.

"We're quite fortunate compared to many, many towns," he said. "We have access to programs that other small towns don't have."

Seniors regain social ties at West Country Singles

Dating and bars may seem terrifying to someone who's lost a spouse but the thought of facing life alone can be equally devastating.

With this in mind, the West Country Singles Club offers a chance for singles to get out into the community and establish socialities.

According to club vice president Millie Jones, the club holds numerous functions including monthly dances, pot-luck suppers, meetings and get-togethers for entertainment and cards.

"In the summer we also have barbecues and pinics."

Many of the club's 30 members are over 45 but Jones says younger people are welcome and are likely to have a good time.

The club is, in fact, hoping to draw more membership from all age groups, whether married or single, to expand functions and develop new ideas for get-togethers.

"They've got to like to dance, though," says Ed Degen. "We've got some terrific dancers."

Degen and Jones met through the singles club and are now engaged to be married. They're not alone.

Seven members have either gotten married or become engaged in the last year and still remain active in the club.

"If we didn't invite married people, we'd be a lot smaller than we are," Jones laughs over the predicament of the dwindling number of singles in the club.

She says the main thing a newcomer has to remember is that it takes time to meet people and establish friends.

"Some people come once or twice and then never come again but they have to be patient," she says.

The West Country Singles Club will hold the next dance Feb. 4 at the Elks Hall just as they do the first Saturday of every month.

School attendance up

Attendance at St. Anthony's school in Drayton Valley has grown by leaps and bounds during the past 12 years.

Figures released in the school's annual education report show 481 students this year. That compares to 354 in 1976.

The jump from 455 two years ago has been attributed to the school's ECS program.

Three years ago the attendance sat at 408.

Benefits astonishing

The end of the rainbow touched down in Northern Alberta forests recently.

Residents in those isolated regions are still reeling with astonishment over the announcements of mega-forestry projects planned for their job-hungry areas.

If they had to stop to take a breath and figure out what hit them, they can't be blamed. If others find it too good to be true, they also can't be blamed.

First came the $1.3-billion pulp and paper mill for Athabasca. Then came the $16-million special-hardwood sawmill for Lac La Biche; then the $365-million expansion to Grande Prairie's pulp-and-sawmill complex; and finally, a new $35-million sawmill for the Manning area.

Benefits to be spawned from these proposals are mind-boggling.

Thousands of jobs are guaranteed. They could breathe new life into isolated regions faltering under the heavy burden of high unemployment, almost 20 per cent in some communities.

Northern businesses would benefit. From their growth will come even more jobs and more prosperity. And the list goes on and on. There is, however, one major issue to confront - environmental impact.

Short of a miracle, major environmental damage cannot be avoided with projects of this magnitude. Traditionally, the pulp and paper business has held a prominent spot in the top 10 list of environmentally devastating industries.

The province's assurance that all projects will be under the strictest of environmental controls may not be enough.

Already, environmentalists are claiming the mill near Athabasca will turn the Athabasca River into an industrial dump site, once toxic chlorine wastes start spewing from the plant.

The new year is almost certain to see a major war waged between environmentalists, the government and the communities whose well-being probably rests in the hands of these bold ventures.

History tells us these confrontations will be dirty and emotional. A happy medium will be almost impossible to reach.

Environmentalists will be told there has to be a trade-off for the benefit of Alberta's northern economy and unemployed. Environmentalists will be asking 'is the trade-off worth it?'

Albertans can only hope that all parties involved give and receive a compassionate and fair hearing.

Cooler heads must prevail. There's too much at stake here to proceed otherwise.

Straight answers?

While Yellowhead school division officials and ID 14 councillors wander the area decrying the effect the formation of the MD of Brazeau has had on the ID 14's tax base, two people haven't been saying much.

West Yellowhead MLA Dr. Ian Reid and Whitecourt MLA Peter Trynchy aren't talking about a $65 million loss of assessment or a possible 25 per cent increase in taxes for ID 14 ratepayers.

It's not really surprising they're not saying much now - the two never asked the opinion of the local taxpayers when the government decided to go ahead with the formation of the new MD.

When Trynchy did decide to say something it was only to scoff at the fears of the Yellowhead school division, claiming the division is excessively rich.

The division is not overly rich. Sure, it has one of the highest tax requisitions in the province, but Yellowhead is a large area, and the division has a comparable per pupil expenditure and a relatively low administration expenditure per pupil.

When asked about the loss of tax assessment Reid says the government is working on a solution. Meanwhile the ID 14 can't send out its 1988 tax forms because they are not sure how to set the rates.

Trynchy and Reid were elected to represent the concerns of this riding in the provincial government. It is time for them to start doing so and come up with some straight answers on this issue.

County to honor outstanding people

The County of Parkland is honoring residents who are outstanding through a recognition of achievements program.

This is the first year for the awards, says county public relations coordinator Blair Johnson. County residents who excelled in the areas of arts and culture, community services and athletic events will be honored.

The competition is open to all county residents, including those in Stony Plain and Spruce Grove.

Awards for arts and culture and athletics will be based on the individual or team's placing in competitions on provincial, national and international levels.

Johnson uses a hockey team as an example. If they have won on a provincial level, then went on to place in national and international competitions, the team would be eligible for three awards.

But anyone who has excelled can be nominated, says Johnson.

Honors for community involvement will be judged on the type of contribution to the community.

"If they've done something that deserves recognition then they'll get it," says Johnson, adding county council makes the final decision on winners.

Winners will be recognized with certificates and medallions, possibly at a function later in the year, although Johnson says the type of event depends on how many people are nominated.

Nomination forms are available at the county of Parkland office. The deadline for nominations is Feb. 15. For more information contact Blair Johnson at 963-2231.

School board reviews programs

The Twin Rivers School Division No. 65 has initiated a special review of education programs and services.

A four-page questionnaire has been sent home with students.

As part of the review, all parents of children with special needs in the division, including those enrolled in privately operated kindergartens, are being asked to complete the questions.

In addition, a number of parents will be randomly selected for a follow-up interview during the Feb. 7-10 period.

Driver receives jail term

A Tomahawk man has been handed a four-month jail term after pleading guilty to two driving-related offences.

Arnold Adair Pryor, 25, appeared in Drayton Valley Provincial Court last week and pleaded guilty to charges of the dangerous operation of a vehicle and impaired driving. He was also prohibited from driving for a two-year period.

MD account 'respectable'

The $3.5-million in assets currently held by the Brazeau municipal district aren't enough, says finance director Bill Fleming.

The provincial government recommends municipalities maintain at least 25 per cent of yearly tax levies in their coffers.

Although the predicted 1989 tax levy stands at just over $12 million, Fleming pointed out that what's currently in the MD's account, "doesn't cover the 25 per cent by a long shot because there's other money in there."

He added, however, the $3.5 million in the bank is a "respectable" number that is close to what the municipality expected for its first full year in operation.

"It's about where we wanted to be," Fleming said. "We achieved our budgeting goal."

School requisition payments are due in March, leading the MD to agree to a $2 million borrowing scheme that will be used if required.

"You have to make sure you cover every angle," said Fleming.

A full financial statement is due at the end of February.

Snow a pleasant sight

Late December and early January snowfalls were a welcome sight to most Alberta farmers, especially in southern parts of the province.

The precipitation received to date in 1989 has been encouraging and has revived hopes that normal or above-normal precipitation will fall this year.

Monthly precipitation totals were well below normal for four of the first five months of 1988. Last year's dry spring followed a mild dry winter and caused delays in seeding as farmers waited for moisture before seeding their crops. Total rainfall in April and May was only 20 per cent of normal in southern and southcentral Alberta.

June and July rains dispelled drought conditions in central and northern areas, but rain was inadequate to meet crop and water supply needs in the east central and southern parts of Alberta which experienced drought conditions most of the summer.

Precipitation during the fall was generally below normal, raising concern about another dry winter. The 1988 average annual total precipitation for 18 weather stations in Alberta was 439.1 mm, very close to the long-term average of 438.8 mm. This statistic hides the fact southern Alberta was very dry, central Alberta was near average and the Peace region was wetter than normal.

Average annual temperatures for 1988 were about two degrees Celsius above normal across the province.

Everyone should have a will

It's one of those things too many of us are likely to put off. But neglecting to make your will is potentially serious for your family and others you want to remember.

In fact, it's easy to prepare your will and once it's signed and put away in a safety deposit box, you'll have the satisfaction of knowing you've done the right thing, and you'll be sure your family will be spared the kind of hassles that can develop when someone dies intestate.

If there is no will at death, the Surrogate Court in your province will appoint an executor and there is no guarantee it will be someone of whom you would have approved. In any event, the distribution of your estate is then entirely at the discretion of the executor — according to the law, but not necessarily according to your wishes, because there was no legal record of what you wanted.

If you've dragging your heels in the will department, it makes good sense to remedy the problem as soon as possible. Almost always, you should ask your lawyer to help, for although do-it-yourself wills are legal in most parts of Canada, they can lead to problems your beneficiaries really don't need.

Do your homework

Before you go to the lawyer's office, it's a good idea to do some homework. That means assembling details of all your assets, plus locations and numbers of all insurance information and any support arrangements outstanding for ex-spouses and children from previous marriages. Most trust companies provide helpful booklets to show you what's needed.

You should also give some thought to whom you wish to name as your executor — the person who makes sure your intentions are carried out after death.

Then, equipped with all the information needed, your lawyer will be able to draw up the actual will, listing your bequests and specifying the disposition of your estate.

One last word: Most lawyers recommend reviewing your will every three years or whenever your circumstances change.

For example, your net worth may increase or you may change your mind about a bequest. Furthermore, if you marry or remarry, your will is automatically invalidated so that a new one should be drawn up without delay.

Beware — con men still around

Both the "bank inspector" and "found money" frauds have been around Canada for decades and there have been countless warnings.

But unwary Canadians — often older people living alone — are still being cheated by the fast-talking con men who pull them off time after time.

The first kind is perpetrated by a fraud artist claiming to be a "bank inspector." He asks you to "help" by withdrawing funds from your account to trap an embezzler or find out who has been passing counterfeit funds. The victim does what he asks and hands over the money on the understanding it will be re-deposited later. Needless to say, it never is.

Or a "found money" victim is persuaded to withdraw funds and entrust them to the con artist to demonstrate "good faith" and with the promise to share a large amount of money conveniently "found" on the street.

Unbelievable but true

Unbelievable? Maybe frauds like this do seem that way as you read about them now. But the facts are they have been highly successful all over Canada for many years.

Remember, banks, other financial institutions and the police will never ask you to withdraw funds in this way.

Remember too that if a properly completed withdrawal slip is presented at the wicket with your signature, the teller has no option in law but to follow your instructions and hand over your money.

Then it's too late and another fraud has succeeded. Make sure it doesn't happen to you!

Self-employed increase

Increasing numbers of Canadians are choosing the independence route, according to Statistics Canada. They're the self-employed — one worker in seven for a total of 1.6 million in 1986, the last year for which figures are available. These are highlights from a StatsCan report.

Self-employment is more common among men than women. In 1986, 17 per cent of all male workers were self-employed, against only eight per cent of women. But self-employment is growing faster among women than men. From 1986, self-employed women increased 118 per cent, against an increase of only 39 per cent among men.

The incidence of self-employment increases with age. In 1986, only six per cent of workers aged 15 to 24 were self-employed compared with almost half of all workers aged 65 and over.

Between 1975 and 1986, the largest gains in self-employment by industry were in business services, fishing and trapping, logging and forestry, personal and household services, real estate operators, insurance agents and wholesale trade.

The self-employed work longer hours than employees. In 1986, 45 per cent of self-employed men usually worked 50 or more hours a week, as did 20 per cent of women. Among employees, only 10 per cent of males and three per cent of women worked as long.

Shelters good idea

If you're in the fortunate position of having more pension income than you need, you'll definitely want to consider sheltering all or part of it in your RRSP, especially since 1989 is the last year you'll be able to "top up" in this way.

For tax years 1988 and 1989, but not after that, you can transfer all or part of your pension income to your RRSP in addition to your regular contribution limit. And for this purpose, "pension income" includes Canada Pension Plan and old age security payments, as well as income from registered pension plans and annuities.

Better yet — your spouse can also transfer all or part of his or her pension income into an RRSP and if this is the only income your spouse has, you can take full advantage of the married exemption.

But notwithstanding all of that, there may be a fly in the ointment in the form of the new "Alternative Minimum Tax" (AMT). Pension income transfers could affect you adversely under the AMT provisions.

You may very well be entirely in the clear and benefit from the full amount. Or these transfers might trigger only minor AMT liability, so you can still come out ahead on the balance.

In order to find out exactly what your position will be, it's a good idea to get expert advice from your tax adviser.

Tax bills continuing to rise

Canadians' direct and indirect tax bills are continuing their upward spiral, according to the Fraser Institute, an independent research group. The institute calculated the average Canadian family's gross income for 1988 would be $39,500, of which more than half — $20,697 or 52.4 per cent — would be needed to pay income taxes, sales taxes, excise and property taxes and deductions for pension programs.

Surprisingly perhaps, the Fraser group said Albertans' tax load is the highest in Canada at 60.8 per cent despite the fact Alberta has no retail sales tax.

Quebec's taxes ranked second at 62.9 per cent and Ontario's third at 51.4 per cent.

Other provinces' rates were: 50.6 per cent in British Columbia; 50.5 per cent in Saskatchewan; 47.9 per cent in Manitoba; 43.9 per cent in New Brunswick; 41.9 per cent in Nova Scotia; 39 per cent in Newfoundland; and 36 per cent in Prince Edward Island.

It's Loonie time July 1

Canada's new $1 coin — the Loonie — finally comes into its own July 1, 1989. That's when the Bank of Canada will cease distribution of new $1 bills.

The Loonie has been around since July 1, 1987 and 112,000,000 were distributed in that year alone. But it has been issued in conjunction with new $1 bills and Canadians have tended to hoard the good-looking new coin, so not too many Loonies have been seen in general circulation.

But from mid-'89 onwards, we'll see the bill begin to disappear as the Loonie comes into its own. It's considered a special benefit for users and operators of coin merchandising machines and is supposed to ease the perennial shortage of quarters.

It's 'hendecagonal'

In case you've been wondering, the Loonie is officially 'hendecagonal' — or 11-sided, to you. Struck by the Royal Canadian Mint, the Loonie is golden in color and utilizes Canada's finest natural resources," the Bank of Canada says.

"It is produced from nickel electroplated with bronze which makes it both light and durable and of the finest quality. In selecting this composition for the new currency, Canada further enhances her excellent reputation as the world's foremost nickel producer."

The design, like those of Canada's nickel and quarter, is inspired by our fauna. It depicts the common loon, "that true and lasting symbol of the Canadian wilderness, in a magnificent design created by Canadian artist Robert-Ralf Carmichael. It is therefore, with much pride the new Canadian dollar coin makes its historical entrance," the central bank said.

40 'ones' for $50

Meanwhile, if you're a collector or just sentimental about the old green bill, the bank has a special deal. You can buy 40 $1 bills for $50, plus tax, in single, uncut sheets suitable for framing.

The full sheet of 40 notes measures about 26.5 by 22 inches (76.2 by 55.8 centimeters) and is on sale across the counter at the Bank of Canada's nine agencies. The price is $50 per sheet, plus provincial sales tax and "each sheet will have been inspected, rolled and placed in a protective tube."

Premium explained

Why the premium — $50 for $40 worth of bills? Spokesman Gordon May explained the bank won't make a profit because the cost of individually inspecting and packaging the sheets works out to just over $10 each.

But you'll always be able to get the face value of the bills — $40, that is — if you ever run short, the spokesman promises.

Savings bonds rise despite low interest

The 1988-89 series of Canada Savings Bonds' rate of 9.5 per cent in the first year was something of a disappointment for investors who had thought the Department of Finance might spring to possibly 10 per cent, or even a bit more.

Notwithstanding, as usual Canadians bought plenty of them — with gross sales reaching $14,962 billion as of Nov. 24, Finance Minister Michael Wilson announced. After allowance for redemptions of past series since the beginning of October, net purchases of the new bonds were $6.454 billion.

Included in the gross sales figure was $2.135 billion of bonds bought through the Payroll Savings Plan. This represents an overall increase of seven per cent over 1987 and was a new record.

Incidentally, if you are still holding CSBs issued prior to 1982 ($1 to $36 inclusive), you'd better hurry on over to your bank or broker and cash them in right away because they all matured Nov. 1 and will pay no further interest.

The rate for the last six series ($7 to $42 inclusive) was increased to 9.5 per cent to the year beginning Nov. 1. After this one-year period, annual rates of seven per cent for $38 and $39, 6.5 per cent for $40 and 5.75 per cent for $41 will continue to apply.

TD RSP
BUILDING FOR YOUR FUTURE

RRSP options are available Spousal RRSPs split income, saves money

When the time finally comes for well-earned retirement or to mature your RRSP savings to provide income for some other purpose, there are three main options open. You can decide the time has come whenever you like, but it can't be later than the year in which you become 71.

The first option — simply to cash in your RRSP holdings — is really no option at all in normal circumstances because the full proceeds are all immediately subject to tax in one year. It would be a pretty painful experience indeed for most people who went that route.

Realistically, the choice is between establishing a registered retirement income fund (RRIF) and buying a lifetime or "term certain" annuity. Both have advantages and disadvantages; your individual needs and circumstances will decide what's best for you. Or conceivably you might decide to combine options.

How much income?

It's important to calculate what income you'll need in retirement.

Will you be earning money from a part-time job or consulting? Do you have a steady flow of funds from other investment sources? How old are you? What's your marital status? What's your life expectancy?

And perhaps most important of all, would you be happiest with a fixed monthly income you don't have to worry about? Or will you continue to enjoy the challenges of managing your own investments?

Flexible payout vehicle

The RRIF is a flexible payout mechanism designed to help minimize tax, maximize cash flow and fight inflation. Income from investments in a RRIF is not subject to immediate tax; it can contain a range of investments so it can still work for you in retirement; and by including a proportion of investments with growth potential, it can offset inflation. It doesn't guarantee an income after age 90.

Annuity fixes income

If you choose the annuity route, you can sit back and depend on a fixed income, although obviously the amount will depend on the size of your RRSP investment and the type of annuity you buy.

Unlike a RRIF, however, the rate of return of an annuity is established at the time of purchase and is fixed from then on. Lifetime (or "life survivor" annuities are usually rather more costly than fixed-term instruments because the lifelong versions don't guarantee the eventual cost to the firm selling them.

Huge range of products

There's an enormous range of RRIF and annuity products to be had out there in the marketplace and it's the easiest thing in the world to make an expensive mistake you could regret for the rest of your life.

For instance, proceeds for even the simplest annuities vary greatly among different insurance companies and the combinations, permutations and payouts available among different RRIF packages can be even more confusing and potentially dangerous.

Do your homework thoroughly; take all the time you need; and get advice from knowledgeable people.

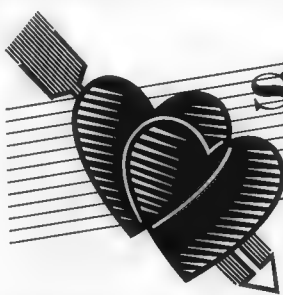

Spousal registered retirement savings plans (RRSPs) are designed to split retirement income between spouses, so that even when tax is paid by both, the total tax will be much less than if the income were reported by just one taxpayer.

You can designate a portion or all of your RRSP deposits, within your contribution limit, to a spousal RRSP. When that RRSP is matured, the income will go to your spouse.

Here's an example. You decide to retire early, at age 55, and for the next 10 years (until you start to collect Canada pension plan and old age security payments), your only source of income will be from an annuity bought with RRSP savings.

We'll assume the annuity provides an annual taxable income (after personal deductions) of $60,000 a year. At current federal and provincial rates, your tax would amount to about $20,000 (26% on the first $27,500, 40% on the next $27,500 and 45% on the remaining $5,000. The precise rates will depend on which province you live in.)

But suppose that half your RRSP savings were held by your spouse. That way, you would each have taxable income of $30,000 and pay tax of about $8,000 (26% on the first $27,500 of income and 40% on the remaining $2,500). Between you, your total tax bill is $16,000, a saving of about $4,000 every year.

Machine, man battle for skates

By Frank Ryan
Machine versus man.
That's the situation locally when it comes to sharpening skates.

The town has installed a computer-controlled machine in the sports centre.

That leaves Rick's Sporting Goods in the Derrick Mall as the only outlet doing custom sharpening.

The town received $91 from computer sharpening sales as their 10 per cent profit from the November and December sales.

Meanwhile, Rick Meston estimates his business is up slightly over last year. "I'm doing about 160 pairs a week," Meston says.

Last year, there was a custom skate sharpening outlet in the arena. But the computer-controlled machine replaced that.

Despite the convenience of the computer shaper at the sports centre, a survey done by The Western Review showed that people still like the hands on custom job.

Glen Johnson, interim coach of the midget Clippers, is one of those who prefer Rick's.

"The older boys like the custom grind. That's why they go to Rick's for the hands on approach," Johnson says.

According to Johnson, the machine has caused some problems.

"The machine has a mind of its own. You can't see the skates properly," Johnson admits.

Dwight Kuzek, who has three boys playing hockey, says he takes their skates to Rick's. "The machine is not reliable. I don't feel confident with it," Kuzek adds.

While many teams prefer the custom grind, a lot of people using the outdoor rink like the convenience of the machine at the sports centre.

Evansburg man handed jail term

An Evansburg man was handed a total of four-and-a-half months in jail after he pleaded guilty to three counts of drunken driving.

Dale Frederick Braun, 23, pleaded guilty to two counts of driving over the .08 mg blood alcohol limit in Drayton Valley and received a four-month total sentence.

He also received a 14-day jail term, to be served consecutively, after pleading guilty to a related offence in the Evansburg area.

Braun was also prohibited from driving for three years.

Sport hosts benefit

By Alister Thomas
Alberta Sport Council

If an Alberta community ever needs an economic shot in the arm it should consider hosting an Alberta Games — either at the zone or provincial level.

In 1987, the Alberta Sport Council, in cooperation with Alberta Recreation and Parks, undertook a project to develop and apply a model for measuring the economic impact of Games on host communities. Studies were performed on four zone Games: the Northwestern Alberta Summer Games in Grande Prairie, the Southern Alberta Summer Games in Nanton, Big Country Winter Games in Sundre and Northeastern Alberta Winter Games in Lac La Biche — and two provincial Games, the 1987 Alberta Summer Games in Strathcona County and the 1988 Alberta Winter Games in Red Deer.

The report, entitled The Economic Impact on Communities Hosting Games, states there are six areas of benefits: Volunteers gain new skills and experiences; the volunteer support structure of the host community is enhanced; members of the host community experience working toward a common goal; the host community gains regional or provincial exposure through coverage of the Games; facilities are enhanced; and, the host community receives an economic boost from the expenditures or participants, spectators and the purchase of materials and supplies for the Games.

According to the study all six Games generated about $3.6 million in direct expenditures — $1.1 million from visitor spending, $1.2 million from grants and $1.3 million from spending by the organizing committees.

Communities that wish to bid to host the 1991 Alberta Summer Games have until March 1 to do so.

For further information about hosting Alberta Games, contact the Alberta Sport Council, Zone 5 office at 963-9158.

Clinics scheduled for area

Stick to budget — bankers

Sometimes it's easy to forget that what you buy you have to pay for. So here are a few guidelines to help you keep control of your financial affairs, especially your debts. They're courtesy of those who know most of all about money — your friendly neighborhood bankers. They say:

Make a budget for yourself and stick to it. Make sure you know what is coming in and what is going out. Avoid impulse buying. Ask yourself: If I had to pay in cold, hard cash, would I make this purchase? Make a habit of comparison shopping. Never buy anything, and that includes credit, without comparing costs and values.

Always read and make sure you understand application forms before you sign them.

Be careful of co-signing a loan or guaranteeing a loan on behalf of others. Remember you could end up paying off the loan if the borrower cannot handle it. Ask the same questions of the borrower the lender would ask.

Be knowledgeable about the cost of credit. Are you using the right type for your purpose? Are you using a more expensive form of credit than necessary?

Be sensible about the number of credit cards you use. How many do you really need? Are you using them simply because you have them?

Keep track with receipts

Keep track of all credit purchases. Save the receipts for checking against the monthly statements and for keeping a running total of your obligations.

A suggestion: Get an extra cheque register (the part of the cheque book where you keep track of deposits and withdrawals). Use the "cheques" column for noting credit payments. The "balance" could record how much you owe in total.

Remember, whether you use cash, a cheque, a card or loan to pay for your purchases, check out the reputation of the merchant, the store's return policies and the product warranty.

Controlling stress important

Dr. Hans Selye, the world-renowned stress expert, once defined stress as "the rate of wear and tear on the body."

The late Dr. Selye also said stress isn't all bad. Some of it is positive, even joyful - as when you kiss someone you love or attend a happy occasion such as a wedding.

Then there's negative stress - linked to unemployment, marriage problems, death of a spouse, money worries, poor housing or concerns about children. There are dozens of reasons for Canadian men and women to feel "under stress."

If people can't cope with stress, it may lead to high blood pressure, heart disease, ulcers, migraine headaches, asthma or dependence on alcohol and drugs. Health authorities say stress is one of the leading causes of disease in our society.

How can you control stress, so it doesn't result in a serious condition?

Experts say you should be aware of the warning signs. They include rapid heartbeat, sweaty palms, a stomach in knots, short temper, or feeling irritable or inadequate. To get over these feelings, some people may go on an eating binge, or drink too much "to escape." They may turn to tranquilizers, sleeping pills or cigarettes, which won't help at all. In fact, any of these escape mechanisms may impair health even more.

Experts say people under stress should accept it as a part of life. They should realize that some things just can't be changed.

Stress counsellors offer coping techniques: Set priorities and organize time, attending to essential tasks first. Eat the right foods. Get enough rest. Revitalize through exercise.

Counsellors emphasize that it's just common sense to realize a body in poor physical shape won't be able to handle stress very well.

It's also suggested that relaxation techniques are useful: deep breathing, stretching, walking, yoga. For men, expressing emotion rather than repressing it often helps.

It may help to talk over anxieties with someone in the family, a good friend, a member of the clergy or a sympathetic physician - someone who will take time to listen. If the stress problems are very serious it may be useful to seek professional help and to get a good book or two with sound information on stress management.

Experts also say "Listen to the body. It will tell you if you're pushing too hard or taking things too seriously. And look on the funny side. Give yourself a treat once in a while. Develop a new hobby. Do something for somebody else."

Solutions may not be easy, especially in a time of recession. Yet stress counsellors say being aware of stress, accepting it and adjusting to it are the basics of coping.

Did you know?

To stay alert, to stay alive, when lightning strikes you should:

Stay indoors; stay away from open doors, windows, fireplaces, radiators, stoves, metal pipes, sinks, and plug-in electrical equipment like radios, television sets, lamps and refrigerators.

Don't use plug-in electrical equipment like hair dryers during an electrical storm. Don't use the telephone unless necessary.

It's a hit-and-miss business says local dealer

Amassing saleable collectibles is a hit-and-miss business, say the owners of local second-hand stores.

"Sometimes you get a good deal, sometimes you don't," insists Danny Thompson of Brendan's New and Used. Thompson pointed to a fiddle he recently sold for $65 — an instrument the new owner received a $4,000 offer for.

Most of the time, however, the deals are less than spectacular. Usually a quick sale is the prime objective.

"You don't get a steal of a deal too often," Thompson said. "You buy a lot of stuff that you won't ever move...it averages out."

A lifelong Drayton Valley resident, Thompson is also a licensed auctioneer. He said holding monthly consignment auctions helps to reduce an ever-increasing inventory.

There are still other ways of avoiding an excess accumulation of merchandise.

"Buy cheap and sell at a reasonable price," says Marv Martin, owner of Marv's New and Used Goods.

Martin acknowledges that, with such an array of used goods on the market, he sometimes doesn't even know what he's buying.

He added it usually never takes long before a customer unravels such mysteries for him.

Said Martin: "Some of the best bargains in town are found right here."

Bargains are one thing. Antiques are quite another.

Thompson, who's always had a weakness for uncommon items, said he occasionally discovers irresistible trinkets.

"I call it an antique because it's a collectible," he noted, illustrating this point by noting recent acquisitions such as a circa 1930 radio — in perfect working condition — or a classic sewing machine built in 1898.

"Once I saw it I couldn't refuse it," said Thompson of the radio.

Human activities affect climate

Have you ever wondered what a change in climate in your community could mean?

For farmers, that could translate into a longer but dryer growing season. More natural heat would result in lower home heating bills, but you may have to pay a premium for water.

Within the last century, there has been an observed global increase in the atmospheric temperature at the earth's surface of 0.7 C. It is speculated this is in large part due to increased emissions of what are known as greenhouse gases. Carbon dioxide, freon, methane and nitrous oxide act together as a blanket to trap heat close to the surface of the earth, creating a "greenhouse effect."

Although freon gases (also known as chlorofluorocarbons or CFCs) are far less abundant than carbon dioxide, their effect on climate, molecule for molecule, is about 10,000 times more powerful.

CFCs affect the earth's upper atmosphere not only as a greenhouse gas, but also as a destroyer of the ozone layer — a layer of gases that protects us from the damaging rays of the sun. CFCs are used in spray cans, as coolants in refrigerators and air conditioners, as solvents for cleaning electronic equipment, and in manufacturing foam insulating padding.

The rate at which the planet's climate will change depends largely on the activities of humans. Increases in tropical deforestation and the use of coal, plus a lack of technological advances in energy usage could result in a global temperature change of up to 4.5 C by the year 2015. This warming will be more pronounced at high latitudes (such as Canada) and less so at the equator.

While climate change and depletion of the ozone layer are global concerns, you can help by making informed choices about the products you buy:

Insulate with fiberglass, not polyurethane foam; choose cardboard egg cartons, not foamed plastic.

AG society accepting nominations

By Gerald Laarhuis
District agriculturist

The Drayton Valley Agricultural Society is now accepting nominations of individuals who have made outstanding contributions to the development and maintenance of rural communities in the Drayton Valley district.

The society feels there are several local people who have made major commitments to development of rural communities and organizations. Through this involvement they have enhanced the quality of rural life.

Often the effort goes on without much encouragement and recognition. Because these people are private individuals they have no financially-related motives for their efforts — they are just trying to make their community a better place to live. It is hoped the awards will not only recognize past efforts, but encourage future community-enhancing efforts.

The recognition will be in the form of a "western theme" bronze sculpture and plaque. Criteria for selection of recipients will be based on volunteer efforts in the rural community over an extended period of time. Any individual or organization can nominate candidates who they feel should receive the award. Included with the names of the nominees should be a brief sketch outlining the nominee's involvement and the name and address of the nominator.

This year a special request is being made to nominate those who have retired from active farming or rural life, but have made significant contributions in the past. For the first few years an effort will be made to catch up for the awards which could have been given for the past decades.

Nominations must be received prior to Feb. 17. The presentation of awards will be made at the Cattle Baron's Ball March 11.

Lenore Millis and bottle depot employee Walter Kochansky sort through bottles.

Regulation causes state of confusion

Bottle depots across the province are scurrying to come to grips with new regulations that have opened up the bottle-deposit market by a wide margin.

Since Jan. 19, all bottled water, juice, non-alcoholic beer and wine containers can be returned for a refund.

The changes have resulted in a "state of confusion" for bottle operators, says Lenore Millis, manager of the Beehive depot.

"It's a headache for all bottle depot operators," she said. "Who do we ship (these new bottles) to?"

Millis added that many customers are also confused by the new rules.

Containers must be clearly labelled refundable, she said. Old fruit-juice bottles, for instance, aren't eligible unless manufacturers have clearly marked them as returnable.

"Some people have been saving (containers) since Christmas," noted Millis. "But they have to say Return on them."

One customer, apparently perplexed by the new regulations, delivered soup and beer cans to the local depot, said Millis.

Returnable containers one litre or less are worth a nickel. Bottles and cans larger than one litre are worth 20 cents.

However, Millis noted Coca Cola has decided to maintain the old price for its one-litre (20 cents) and 10-ounce (10 cents) glass bottles.

Coke wants all its glass bottles returned and therefore continues to offer the higher price, said Millis.

Moreover, containers bought at the old deposit rate will be worth their former return price.

Cans are also subject to the new regulations.

Cans with gold lids are now worth five cents while silver-topped cans can be returned for a two-cent refund.

Millis said the amendments to the Beverage Container Act were completed for two reasons: "To keep these things out of the garbage dumps and to make it easier for (depot operators), too."

For more information, contact Lenore Millis at 542-3113.

Electrification convention scheduled for Edmonton

The Alberta Federation of Rural Electrification Associations' (REAs) annual convention will be held at the Edmonton Inn Feb. 9 and 10, commencing at 10 a.m.

There will be a panel discussion on the future of REAs. Panel members will include Hon. Al Adair, L. Decore, R. Martin and R. Speaker.

Ted Perry, Saskatchewan Power, will speak on undergrounding. Neil MacDonald, a member of the Public Utilities Board and Orrin Hart, president of the Small Power Producers, will also address the convention.

A number of resolutions dealing with electric power for farmers will be discussed.

Pot-bellied and proud of it

Judy Power feeds her two newest pets — Lady Di and Charlie. The young Vietnamese pot-bellied pigs were purchased at the Odd and Unusual Sale held last year in Innisfail. The Buck Creek area resident says she hopes to halter-break the pigs by spring time. She says the two pets are the only ones of their kind living in the area. Only six months old, Power notes that Lady Di and Charlie "won't get much taller, but they'll get wider."

Traffic concerns to be addressed

Residents concerned about the increased traffic on the Lodgepole Highway are invited to a meeting tomorrow (Wednesday, Feb. 1) night in the Violet Grove Hall.

The public meeting starts at 7 p.m.

Companies ask locals to pitch in for campaign

Industry sponsors of the Pitch-In campaign in Alberta are providing coordinators with specially imprinted, photo-degradable plastic garbage bags for distribution to schools and other community groups wishing to partake in the annual campaign which takes place May 1-7.

"As a result of the continued support obtained from NOVA Corporation of Alberta, Husky Oil and Novacor Chemicals we will be increasing the supply of popular free garbage bags available to schools and community groups and for the first time bags will be photo-degradable," says Betty Ballorn, chairman, Outdoors Unlittered, sponsors of the Pitch-In campaign in Alberta.

Pitch-In coordinators have distributed thousands of comprehensive information packs to schools, scouts, guides, chambers of commerce, local government and many community-based organizations to make them aware of the campaign.

Organizers or individuals wishing to plan a project for Pitch-In and requiring further information or free garbage bags can contact Pitch-In, 45-9912 106 St., Edmonton, AB T5K 1C5.

Ethical presentation

Dr. Larry Ferguson, executive director of the Alberta School Trustees Association (left), and former Twin Rivers school division official trustee Rene Marriner hold up the trustee Code of Ethics. The Code of Ethics was presented to the new Twin Rivers trustees at their organizational meeting on Jan. 17. The school board meets again on Wednesday. The day-long meeting will be held at the school division's main office.

MATFP conference talks management

Innovations in farm management will be the thrust of Marty Thornton's presentation to this year's Managing Agricultural Technology for Profit (MATFP) conference.

Thornton is one of more than 20 speakers who are on the line-up for the 1989 MATFP conference March 5 through 9 at the Kananaskis Lodge. He has had 11 years of management experience overseeing more than 60,000 acres for the People Banks of Bloomington, Illinois. Currently Thornton is vice president and senior farm manager of the bank and was recently honored as "eastern region farm manager of the year" by the Ciba-Gray Corporation.

Thornton's philosophy on successful farm management focuses on farmers knowing who they are, where they are and where they are going. He believes in not being complacent and encourages his employees to challenge old ideas that may need rethinking. This includes a willingness to remain open to new ideas, try them and then change directions to quickly adopt the new idea or technique that gives a competitive edge.

MATFP registration forms are available from Alberta Agriculture district offices, Alberta Wheat Pool elevators, the UFA and the farm business management branch in Olds.

Battle River getting healthy start in '89

Members attending the Battle River Tourist Association meeting held in Beaumont recently were told that 1989 has kicked off in a healthy and busy manner.

Memberships are coming in daily; the 1989 literature program is well in hand; the 1989 tourist information centre training program is scheduled; an ambitious travel show circuit is in place; a new promotional advertising scheme is being developed; team tourism is on stream; a job re-entry training program for women is in progress and a similar one is being developed for consideration in late 1989 or 1990.

A brand new, colorful and uniquely designed lure brochure has been developed and some 40,000 will be in stock by late February. With the approval of some team tourism funding, received on a 50/50 matched funding basis, the association was able to order a new static display for use in trade shows. The display will feature a new look in photo presentation and will be an excellent promotional tool for the entire Battle River Country area.

Congratulations

Nicky Baine

Winner of the Sturdi Wood Women's Club Children's Playhouse.

We would like to thank everyone who bought a ticket and helped to raise money for the Drayton Valley Santas Anonymous.

Prepare for weather

Being prepared with information related to climate and its variability can help you make agricultural and water management decisions says an Alberta Agriculture weather resource specialist.

Peter Dzikowski is one of two keynote speakers who will lead off this year's Wetlands, Wildlife and Agriculture conference Feb. 15 through 17 in Edmonton.

Dzikowski will address climate change and climate issues related to wetlands and agriculture along with how to include climate information in decision making.

The conference will focus on solutions to problems discussed at the 1988 conference.

The conference is open to anyone interested in agricultural wetlands including landowners, local authorities, consultants, researchers, nongovernment organizations and government officials.

Registration and other information is available from Lynne Kemper, Alberta Water Resources Commission, 422-4232 or Anne Naeth at 432-5338 or 432-2771.

Child dayhome holds first in-service day

The Services for Children dayhome organization will be holding its first in-service tonight (Tuesday).

Contact person Rita Lindberg-Davis says the group plans to hold the in-service on the last Tuesday of the month from now on.

Parents, dayhome providers and the Home Visitor will be in attendance, she said.

The Home Visitor makes regular visits to the seven approved dayhomes in Drayton Valley.

Lindberg-Davis, who operates a licensed dayhome facility, said Services for Children is designed to provide childcare in a home environment.

She added that Services for Children is the only organization with a contract to offer such a service in the area.

What Ever Happened to Sylvia's Sewing Room?

In 1973, Sylvia Rempel identified a golden opportunity. ☒ Namely, to provide Canadians with a good fitting, high quality and reasonably priced outerwear and sportswear line.

☒ What began with a big dream and a modest $7,000 investment, is today the Sun Ice Corporation, a thriving Canadian enterprise with 1988 domestic sales of $18 million and $4 million in exports to the United States.

☒ An example of Alberta's diversifying economy.

☒ SYLVIA REMPEL ON GETTING

STARTED: "I ended my first year with a $16,000 loss and a wealth of experience. My friends thought I was crazy, but I kept at it. Soon the orders were rolling in."

☒ "When my basement would no longer do, we moved into an abandoned pool hall in the old St. Louis hotel. It was no Buckingham Palace — but the price was right."

☒ "Today, we employ over 200 people and produce in excess of 200,000 garments a year."

☒ SYLVIA REMPEL ON INITIATIVE:

"Nobody owes you anything. If you want it, you've got to get it yourself. And that takes initiative."

☒ Character ☒ "Forget the word 'can't' — it's the ugliest word in the English language."

☒ "If opportunity knocks, go for it. Set standards for yourself. Make them tough enough to challenge you — but realistic too."

☒ "Be patient. And remember, you can learn as much from your mistakes as you can from your triumphs. I certainly did."

☒ SYLVIA REMPEL ON ALBERTA'S ECONOMY:

"Some people see Alberta as an oil and gas economy — and that's it. I disagree."

☒ "Alberta is full of opportunities for all sorts of businesses. Look at mine; we continued to grow right through the 1982 recession. It was tough — but with the help of government programs, we made it."

☒ "There are millions of opportunities in Alberta (I have a secret list). All you have to do is look for them. And then, be prepared to work for them. Success has never fallen into anyone's lap."

ALBERTA CAREER DEVELOPMENT AND EMPLOYMENT ON SYLVIA REMPEL:

Make no mistake. Sylvia Rempel's success story is not about luck — it's about an individual who recognized opportunity beyond Alberta's "traditional" economy. And through plain hard work and dedication made that dream come true.

☒ We can help you adapt to our diversifying economy with training counselling and job creation programs

Berryhill re-elected

By Joyce Schadeck

The Jan. 22 pancake breakfast was enjoyed by many. There will be another Feb. 12. As Valentine's day is close the theme for this outing will be strawberry and whip cream pancakes. The breakfast will be held during the mixed open bonspiel Feb. 9 to 12.

The Enron Oil foursome of Clarence Layden, Ron Ensminger, Kevin Gremm and Ken Middlemiss defeated the Sam Domke team to win the first event in the recent men's open bonspiel. Taking the second event was the Colin Kinniburgh, Gordon Kinniburgh, Vern Kuzio and Lohm Lang team. And in the third event victory went to the Bill Specht, Ralph McKay, Bill Stadnyk and Joe Labuda team from Wabamun.

Bina Berryhill was re-elected president of the Tomahawk Silver Tops recently with Alma Schadeck as vice president, Marie Pearce was installed as secretary and Dorothy Domke is now treasurer.

The Capra Valley Chapter of the Alberta Goat Breeders Association recently held their annual elections. All three incumbents — Edna Hockley, president; Marjorie Boake, vice president and Joyce Schadeck, secretary/treasurer — were returned to office.

Plans are underway to upgrade the Canada Day goat show in Tomahawk to a Canadian Goat Society 'sanctioned' show. Many shows around Alberta have progressed to this status and it is hoped competition will increase with the new format.

Edna Hockley, Joan Ulderink and Joyce Schadeck chalked up several awards and ribbons in various shows during the past season.

On Jan. 21 there was a seminar in Barrhead and out of this meeting arose a new division of AGBA —Chevron Producers of Alberta (goat meat). There are many goat keepers in the northern half of the province and restructuring of the AGBA into separate divisions for meat, dairy, purebred, mohair, pigmy, etc. is underway in order to better plan government input in the different divisions. Jim Turnbull of the Capra Valley Chapter is president and Joyce Schadeck is president. Members in this division must also be members of the AGBA.

The next Capra Valley meeting is Feb. 1 at the Westwind Motor Inn in Drayton Valley at 10 a.m.

Butterflies back for area 4-Hers

By Harley Read
Regional 4-H
Winter Assistant

The butterflies are out and it's not even spring!

Yes, it's that time of the 4-H year when knees begin knocking and butterflies begin flying around 4-Hers' stomachs.

The public speaking competitions are about to begin at club level and continue on to district, regional and provincial competitions. Every club will be having its own speak-off sometime in the next month, when each member will have a chance at communicating in the form of a written speech and an impromptu.

To be nervous is common for speakers of all ages. A speaker will always experience some form of nervousness, however, by practice and developing confidence, a speaker can learn how to convert that nervousness into positive energy. A smiling face and an energetic delivery while speaking will impress not only the judges, but everyone around you!

There is no doubt public speaking gives a person great experience in the field of communication. The 4-H program gives its members a chance to develop this skill which can be utilized from childhood to adulthood. Therefore, try to avoid looking ahead to the speak-off as a night of horror. Instead, look at it as a chance to talk publicly to your friends. If you have trouble referring to it as public speaking, try the words "public talking" instead. This might make it easier on those people who get nervous by the phrase public speaking.

The 4-H office would like to wish all members the best of luck and encourage all the families and friends to come out and support the 4-Hers at their speak-off.

District competitions will be held in each of your areas with the regional finals hosted by Edson and Westlock. The provincial finals will be in Edmonton this year. Good luck to all!

Fire lights

Todd Annett, a signal technician, attaches one of the four new lights at the four-way stop at 52nd Ave. and 52nd St. The lights, when flashing, will require motorists to stop until fire engines have passed.

Alberta teachers to meet at Edmonton convention

Almost 5,000 north central Alberta teachers will gather at the Edmonton Convention Centre Feb. 9 and 10 to hear presenters address the theme of "Professional challenge - personal best."

Keynote speakers will include Rick Hansen, Ambassador Douglas Roche, Father Larre, Knowlton Nash, Joyce Juntune and Dr. Carl Hurley.

County of Parkland teachers are directly involved in the organization of the convention.

Interested members of the public are invited to attend convention sessions. For further information about the north central teachers' convention contact Mrianne Rogers at the Entwistle school, 727-8811.

30th anniversary

Rudi Merschel, plant manager at the Drayton Valley water treatment plant, celebrated 30 years as a town employee on Jan. 15. Merschel, born in Germany, arrived in Canada in 1951. He farmed, worked at a lumber mill and was the town's first milkman before joining on as a town employee. Merschel says he takes pride in ensuring residents receive clean water. On an average day 450,000-500,000 gallons flow through the plant. In the summer, the rate is double.

Powerhouse courses attract residents

Val Tucker's phone is ringing off the hook.

Tucker, director for Powerhouse Further Education Council is busy accepting registrations and finalizing courses.

About 200 people attended the recent registration sessions, putting their name and money down beside their choice of courses.

In all, Powerhouse offered 37 courses.

Several of them filled up immediately. These include Chinese cooking and computer courses.

"We can never have enough computer courses," Tucker admits.

However, Tucker is somewhat disappointed the 'Be Your Own Boss' course wasn't well received. Despite course costs being cut, it just didn't get the expected response.

There's also a possibility a landscape and gardening course made available through the University of Alberta faculty of extension may have to be cancelled due to poor response.

Two first aid courses and a beginner typing and keyboard course are being added because of the demand.

Overall, Tucker says she's very pleased with the response to the Powerhouse courses.

Cookie-making grandma by day, professional gambler by night.

It's a cut-throat game of chance where the winner takes all and the loser kisses next week's laundry money goodbye.

Bingo — popular cut-throat game of chance

By Belinda Atkinson

I try to hide the fact I'm a first timer.

After all, professional gamblers aren't known for their patience with outsiders, at least that's what I've been told about Las Vegas.

So I strut in casually and put this 'yah-i-know-what-I'm-doing' smirk on my face.

The man at the counter says, "Well?"

I hand him all my money and wait for something in return.

He gives me a bunch of paper cards and returns a "she-doesn't-have-a-clue" look.

I scout the joint for a seasoned but sensitive gamester, see, who will take an innocent under wing and give a little one-on-one of the finer points of the sport.

"This seat taken?"

"No, sit down," says a pro with a kind face.

"Where'd ya get that marker?" I ask casually. "You've never been here before, have you?"

I'm barely in the joint and my cover's blown.

She points to a third counter.

Now I'm ready. I've got my "Dab-O-Ink," also known as the "World's Finest Bingo Marker," my flashboard cards, my bonanzas and my go-gos.

I'm set to scan; eager to ink; ready to kick some numbers squarely in their derivatives...

My informant, the gambler, tells me this particular parlor is small time.

"The real money's in Leduc and Wetaskiwin," she says.

"I know people from Drayton Valley who will travel to Leduc and Wetaskiwin a couple of times a week," she says.

"Me, I'm in it for the fun. It's something to keep me occupied in the winter when I can't work in my garden."

Seems my informant isn't the hard-nosed piker I thought. But the woman next to her, Sophie, is buying Nevadas (the paper version of a slot machine) like there's no bingo tomorrow.)

"I don't like Nevadas myself. Sophie won $100 already but she spent most of it buying more."

So Sophie grapples with the no-arm bandits and the other woman, let's call her Annie, begins the lesson.

There's the standard, four squares, letter X, inside square, letter H, crazy T, three outside lines, block nine and the infamous blackout.

The announcer introduces himself and the audience counters with a simultaneous flick of Bicks.

"B-8, I-19, N-43, B-14..."

Everyone raises, scans, blots, puffs, rests, raises, scans, blots, puffs, rests...

"Bingo," someone yells and the place fills with "OOOhhhhh."

They're angry. You can feel the tension. It's a cut-throat game of chance where the winner takes all and the loser kisses next week's laundry money goodbye.

"I-26, G-57, O-72..."

"Bingo!"

"Ooohhh." Now the crowd is owly. They drag on their cigarettes, raise their Dab-O-Inks and search for inside squares.

"We just heard Grant Fuhr was injured but we don't have any details," the announcer says.

"Oh, who cares? Get on with it," my informant yells.

Seems Annie isn't the innocent vegetable keeper I thought. The woman's got guile.

"O-69, B-9, I-24, B-10..."

"Tell that man to pick some of my numbers," Annie tells a card checker.

He smiles and walks away. There we sit. Sophie's peeling her nine-hundredth Nevadas, Annie's getting frustrated, the room's filling up with smoke, someone behind me named Sandy is collecting $150 for a blackout, and I'm wondering where my windfall is.

I bet you're going to get addicted," my informant laughs.

I'm still waiting for even a fraction of return on my capital and Annie's talking long-term bingo addiction.

By now we've gone through the flashboards, the bonanzas and we're half-way through the go-gos (which, incidentally, means you go till you blackout or join everyone in a chorus of "Ooohh").

My windfall's comfortably hidden away in Sandy's pocket and my cards are a lost cause so I do what any responsible person would do: buy my last 50 cents and take a Nevada.

I peel back the flaps ever so slowly. My heart starts pumping; my head's spinning; my breathing becomes erratic and I can see early retirement in my future.

Two bells and a maple leaf. An orange, a cherry and a leaf. A plum, a bell and an orange. Nothing!

You could say it was a fruitless effort, or, like Annie says, "A cheap night on the town."

"Where else could you spend $20 and have such a good time?" she asks.

I guess Annie's right. Even if I can't retire at 22, at least I know I donated money to some worthwhile community

A lucky winner screams, "Bingo," and the crowd shows disapproval with a chorus of, "Ooohhhh"

"We have another Bingo!"

Discipline, self-control for compulsive spending

By Bev Brooks
District Home Economist
Are you winning the war against the rising cost of living? Sometimes it is very hard to control family spending, especially if you can't identify the weak link in your money management system.

The reasons why you spend are more critical to controlling costs than what you buy or how much you spend. If you know why you're spending, you have taken the first step toward taking charge of your money.

Some people spend because they are compulsive spenders. This can be a dangerous habit in the long run and probably the most difficult to recognize and control. There is no pattern to compulsive spending, but it is often explained as "such a good bargain that I couldn't pass it up." Once this problem is recognized, discipline and self-control are the only cures.

A person will sometimes spend to reward themselves for enduring a crisis. "It has been such an ordeal that I have to have a treat" is often the rationale used to explain purchases. It is best, however, to plan the purchase and make each a part of the family budget.

"If you're going to spend, so am I" is the reason for spending in some families. He buys a snowmobile, so she buys new furniture. This spending pattern can really get out of hand. Good communication and a commitment to shared goals is the best way to make a family financial plan work. Often people think the most expensive product is the best quality. They therefore, spend more money than they need to.

Price, however, is no guarantee of quality! Sometimes the quality of a product, especially a low-cost disposable item, is not that important in the grand scheme of things. These people should ask themselves two questions: What are the big differences between the products? and, do we really need the best?

If you recognize any of these reasons for spending, reflect on the feelings that reinforce this spending pattern. If you shop when you're bored, angry, or depressed, think of alternative ways to vent these feelings.

Try to make changes that will reflect your family's spending goals.

Taking control of family spending means accepting the amount of money you have to spend. Beyond that it involves communication and setting goals that benefit your family. Be proud of your ability to stretch available money as far as possible toward a satisfying lifestyle for your family.

To help you plan your spending, give me a call or stop in at my office and ask for the "budgeting factsheet."

Some children cope better than others

By Val Boyko
Schools are not always the safe, stimulating environment we wish for children.

There are a number of conditions existing in schools that cause considerable stress for children. The stress in this environment depends on the grade level of the child, the personality and talents.

Kindergarten children may begin their schooling under a great deal of stress if they suffer from separation anxiety or fear of being abandoned. Parental pressures on children, particularly for grades, is one of the most serious conditions in school today. Beginning as early as kindergarten, emphasis is placed on achievement and competition. The feeling of being unable to perform as well as others is a threat to the self-esteem that results in stress.

As well, children are expected to perform under time pressures with an emphasis on one right answer. Subject anxiety, particularly in the three Rs, as well as test anxiety is common to children of all ages.

Other sources of stress occur with discipline methods, peer relationships, child-teacher relationships and teacher personalities.

Identification of stressors that children are faced with in early childhood is the first step in helping young children overcome their problems. Recognising the stress signals and being able to assist the child in coping is the major concern for teachers or other adults working with children.

Some children have better coping skills than do others. In general, a child who has a positive self-image is better able to handle routine stressors than a child growing up with a poor self-concept. This self-image is not something children are born with, but is a "composite of impressions the child received from family, teachers, friends and others." (Kuczen 1982, 112)

There appear to be three levels of coping ability amongst children. The most fortunate are those children who recover spontaneously and integrate the experience into their lifestyles in a positive way.

The adequate copers are those who react with physical symptoms such as aches, pains and increased heartbeat or psychological symptoms such as fear and anxiety.

Children with exceptionally poor coping ability become extremely disorganized by stressful experiences and struggle much harder to overcome the experience.

The semi-official opening of the Drayton Valley curling rink was held Jan. 25.

A surprise party was held for Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dunham marking their 39th wedding anniversary.

Building permits in 1958 totalled $521,985.

Jan. 29, 1969

Annual census for the town indicated a population of 3,495, an increase of 109 over the previous year.

Billy Rose, Drayton Valley's Mr. Curling returned to his home town of Sedgewick to deliver the first rock at the Northern Alberta Ladies curling playdowns.

The Drayton Valley Lions "name the rodeo contest" was won by Hill Innis who suggested Evergreen Rodeo.

The Ruff foursome of Warburg won the M.F. curling. The rink included Leeson Ruff, Bill Wilkes, George Broadbent and Mike Kurley.

Jan. 31, 1979

John Bootsma decided to run in the by-election to fill a vacancy on town council.

The Drayton Valley Rebels met the Hinton Hawks in the first round of the provincial playoffs.

Despite two goals by Dwayne Gillis, the midgeet Clippers dropped a 6-4 decision to Ponoka.

Deadly disease kills 10,000 annually

Canada isn't as young as it used to be. Since the early 1960s, the number of Canadians over the age of 65 has grown from 1.4 million to 2.7 million. As the trend continues that number will swell to 3.4 million in just over 10 years.

Science has gone a long way in extending life expectancy and in coping with the health care of the elderly. But while more Canadians are living longer, and better, there are still important health care issues that face those over 65.

Alzheimer disease is a serious concern for our aging population. Alzheimer disease is an incurable brain condition that strikes both men and women, usually over the age of 65. As memory loss increases, changes also appear in personality, mood and behavior. Judgement, physical coordination, speech and concentration will also be affected. Degeneration usually continues until the patient requires full-time nursing care.

In Canada now, there are about 300,000 people suffering from the disease. By the year 2000 that number is expected to rise to 500,000. Each year 10,000 people die from the disease, although it is often not named as the cause of death. The Alzheimer patient usually succumbs to such illnesses as pneumonia or infection.

Research shows that among the changes in the brain that occur in Alzheimer disease are the presence of neurofibrillary tangles within nerve cells, the appearance of "plaques" that appear to cause disruption of electrochemical signs between nerve cells, a deficiency in the neurotransmitter acetylcholine and the presence of aluminum.

The effect of Alzheimer disease reaches beyond the patient himself. Lack of adequate support systems in the community makes life difficult for those wishing to care for the Alzheimer patient at home and a scarcity of suitable institutional facilities mean long waiting periods for those unable to provide home care.

For more information about Alzheimer disease, contact your local Alzheimer Society.

Parkland decides county budget

After several weeks of department and administrative presentations and council deliberations, county council has unanimously approved the County of Parkland's $19.6-million municipal budget for 1989.

While the county enjoys a strong industrial assessment component in its tax base, this component is subject to depreciation annually. For the 1989 the county's overall assessment base is projected to decline (net of growth) by two per cent. This alone is responsible for a two per cent increase in the mill rate.

An additional increase of 1.9 per cent in the mill rate will enable council to maintain existing levels of service while maintaining a property tax increase below the projected regional inflationary rate of 5.5 per cent for 1989.

The overall municipal mill rate impact county ratepayers will see for 1989 is 3.9 per cent (exclusive of education requisitions).

As an example, a residential acreage owner with a 1,200-square-foot bungalow situated on four acres of land at an assessed value of $56,000, can expect to pay an additional $21 in municipal property taxes for 1989. A quarter-section of farmland assessed at $27,000 will see an increase of $12 over 1988.

This increase represents the municipal budget only, which makes up about 48 per cent of a tax bill; the balance is made up of education and other requisitions.

Show keeps me smiling

By Chris Kreiser
Have you ever wondered where television writers get their material from? I don't know about most shows, but I am convinced I know exactly where they get it for one show.

I know there are dozens of tiny, hidden cameras in my house going all the time, and they sneak the film down to Hollywood when it's done. That footage, scene by scene, is used exclusively by the writers of the show Roseanne.

There is no other explanation — except, perhaps, that Roseanne is my twin. That show is my life.

No other show on the tube dares to be so normal as to have a kitchen that looks like mine with last night's dishes drying in the sink, an open jar of peanut butter on the counter next to the kids' homework slacked beside a bowl of mandarin oranges left over from Christmas, which is shoved up next to the toaster.

Or look at her living room.

Slave auction raises funds

By Darlene VanEmber

The Oil Wives meeting was a combination of chatter about Santa's generosity and the New Year's resolutions.

Anticipation of who your secret sister was for the past year ran high. New secret sister coordinator Jeanette Miner kept the suspense as she revealed a few at a time. After all was told, everyone received a new secret sister and the mystery started over.

A slave auction was held between revealings. Slaves auctioned were Darlene VanEmber, who would do a portrait for your valentine, any way you wanted. May Barker said she'd do almost anything. She received bids for a golf-ball picker and mouse catcher because of her proximity to the ground. She was reported to have said she was "nobody's maid." Eunice Lyle may have other ideas.

Lil Ross had said she'd give music lessons or babysit. Jenny Kusak chose the latter of her talents.

The funds raised from the slave auction and bake sale will be used toward convention travel.

The next dinner meeting will be Feb. 13 at the Elks hall.

The wallpaper doesn't match the carpet which in turn doesn't match the couch. There is no doubt this room will never make the cover of Better Homes and Gardens.

Check out her husband. Have you ever seen Bill Cosby come home from work, go directly to the fridge, open a beer and lay down on the sofa almost in one fluid movement? No. Roseanne's husband does...and more. He turns on the television and falls asleep as soon as his beer is done. (Eh, Fred?)

Or her children. Now this is proof positive those cameras are not a figment of my imagination. There's pushing and shoving and words like "He started it!" "Mom, she's looking at me again, make her stop." Or the one that gets you every time, "C'mon mom, please?"

I love this show because it's so ordinary. With its shoelaces tied so tight only a match (or a mother) could undo, to its arguments about who really does most of the housework (women's lib or no women's lib), to the everyday teasing and laughter shared between grownup and child.

This has got to be the funniest show ever. And I know I am not only laughing at Roseanne; I'm laughing at myself, too.

That's not so bad. At least it keeps me smiling.

Grand prize worth $1,000

Canadian poets can now enter a new poetry contest with $11,000 in prizes.

The grand prize is $1,000 and the first prize is $500. In all, 152 poets will win awards plus publication in a major anthology. The contest, sponsored by the American Poetry Association, is open to the public and entry is free.

"Canadian poets have been winners in our contests every time," says Robert Nelson, publisher for the association. "We'd like to see more Canadians' poetry. It has a distinctive quality of its own."

Poets may enter the contest by sending as many as six poems, each no more than 20 lines, name and address on each page, to American Poetry Association, Dept. CT-16, 250 A Potrero St., PO Box 1803, Santa Cruz, CA 95061-1803. The contest remains open until June 30. Poets who enter early will be invited to another contest with another $1,000 grand prize.

We're living in perilous days'

By Pastor Donald Snell
DV Church of God

We are just a little over three weeks into the new year and already our hearts have been saddened by world calamities.

No country, or peoples, are secure today. We lock our doors, fasten the windows to make ourselves feel more secure at night.

But, is this the answer to a ravished, upset, self-seeking day when no respect is given to women and children? Imagine how we would feel if we got a call that our child had been shot or wounded in the classroom at school? We are living in perilous days!

It is high time the Christian Church rally together and pray earnestly for revival. God is the only solution to peace of both body and soul.

Today we need a revival, hundreds, yes, thousands, finding a new purpose and goal in life. Only Christ can give us peace in the midst of the fast changing world around us. Isa. 57:21 "There is no peace, saith my God, to the wicked."

Isa. 40:29-331 "He giveth power to the faint and to them that have no might He increaseth strength. Even the youth shall faint and be weary, and the young men shall utterly fall. But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint."

Our world is in a fainting cycle — Christ is the answer. John Chap. 3 relates a ruler of the Jews coming to Jesus seeking counselling, but he, like many people of this day could not figure out how he could be born again.

It boils down to one simple question: I just don't want to change my lifestyle? He wanted eternal life, but he wanted to cling to his worldly possessions more than a new life in Christ.

Jesus is still calling: "Follow Me, I will make you fisher of men." John 16:33 "These things I have spoken unto you, that in Me ye might have peace. In the world ye shall have tribulation: But be of good cheer; for I have overcome the world."

Are you an overcomer? Someone once said: "Drifting is always downstream, coasting is downhill." Let us stem the wave of violence today with faith and confidence in the Lord Jesus Christ. 2 Chronicles 7:14: "If My people, which are called by My name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek My face, and turn from their wicked ways, then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sins, and will heal their land."

Yes, dear reader, there is a solution to the problems today. Thanks be to God!

Hearing Tests Set For Drayton Valley

Electronic hearing tests will be conducted at the Beltone Service Centre in the Drayton Valley Medical Clinic, 5203 - 50 Street, on Thursday, February 9, 1989, from 10:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

Anyone who has trouble hearing is welcome to have the tests. Many people with hearing problems don't need hearing aids, but only a modern hearing test like the one now being offered by Beltone can really tell for sure. Mrs. Marie Alexander, Hearing Aid Practitioner, will be conducting the tests.

Early detection is important! Obtain the satisfaction and peace of mind that comes with knowing you've taken a big step forward on the road to better hearing.

Not knowing printed word a great personal loss

Nearly everyone in North America knows how to read and write — right?

This is a popular misconception. We acknowledge this as a problem in Third World countries but fail to realize the widespread problem right here in our own community.

Statistics tell us that one in five Canadians are "functionally illiterate"; that is, they cannot cope in today's society.

What is functional literacy you ask?

This includes the ease with which we use survival skills: managing a bank account, reading package labels, bus directions, travel schedules, menus; completing job applications, forms and reports; applying for a driver's licence, unemployment or accident insurance; reading a work order, address or child's report card.

Even if there is no problem on the job, there is a great personal loss in not knowing the world of "the printed word" and the loss of self-esteem in not keeping pace.

The cost to the public is phenomenal. Costs are estimated by the business community to be $3 billion. Above this are the costs of increased accidents through inability to read warnings, labels and instructions.

Powerhouse Further Education Council has a program to help those with poor or no reading and writing skills. Volunteer tutors are trained to work on a one-to-one basis. Learners are assessed and matched with a trained tutor. This program is free and confidential. Learners need only commit regular times to benefit.

The next training session will be in February. If you feel you can help as a tutor in this worthwhile program or need the help offered, call Carol at 542-3373. Meet a friend!

Risk factors you can control

Researchers have identified factors that can reduce your risk of developing heart disease.

Some risks, like heredity, your sex and age, you can do nothing about. But, many of the major risk factors can be controlled. Look at the list below for the risk factors which are under your control.

The Alberta Heart and Stroke Foundation encourages you to choose at least one, (or more) and work towards making a change that will help you to keep your heart healthy.

The first three factors listed are the most important:

High blood pressure, smoking, high blood cholesterol, diabetes, obesity/overweight, lack of exercise, too much stress, excess alcohol, unhealthy diet — diet high in saturated fat and calories.

Most expensive tool tested proves to be the best

Need a new garlic press? Why not take four or five cloves of garlic to the mall and give a few presses a road test?

If that doesn't sound too appealing, all you have to do is read the test results Canadian Consumer magazine published.

Despite its notorious tendency to linger on a person's breath after dinner, garlic is finding its way into the hearts and stomachs of an increasing number of Canadians. The pungent herb is popular not only for its taste, but also because it contains allicin — a powerful antibacterial agent with many health benefits.

By Samia Vallewand

Convenient processed garlic juice and powder are available but most cooks feel fresh garlic has no substitutions and they are willing to tackle the bulb by hand. Pressing rather than chopping is the best way to get flavorful bits of garlic into food. To do the crushing job requires a special tool.

CAC tested 15 garlic presses costing between $3 and $17. The most expensive model was a clear winner. Some of the cheaper models would be questionable buys — a flimsy press may languish at the back of a drawer or end up in the garbage can. The winning model not only was durable, but it was the only press that didn't require peeling the garlic first.

TURNING OPPORTUNITY INTO ENTERPRISE

OPPORTUNITY

In 1978, after years of construction industry experience, Ed Croteau and his partners identified the need for truss products in North-Central Alberta.

CHALLENGE

They needed aggressive start-up financing to build a competitive, state-of-the-art plant.

SOLUTION

They went to AOC and received an excellent financial package and valuable advice on centralizing the plant in Elk Point. Elk Point Truss now employs up to 25 people in designing and manufacturing trusses for homes, barns and commercial buildings.

Disposal business smelling sweet

VJ Disposals has moved comfortably from a two-man, one-truck operation to a small fleet.

"It's just been a nice, steady growth," said owner Les Jones of an increase to outlying areas and expansion to a five-man, five-truck operation.

Since Jones' purchase in 1983, the sanitation

Canada Post Corporation

Delivering on our promise in rural Canada

Accessibility and convenience

In the spring of 1988, Canada Post Corporation made an important commitment to people living in rural areas of Canada: a promise to make postal products and services more accessible to these important communities.

By working with businesses in communities more and more postal outlets are now operated by local merchants, resulting in more accessible and more convenient postal services than ever before.

The facts and figures are in - the promise is paying off

Accessibility to our products and services has been dramatically improved. In the past, hours of service averaged 29 hours per week. Our new commitment has improved the average hours of service to 65 hours per week. An increase of 126%.

More proof of our promise

Our efforts are working. Independent surveys continue to show that an overwhelming majority of rural Canadians surveyed believe that the post office is moving in the right direction towards better service. Just as we promised.

Canada Post is in rural Canada to stay.
That's a promise.

CANADA POST CORPORATION
Our commitment: better service for you

Area hit by worst storm in province's history

By Steve Fletcher

Last week's horrific blizzard will go down as the worst January storm in one hundred years.

Thankfully, the weather office is forecasting milder temperatures over the first half of this week — giving grateful residents the chance to thaw out frozen car doors and excavate missing lawn ornaments.

The Monday blizzard blanketed the area with the most snow ever to fall within a 24-hour period in January, says Gerard Langevin, an information officer with the Edmonton weather office.

An Arctic air mass from Alaska collided with a warm air mass full of moisture to produce 30-35 centimetres of precipitation, he said.

Langevin also said the ensuing chaos caused the heaviest downfall in the Jasper-Drayton Valley-Edmonton area and spewed out enough white stuff to make it one of the worst January storms "in the history of settlements in Alberta."

Local RCMP had to contend with about 20 minor accidents during a span of three days but no injuries were reported, said Cpl. Tim Vatamaniuk last Wednesday.

If there was a good side to the hazardous weather, it was the obvious decline in the number of criminal offences.

Said Vatamaniuk: "There was the odd, little complaint but nothing serious."

The cold temperatures also provided a spate of minor frostbite cases at the health complex.

"We're averaging a couple of frostbite (outpatients) every day — cold ears and cold fingertips," said Dr. Bob Thompson, the hospital's chief of staff.

He pointed out the number of cases wasn't "unusual," noting it occurs whenever the mercury dips to -30 C or lower.

Inadequate clothing was the reason for all instances of frostbite, said Thompson.

"It's happening to the younger people more than the older people — the older people tend to look after themselves better."

An unexpected weather-related phenomenon, and one that caused only more aggravation for a snow-encumbered population, was frozen supermailboxes.

Postmaster Le-Roy Robinson estimated 50 per cent of the town's new boxes were affected by the cold snap.

The post office had two workers equipped with blow torches out on Tuesday and Wednesday in an effort to solve the problem.

Robinson said the blizzard did not disrupt mail service from Edmonton.

Debbie Arnold, like many other residents, uses an alternative form of transportation to get herself to work last week.

Imperial's takeover of Texaco now in government's hands

By Belinda Atkinson

The success of Imperial Oil's $4.5-billion bid to take over 78 per cent of Texaco Canada Inc. now rests in the hands of two federal government review boards which will, over the next 45 days, decide what impact the deal will have on Canada.

Texaco Inc., the company's American parent, accepted Imperial Oil's bid Jan. 20 after considering tenders from Shell, Esso Corp. of Australia, Sarnav Inc. out of Montreal, Husky, Atco Ltd., and Canadian Oxidant among other speculated bidders.

According to Kent O'Connor, manager of Imperial Oil in Calgary, investment Canada and the Bureau of Competition Policy will now review the bid to ensure unfair competition does not ensue.

O'Connor said the boards could demand some gas stations be sold if the Texaco-Esso combined market share results in a monopoly situation, but he doubts this will be the case since all communities have access to other outlets.

"The market share is less than people think," O'Connor said. "In the Prairies, the combination (Texaco-Esso) is still only 28 per cent. The independent, smaller stations like Turbo and Co-op control 35 per cent of the market."

While O'Connor could not comment at length on impact to employees since the deal is still under review, he cited a number of stipulations in the agreement that restrict layoffs.

Nominations for Friday at Rec Plex

Four people will be vying for the Progressive Conservative nomination this Friday night at the Rec Plex. Tom Thorber of Winfield, Tomahawks Wayne Goss of Edmonton, and Warburg and Grant Mansoor of Drayton Valley are the four. Thomas Bunchies of Calgary, who had indicated he had intentions in a front page story in the Lead magazine last month, has officially withdrawn from the race. Although Bunchies wasn't available for comment, he told The Western Review she was just ten hours away from the Rec Plex open at 8 p.m. Friday with a meeting scheduled to start at 7:30 p.m. Candidates will be given 10 minutes to speak. Local News Briefs

The town expects to be 'open for business' in the new $1.4-million administration building by Feb. 14.

The move from their present quarters into the new quarters is scheduled for Friday.

Due to the absence of Mayor Bob Mayhew, council has cancelled their next meeting.

The change was made so the mayor would be in attendance for the first council meeting in the new administration building.

Town council has decided not to take any further action in the Duperron tax rebate issue.

Council had been requested to pay back taxes to the Duperrons.

Councillor Charlie Miner stated in town council last Thursday he felt the town had given fair and adequate consideration to the request.

Town council held their final meeting in the old chambers last Thursday.

During his 13 years on council Mayor Bob Mayhew commented, "I have some fond memories of this building."

The town has completed its study on traffic in and out of the sports centre.

Town manager Manny Deol told council last Thursday it needs some final touches before coming up on the next agenda.

Both the town office and the post office received complaints about frozen supermailboxes last week.

Michelle Hnydyk has resigned as a member of the recreation board.

The town plans to approach the provincial government about possible funding for a new terminal building at the airport.

Councillor Tom McGee told council last week traffic had dropped at the airport, from a high of 35 planes just a few years ago to five at the present.

Operator forgoes sleep to battle blizzard

By Steve Fletcher

Garry Bogart spent many sleepless nights dealing with the blizzard's aftermath last week.

In fact, he didn't sleep at all between Monday morning and Thursday morning — 72 consecutive hours without so much as a catnap.

The owner of a fleet of 18 graders, Bogart was too busy coping with an overwhelming demand for his services.

"For four straight winters we did just about nothing," recalled Bogart of previous years. "It was hard to maintain good men."

Things have changed. He logged his best month in a long while during the first two weeks in January.

February could well be a record breaker.

Bogart, who has owned Garry's Oilfield Services since 1980, said he spent most of last week either grading or repairing graders that refused to budge in the Arctic-like temperatures.

"Theoretically, they shouldn't break down at all," said Bogart. "But when you're working near rivers or lake bottoms it's minus 50 (Celsius) or worse and iron is just like glass."

Of his own sleep-deprivation experiment, Bogart acknowledged that — after the first two days — it really wasn't so bad.

Slippery roads cause havoc

A Drayton Valley mother and daughter went off the road Thursday on Highway 22, a couple of kilometres east of Drayton. Both were taken to hospital and released immediately.

Local man spends 'chilly' night at battery site after breakdown

By Steve Fletcher

Grader operator Allan Davidson isn't likely to forget the Blizzard of '89. Davidson spent an unscheduled overnight stay inside a chilly battery site building near Berrymoor.

The incident began when his grader broke down along an oil-lease road last Monday night.

He had to hike a half-mile through a bone-chilling wind to find the shelter, which was equipped with a small heater.

Davidson says the experience was just part of the job.

"No, it didn't scare me at all...I know the area really well. I knew the (building) was heated."

He says the temperature of the building hovered near 0 C throughout the night, but it certainly beat the alternative.

"It was not nearly warm enough but it was a lot warmer than it was outside, especially with the cold wind."

Davidson spent most of the night standing near the small heater.

"I toasted one side (of me) and froze the other, then I would turn around (and repeat the process)."

He says the floor was too cold to lie down on.

Davidson was discovered the next morning by the RCMP and his boss — 11 hours after checking into the makeshift motel.

A grader operator "off and on" for the last 10 years, he says the experience was just one of the hardships you learn to deal with.

"We all take our chances...if you're out in the bush and your machine breaks down, you walk."

Davidson was out grading the same area later in the day after first taking a six-hour

Budgets shovelled into huge clean-up

Area municipalities are slowly clearing away all remnants of one of the worst snowstorms in Alberta's history.

The monstrous clean-up effort required to bring Drayton Valley's streets back to normal will take a large chunk out of this year's proposed snow-removal budget.

But that was of secondary importance as work continued last week to unclog the town's main traffic arteries.

"It's progressing well, but it's slow," town engineer Manjeet Saran said Thursday.

He added the sub-zero temperatures have led to equipment failures and unfortunate delays in the removal of snow.

"We're crossing our fingers that nothing more will break down," said Saran, who predicted it would be a few more days before all the work is complete.

It's been estimated the entire project will cost $30,000. Last year's snow-removal budget was $76,000.

"There is three times the snow (compared) to a normal haul," Saran pointed out. "Some streets we had to go back a second time."

The Brzeaux municipal district encountered similar problems battling snow in the rural areas.

"Equipment problems cost us some time," said Richard Tatro, director of public works.

"But considering it was a fairly major storm I think things went pretty well."

The MD had seven graders and three plow trucks working the roads.

As of last Thursday, all the roads were essentially open, Tatro said.

The MD has yet to tally up the total cost of the snow removal.

Twin Rivers school board well paid

Trustees on the Twin Rivers school division board of education will be well paid for attending meetings.

They will receive $200 per day for a meeting and half of that if the meeting is less than four hours. The half-day fee of $100 will also cover evening meetings.

For out-town meetings the trustees and all Twin Rivers school employees will be eligible for 30 cents per kilometre, $30 for meals based on $6 for breakfast, $9 for lunch and $15 for supper plus hotel costs will be paid after a receipt has been issued.

Superintendent George Bevan told the trustees at last week's board meeting that information he had received showed the average price being paid for day-long meetings was $160.

Opinions

One never knows what to expect

Slip, slidin' around.

That about sums up the situation the past week. A severe snow storm coupled with a drastic drop in temperatures caused numerous problems.

However, it seems that most people managed to function.

The RCMP were kept busy handling an unusual amount of fender-benders.

Fire Chief Sheldon Fuson was keeping his fingers crossed after going through the first 48 hours without an incident.

Schools closed, which caused some problems for Grade 12 students at Frank Maddock High who were scheduled to write semester exams.

Due to the demand the extra two days off created for working parents, the Twin Rivers school division opened their doors last Wednesday morning.

There were reports that some people experienced problems getting into the supermailboxes. But the complaints were few and far apart.

Service stations and tow trucks worked long hours.

The rain coupled with the snow and cold almost made it impossible for motorists to gain entry into their vehicles. Some people reported up to five hours before they finally got into their car or truck.

Highways that were closed also caused some inconveniences. The Western Review, that is printed in Leduc, was delayed a day.

Despite the conditions, the town did a good job clearing the main routes.

While it was a trying experience for many, it was just another reminder from old man winter that one never knows what to expect.

Agencies often not recognized for valuable service

Three agencies we work with, that often go unnoticed by the public despite their very important roles, are the ambulance people, volunteer firemen and RCMP.

Evidence of their valuable service and knowledge are required almost every time they are called upon.

Recently, ambulance and firemen attended two incidents within a span of four hours.

The first was at the junction of highways 22 and 13 near Alder Flats and the second was a car fire on Highway 39 near the Berrymoor corner turnoff.

The Drayton Valley firemen had no sooner returned to town when they got a call about the car fire. Fortunately, when they arrived on the scene, an ambulance from Breton and Alberta

Frankly Speaking

By Frank Ryan

Transportation were there, taking care of the injured and directing traffic.

In this area we are fortunate to work with ambulances out of Breton and Drayton Valley, the local volunteer fire department and RCMP detachments in Evansburg, Breton and Drayton Valley.

While their efforts often go unnoticed by the public, we salute them for the valuable role they perform in society today and the excellent communication we have with them.

Have you ever noticed the drab surroundings in most hospitals? Out-of-date interior which includes the walls and carpets. The patients walk around in those blue PJs and housecoats that seem to have been around for centuries.

While I must admit that the Drayton Valley hospital is an exception to the rule, one that fits perfectly is the Royal Alex in Edmonton.

It's a place you just want to get in and out of, as fast as possible.

And if that wasn't bad enough, the doctor I was to see had his office in the basement.

Is that an indication our hospitals are overcrowded or what?

Constituents want democracy in Alberta riding

By Belinda Atkinson
What began as a public forum Feb. 1 to introduce Drayton Valley constituency's four registered PC candidates turned rapidly to a warning that the next MLA consult voters before making decisions.

Apparently relaxed by a sparse turnout, the small but vocal crowd demanded that "democracy" be brought back to the area.

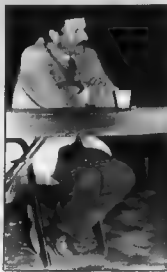

"Do the people have to eat it or lump it?" asked one man. "Alberta should be governed by Albertans."

Each of the four candidates said the constituents' opinions would be represented in the Alberta legislature although there was some disagreement of how that would best be accomplished.

"Normally you elect an MLA to go to Edmonton and you have to guess what's going on," said Wayne Gent, of Ponahawk. "I've gone one step further and spent the last two weeks forming committees."

Gent said he would set up committees in each community to address constituents' problems and questions.

Tom Thurber, of Winfield, argued "we're being committed to death." Instead of hearing a small minority in a community, as would be the case, he said an MLA must travel and listen to all the people.

PC candidate Wayne Gent.

Erwin Zoltman, PC candidate from Warburg, said town meetings would allow him to hear both sides of an issue before making a decision.

"That would be my approach," he said.

Grant Monsour, of Drayton Valley, said he would be available seven days a week to address citizens' concerns.

The candidates were in full agreement that the proposed Howse Pass linking Hwy 11 to the TransCanada near Golden, B.C. would strengthen the economy and open the area up to possible tourist facility construction.

"The impact would be dramatic. We may see an influx of tourists passing through here," said Monsour, president of the local chamber of commerce.

"When I first read about it I thought it would be an excellent idea for the whole constituency," said Zoltman, who comes from a diverse background of farming, log contracting and has served on school boards and town council.

"I have no problem with anything like that," said Gent, whose background includes finance, farming and construction.

Thurber, a farmer and former reeve in the County of Wetaskiwin and other county boards, agreed the Howse would make the area more open to tourists.

While each advocated construction of tourist facilities resulting from the Howse Pass, one onlooker expressed a fear of foreign investment. He said Banff is currently in dire straits because of foreign ownership.

"The Japanese are the best people in the world for business. If they want to take something over they will," said the distraught mum.

"If we were talking about northern Alberta I don't think for one minute I'd discourage foreign investment," said Monsour. "I think I'd be tickled to death."

"This is still a free country. If you can afford it you can buy it," said Gent.

Tom Thurber, of Winfield, addresses questions.

Thurber drew a parallel between Banff and Drayton Valley in the 1950s when "it was impossible to find an oil company owned by a Canadian firm."

"It would take a lot of study and a lot of work but I'm not totally opposed to foreign ownership," Thurber said.

Zoltman said he would like to sit down with the man and others and hear both sides since he is not knowledgeable on the subject.

School opening thought through

The decision to re-open School Division 65 schools on Feb. 1, two days after the blizzard, was well thought out, according to superintendent Dr. George Bevan.

During the Twin Rivers school board meeting, Bevan told the trustees he took many things into consideration before re-opening the schools.

The superintendent, who has the final authority to open or close schools depending on weather conditions, said a broadcast was made to open the schools.

"Lots of people heard that broadcast," he said, adding that a second announcement may not reach parents.

Bevan said he called the MD road foreman and the weather office before making his decision.

"As well, the schools had been closed for two days already," he said.

Parents were instructed to call bus drivers to see whether their bus route was operable, and to make the decision themselves.

"Parents are good judges on whether to send children to school," he added, "I couldn't assume all buses would be running."

Superintendent Bevan reported there had been about a 20 per cent student attendance on Wednesday, and almost 100 per cent teacher attendance.

"This school board owes something to the people that support it."

Only one school bus running

Twin Rivers schools were closed on Monday and Tuesday due to the inhospitable winter conditions.

Opening them on Wednesday, however, did not necessarily mean things were back to normal.

Eldorado elementary school, for one, reported a 75 per cent absenteeism rate. Only one school bus was operating.

Pelican Mills has committee

Town council has announced plans to handle residential complaints from the oriented strandboard plant.

Mayor Bob Mayhew introduced details last Thursday for a Pelican steering committee.

The committee will provide formal communication about mill activities primarily with the people in the community, the mill and the town.

The committee will include Bob Olson, plant manager, a representative of the town and three members of the community-at-large, who will be appointed by council. Some of the issues the committee will address include opening communications between the people, monitoring project activities with regards to environment and health safety, reviewing environmental solutions and handling concerns expressed by residents.

No parking space for trucks

The lack of parking space for trucks has town council worried.

Councillor Howard Olsen, who is also chairman of the town's transportation committee, says he doesn't know how to handle the situation.

Truck traffic in and around the Black Gold and Westwind Motor Inn and the lot designated for the new IGA store is causing the biggest headaches.

Due to the loss of the IGA lot that at times handled 30 trucks, Olsen says a lot of the truckers are parking on the side streets.

"They're not built to handle those heavy trucks," he told council.

Administration has been asked to gather some data on the increasing problem.

Residents need time visualize tax change

Town council plans to ask the province for a ministerial order to allow them a 90-day delay in sending out the assessment notices.

It is the town's intention to send out the tax notice with their assessment slip so residents can visualize the changes on their assessment.

Breton grain elevator will stay open full time for '88-'89 crop year

By Wendy Carruthers
The debate over the continued use of the Breton grain elevator has ended favorably for area farmers.

"It (the elevator) will be there as long as there is grain to be bought," said area manager Ron Vert of Wataskiwin.

A delegation of farmers' meeting Jan. 30 was cancelled, but elevator manager Niel Hiebert confirmed the decision made by the Alberta Wheat Pool to leave the elevator in operation.

The Alberta Wheat Pool had thought about leaving the elevator open on a part-time basis, which would be for two or three days a week. "The yields have increased," said Vert.

The AWP has decided to have the elevator open full-time at least until the end of the crop year, July 31, reported Vert.

"They will probably be open in the fall too," Hiebert said.

Vert said the opening was agreed on because the Village of Breton had made some tax concessions to the Alberta Wheat Pool.

A spokesman for Breton said the village and the MD of Brazeau will support some of the assessed taxes on the elevator.

The total $8,917 owed in taxes would be split between the groups.

"With the help of the MD we were able to give them (AWP) this concession," the spokesman said.

Vert said the elevator would remain open as long as it stays at a break-even point.

"It (the elevator) has been running at a deficit," he said.

Although Vert could not disclose all of the reasons behind Alberta Wheat Pool's decision, he did say that an expected increase in volume had a bearing on the elevator remaining open.

If the elevator closed area farmers would be forced to take their grain to Thorsby or Rimbey to sell it to the Alberta Wheat Pool.

Another meeting for farmers has been scheduled for later this month.

The Breton elevator will remain in operation.

Texaco workers will keep jobs

According to a Jan. 26 press release, Imperial Oil will offer continued employment to all Texaco workers and maintain current research and development activities.

"We're quite keen to keep all those people. Texaco has competent professionals and we need those people," said O'Connor.

Hartz Searle, public relations person for Texaco in Calgary, said it's still too early to determine whether the 100 Texaco employees from Drayton Valley will be transferred to accommodate the takeover but George Klein, Texaco's area supervisor for the Pembina field, said movement is expected in the business.

"For the (60) employees in the field, movement may be possible but that's part of the industry. I don't see that changing in any way," said Klein.

Corporate concentration seems to be the current

Canadian trend considering the recent sale of Wardair to PWA, the merger between Molson Breweries and Carling O'Keefe and the sale of Texaco Canada Inc. to Imperial Oil.

O'Connor agrees the trend is obvious but dismisses it as a good business practice.

"In our case it is very competitive and you look to every opportunity to reduce the cost of doing business," he said.

Whitecourt receives grants

Two Yellowhead businesses and the Whitecourt Chamber of Commerce have received funding through the Canada/Alberta Northern Development Subsidiary Agreement.

Palatine Press, located in Whitecourt, received $50,000 to purchase a pressroom, binding and prepress equipment leading to the creation of seven full-time jobs.

Twin Rivers Logging Ltd., also located in Whitecourt, received $51,617 to purchase a new swing boom grapple skidder leading to the creation of one full-time job.

The Whitecourt Chamber of Commerce received $10,000 for an economic development study.

Drayton on calvacade route

The Battle River Tourist Association has made tentative plans to visit Drayton Valley in May.

Battle River manager Sylvia Clemens says they are looking at including Drayton Valley on their annual cavalcade route.

If adequate camping can be found in town, the May 27-28 visit would bring upwards of 60 large recreational vehicles here.

Natalie Gibson, head of the chamber's tourist action committee is looking after local arrangements for the proposed visit.

Meanwhile, the Battle River office in Camrose is busy finalizing plans for several brochures.

One of their new brochures will focus on the golf courses in the zone.

Plans are also underway to attend trade shows in Regina, Calgary, Medicine Hat, Lethbridge, Red Deer and Edmonton.

The Waterline

By Pat Cameron

Teachers' convention is this Thursday and Friday, Feb. 9 and 10, so school's out.

But the water is warm at Park Valley Pool and we've got some neat ideas to keep you busy.

On Thursday we're having a "wildest beach towel" contest. There will be prizes. Leisure swim on Thursday will be from 1 to 4 p.m. and on Friday, Feb. 10 from 1 to 8:30 p.m.

Is your heart healthy? Although Canadians are becoming more and more "fit conscious" many still suffer from the lack of a healthy heart.

February is Heart Month and staff at Park Valley Pool can help you become more fit.

A "Healthy Heart" club has started and all you have to do to join is put your name on our poster and signify on it every time you exercise, follow one of our diet hints or bring a friend to the pool to exercise or lane swim.

Becoming fit is a way of life, and by the end of February we're hoping you'll have developed some good new habits and discarded some bad ones.

Park Valley Pool is once again offering a pre-competitive swim class for those interested in swimming competitively or improving strokes and skills.

Our Esso program will begin Feb. 14 and offers all levels: participation, bronze, silver and gold. Call the pool at 542-5749 for more information.

If you're new to Drayton Valley or just new to competitive swimming, the contact for the Neptune Swim Club is Laurette Seutlerlund. She can be reached at 542-5786 during the evening.

Rangers knocked out

The Pile Base Rangers came away from the weekend with one win and one loss to their credit in regular league play.

They lost to Rocky Mountain House 6-4 in the first game. Robin Smashuk picked up two goals with Travis Brigley and Bryson Kuzek each scoring one goal.

They defeated Red Deer 6-2. Greg Thompson scored three of the goals and Bryson Kuzek added another two to his standing. Travis Brigley scored one goal.

Pile Base are out of the provincial pee wee 'A' division after losing in Morinville.

They took the first game 11-9 over Morinville but lost game two 7-4 over the same team. The final outcome was Morinville 16 and Drayton Valley 15, knocking them out of the provincials which was a two game total point series.

In other hockey last weekend, the Drayton Valley Clippers drew to a 2-2 tie with the Morinville Warriors Saturday.

Lariettes get second place

The Drayton Valley Lariettes came home from the Warburg tournament with a second place in the 'B' division.

On Feb. 4 the Lariettes dumped the Pink Panthers 5-2. Holly Plotts scored two goals and Mandy Nelson, Shauna Hines and Stephanie Cartwright each picked up one goal.

In the second game the Lariettes dropped a close 4-3 decision to the Whitecourt Hot Shots. Terri Kwiatkowski scored all three goals.

In the 'B' division finals the Lariettes took an early 3-0 lead but lost a 4-3 decision to the Thorhild Angels. Terri Kwiatkowski picked up another two goals but suffered a knee injury early in the third period. She joins Kerry Baumann who injured her knee during the Lariettes tournament.

The Lariettes will be attending the Whitecourt tournament Feb. 11-12.

Escaped prisoner dangerous

On Nov. 6, 1988 Jerry Ronald Dowe escaped from Elbow Lake Institute near Agassiz, B.C.

Jerry Ronald Dowe

Dowe was serving a life sentence which he received in 1984 at Kingston, Ont. for the murder of another inmate. Dowe had been serving a 25-year term received in Woodstock, N.B. in 1978 for theft, robbery and the attempted murder of an RCMP officer.

Dowe's whereabouts are currently unknown; however, he has lived in Ontario and the Maritimes. He also has contacts in British Columbia. Dowe is considered dangerous.

Description: Dowe is a Caucasian male, 34, 173 centimetres (five feet eight inches) tall, weighing approximately 62 kilograms (135 pounds) with hazel eyes and brown hair. He has a scar on his right knee and on his right index finger.

Dowe has numerous tattoos described as: a heart on the left hand near the thumb; a dog on the right forearm; a ribbon on the left side of his chest.

A Canada-wide warrant is held by the RCMP, Agassiz detachment, Agassiz, B.C. for being unlawfully at large. Should you have any information on the above subject, please contact your local police.

Pork producers change name

The Alberta Pork Producers Marketing Board has changed its name to the Alberta Pork Producers Development Corporation. The organization says its name change was promoted by a common misunderstanding the pork producer agency was a government body. The producer group was also concerned with what it describes as an "equally common belief" it administered production quotas and set prices for hogs.

The name change resulted from a district resolution calling for a name change at the delegate/director meeting last April.

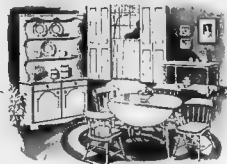

The organization says the change of name will be accomplished without cost to pork producers by gradually replacing printed materials as they are used.

Landfill to be reclaimed

The reclamation of the Buck Creek landfill site will go ahead — finally.

Braceau municipal district passed a bylaw allowing for the project at its Jan. 28 council meeting.

Councillors were told the project was previously overlooked by Alberta Environment when it worked on other reclamations in the district.

RCMP aid Meals

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police braved the treacherous Arctic front now called "the cold war" to deliver hot meals to local seniors.

Officers took turns last week driving Meals on Wheels coordinator Fran MacLellan to the homes of nine seniors after volunteer drivers decided against risking their vehicles in the sub-zero temperatures.

MacLellan first called the RCMP Jan. 31 when one of the five volunteers, a 70-year-old woman, said she'd rather not leave her home.

Officer Greg Fedor responded with a 4x4 to take meals from the Shangri-La Lodge to each home.

"If a woman gets stuck in this weather it's just not worth it," the coordinator said Feb. 1 from Const. Grant MacDonald's cruiser.

While en route, MacLellan discovered one senior was ill and another's telephone line had gone dead, making it impossible to use her Lifeline system in an emergency.

"That's what's good about Meals on Wheels," said MacLellan, "you maintain constant contact with these people."

At the last stop Feb. 1, a senior asked MacLellan to relay a message: "You make sure and tell that RCMP officer that I'm getting along good."

RCMP arrest man for attempted B&E

RCMP have a man in custody who faces eight charges stemming from a series of incidents on Friday night.

The charges were laid following an attempted break-in at the Black Bear Cafe in Cynthia.

The break-in was averted by the owners who live at the scene. The owners managed to obtain a driver's license as he fled from the Black Bear Cafe.

Later, the car was involved in a hit-and-run near Drayton Valley. The driver was subsequently apprehended.

The man has been charged with an attempted B&E, assault, impaired driving, refusing a breathalyzer, mischief over $1,000 and two counts of possession of stolen property.

He will appear in Drayton Valley Provincial Court on Thursday.

Tribute planned

The Drayton Valley and District Health Complex will pay tribute to 61 people Feb. 7 who staff say have made complete health care possible.

The hospital's volunteers will receive an honorary dinner and thank you from the doctors, nurses and administrative personnel who say all areas of the hospital have benefitted from their service.

"We'll give pins (representing hours volunteered) to some and yearly certificates. But otherwise they'll get verbal thanks and hopefully have a good time," said organizer Veronica Badick.

Let's go

Matthew Ostlund, 3, was too excited to stand still last week when mother Michelle brought him to the Drayton Sports Centre.

Hall to be upgraded

The Buck Creek Hall was the recipient of a $10,455 grant from the Brazeau municipal district recently.

The money will go toward the estimated cost for repairing the facility's floor.

The decision to provide the funds, made at the Jan. 26 MD council meeting, also stipulated the hall not be considered for a CRC grant over the next two years.

Resident wins Lotto

A Drayton Valley resident should not be too concerned about the bad weather now that he can afford to leave for warmer climates if he wants.

Steve Yurchak, 61, is the winner of $100,000 from the Plus Lotto 6/49 draw Jan. 4.

His immediate plans for the windfall is to earn interest from the money to live on.

This isn't the first lucky win for Yurchak - he won $10,000 in 1981 from a Super Lotto ticket.

Residents oppose gravel pit

A band of residents tried but failed to save a recreational area near Violet Grove from becoming the site of a gravel pit.

The Brazeau MD council granted a gravel company a development permit on Jan. 17, allowing it to go ahead with the construction of a gravel pit south of Violet Grove on the river flats.

The permit was being opposed by residents who feared the area - which for years has been used as a recreational site - would be destroyed.

Gerry Huska, one of the residents involved, said the issue is just one example of a growing problem.

"There are about 30 gravel pits within five miles of the (North Saskatchewan River) bridge," he noted.

Huska predicts there will be "fewer and fewer" sites for family recreation along the river if such developments continue to be allowed.

He said the MD permitted the construction of the gravel pit near Violet Grove with certain restrictions, but he maintained he will continue to fight for better use of the region's natural areas.

Huska plans to consult with the public lands department about setting aside land purely to ensure that natural settings remain intact.

School division honoring employees at dinner

Twin Rivers school division plans to honor their employees with long service awards.

Due to the recent marriage between the County of Leduc and Parkland, trustees decided at last Wednesday's board meeting to take into account the years their present employees had logged with the respective counties.

The Twin Rivers' first annual service awards dinner has been set for June 2.

Kinsmen donate $500

The Drayton Valley Kinsmen Club has donated $500 toward the Pile Base Rangers' trip to Denver, Colorado.

The hockey team will be one of three Canadian clubs playing in a tournament in the American Rockies.

New chief appointed County cops remain COPPS

The new chief of medical staff has been appointed for the Drayton Valley and District Health Complex.

Dr. Robert Thompson assumed the position two weeks ago after being selected by the local hospital board to replace Dr. W.S.B. Loomore.

"It will be a challenge," said the Towers Medical Clinic doctor who immigrated from northern England three-and-a-half years ago with his family.

He said the workload will vary but he will basically act as a liaison between the hospital board and local doctors.

"It's an important job but I'm not a great political animal," he joked.

Thompson will be reappointed yearly in accordance with hospital regulations but plans to maintain the position for at least two years.

"They like you to stay on two or three years," he said. "The first year is basically a learning period."

County of Parkland Police could still call themselves "COPPS" after all, if one of the proposals for the force's new name is chosen.

The county's police committee recommended to council the departmental name be changed to "The Parkland County Patrol Department."

But, administration recommended the name read "The County of Parkland Patrol Department (COPP), to be consistent with the names of all other departments.

The special constable force has until April 1 to change its name and all insignias. The ruling is part of the new Police Act which specifies forces like the county's cannot call themselves police anymore and cannot carry guns.

Councillor Peter Bakker disagreed with the committee recommendation. "There is no legal entity called Parkland County," said Bakker, adding a name such as Parkland County Patrol wouldn't be accurate for a force servicing the County of Parkland.

County commissioner Jim Simpson also disagreed with the committee recommendation, and said all department names should be consistent.

"We should go all the way or not at all. That's my opinion," said Simpson.

Councillor Art Ranson said the name should read Parkland County Patrol, and hinted at a possible county name change when he said the patrol's decals and insignias would have to be changed again if the county changed its name.

Ranson implied Parkland may change its official name to "Parkland County" from County of Parkland No. 31.

February 16, 1989

As February approaches we are once again in the process of conducting our annual charity auction which is to be held on February 16, 1989 at 6:00 p.m. at Sekura Auctions here in Drayton Valley. For this year's auction, as in the past, we are and will continue to solicit donations of both new and used items. In addition, we will also accept donations for services that can be auctioned. Receipts for income tax purposes will be issued for all cash donations and new items that are donated. All donations can be delivered prior to the day of the auction by calling 542-3113. Pickup can be arranged if necessary by calling the aforementioned number. We have also arranged for a drop off center in the Demick Mall. This will be open Monday to Saturday from 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. February 1 to the 15.

Again this years auction proceeds will go towards a building project. Our present structure was originally designed to provide services to 15 clients. We are presently servicing 30 clients and the demand for our services continues to grow.

We look forward to working with you all to make this years event an even bigger and better Auction and make a new facility for our clients that much closer to becoming a reality.

Remember, our clients and the Association are counting on "YOU"

Exchange student earns permit

A Japanese exchange student is learning something in Drayton Valley that her teachers back home might not approve of.

Yuko Hirakiuchi, 17, recently received her very own learner's permit and will soon hold a ticket to drive.

"I want to drive here," she said. "Everyone (at the high school) here has a car. It's so interesting."

The Yukosuka native explained that teachers in her Tokyo subdivision forbid cars on school property and suspend violators from classes.

"I wrote my friends and told them but I don't want them to tell the teachers," she laughed.

Hirakiuchi said the licence can't offend Japanese teachers too much since it isn't valid in her home country. But she said the driver's training program she's taking through the Spruce Grove Driving School may be transferable to an expensive mandatory program in Japan.

"It's so hard to get a car in Japan and expensive. You have to take a $2,000 drivers' training program before you can drive," she said.

Because of the expense, Hirakiuchi said most young people in Japan drive motor bikes and use the public trains to get around.

But she said the training, which she received as a Christmas gift from Gord and Val Tucker, her sponsor family, will put her far ahead of her classmates back home who have to wait until 18 years of age to take the course.

"But I'll wait until the snow melts to do any driving," she admitted.

Japanese exchange student Yuko Hirakiuchi is working on her ticket to drive.

Construction course unpopular at FMHS

Only three of the four vocational areas of Frank Maddeck high school are popular with the students.

Automotives, welding and beauty culture are the most desirable but the building construction course still fails to draw students, says principal Al Day.

"We have 40 students at the Grade 10 level using the area for woodworking."

He also said the course doesn't seem to be going anywhere in all of Alberta.

Automotives continues to be the course that has a long waiting list.

There is space for 60 students in the automotives class which offers 35 credits over three years, plus the opportunity for work experience in Grade 12.

"Some students go straight to apprentice work (after the course)," Day said.

Welding is also as popular as beauty culture although the ratio is lower for students entering the same industry after school.

Day said most students use the course for the practical experience gained from learning a trade after school.

Frank Maddeck high school was fortunate to get any of the vocational areas at all, says Day.

"The Department of Education has special criteria for setting up vocational areas," he said, "and we didn't fit it."

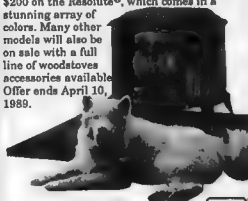

"We are fortunate to have had parent support and political pressure to get ours (vocational areas)."

Day says that although the students don't always go into the field of work they study for, the vocational areas give them generic skills they can apply elsewhere in their lives.

Third event winners included Ron and Ann Lawrence and Pete and Verna Wolodko who defeated the Rudi Reich team.

AOC grants 24 loans in December

Alberta Opportunity Company (AOC) authorized 24 small business loans totalling over $2.9 million during the month of December.

The service industry received 21 loans; the manufacturing industry received three loans. A total of 33 positions were created by businesses receiving loans, bringing the total employment in those businesses to 233.

In central Alberta, loans totalling $354,000 were approved and included a service station, appliance sales and repair outlet, restaurant and a specialty meat store.

These businesses are located in Penhold, Rimbey, Caroline and Haynes.

Accept life gracefully, says Hogarth

By Belinda Atkinson
A local senior is a man of few words but an admirer of many.

"I guess my favorite is Dickens," Bruce Hogarth shyly related his love of literature.

As a young man in Revelstoke, Hogarth was encouraged to read and found a life-long love for traditional literature.

With youth also came a deep appreciation for symphony and jazz that would remain thorough adulthood and form a bond between he and his first wife.

"She was a very musical person. She played piano, violin and did some composing," Hogarth said, adding that he plays the trumpet.

The two married in Calgary and moved to Vancouver where he took work at a ship yard and she became a stenographer.

After eight years they went their separate ways and Hogarth began a long period of time alone while he took various jobs in both Calgary and Vancouver.

While working at the Vancouver ship yard during World War II, Hogarth met a woman who would eventually become his second wife.

"(Mary) was working in a ladies wear shop and I met her in a confectionery," he said. "We got to be friendly with one another."

The two married but Hogarth described the hard years that ensued while he nursed Mary's severe arthritis and spinal meningitis. During that time, Hogarth maintained Vancouver's parks, a feat in itself considering he talked himself out of two or three muggings and witnessed the chaos which accompanied the drug-induced '60s.

After his wife died eight years ago — described as the worst experience of his life — he moved to Drayton Valley to be close to his niece, a local hospital worker, and his brother in Edmonton.

It's been 10 years since the move, and Hogarth ranks his arrival here among the best experiences of his life.

"I remember seeing it for the first time and thinking what an interesting town it was," he said. "There were so many good people to meet."

Hogarth now spends his time walking, reading, listening to music when he can and tending a garden during the summer months.

"I plant mostly flowers. I don't know why I just like to be around them," he said. Hogarth said he's maintained a philosophy throughout the good and bad times in his life up until now that has kept him content.

"I think you have to accept life gracefully without complaint," he offered.

If those around him were to grumble and complain he says he'd try to encourage them not to.

"I'd say be Christian-like. Be kind and thoughtful."

Conflicts resolved

The recent marriage between the County of Leduc and Parkland has created some conflicts for the Twin Rivers school division.

Most seriously affected are the non-instructional days.

Last Wednesday's board meeting decided to give Drayton Valley schools their instructional improvement day on Feb. 27 followed by an instructional day for all seven schools April 17.

The annual Farmer's Day that affects Breton and Lindale schools only, will be held June 9.

County picks same policy

The new Twin Rivers school board of education has adopted on an interim basis the policies outlined in the County of Parkland handbook.

But before the policies went into effect, superintendent George Bevan planned to talk to school principals in Breton, Lindsdale and Drayton Valley.

Speaking in favor of adopting the County of Parkland policies superintendent George Bevan told last week's board of education meeting, "The reason for following this is because it's well done. It's a good set of policies."

Some concerns were raised over the Lindsdale and Breton schools that had belonged to the County of Leduc.

"If it affects those schools unfairly, administration will handle it," Bevan stated.

Trustee Tom Hutton said he had looked at the policies of the two counties and found little difference.

"Basically, it seems very similar," he told last Wednesday's meeting.

Bevan promised to work with the principals if there were any problems.

Trustee Jim Reid was the one who urged the superintendent to talk with the principals. "I don't want them to feel they are being cut off at the knees," he stated.

Cardlock fueling system gaining in popularity

Cardlock systems are growing in popularity among companies who see a distinct advantage in fueling up whenever they want.

The systems are now available at most bulk stations in the area.

Alex Balf, manager of ICG liquid Gas, says the cardlock systems provide companies with cheaper fuel because they can tender for bids from bulk plants.

Another advantage lies in its availability. The self-service system allows trucking fleets and other commercial users to fuel up any time during the night or day.

The cards can also be used anywhere in Canada, providing a distinct convenience factor.

The advantages to joining the cardlock system are not being lost on potential users, says Shell Oil manager Lou Beachamp.

"More and more people are using it," he said.

Vicki Paulson, wife of Imperial Oil agent Len, agrees.

Use of the cardlock has increased "tremendously," since the company established the system in October 1985, she said.

Paulson added that the Pelican Spruce Mills plant has also helped to increase the number of users in the area.

Dirty Rotten Scoundrels

Michael Caine is a superior con man who looks like a hobo. He meets a woman with a gourmet palate and lives in splendor on the French Riviera. All he needs is a British American hater, played by Steve Martin, to make his territory. They make a bet that the first man who can outwit a woman out of $50,000 can keep the money and the territory. Satisfying comedy occupies which tends to make people laugh out loud.

It was moving day for some students at Eldorado school. The new portables are now complete, with instruction beginning last week. Principal Howard Pearson says the old portables may have to be used again next year as early reports suggest an influx of Grade 1 students.

Garbage contract tendered

Town council has decided to put their garbage contract out to tender.

For the past five years V. J. Disposal has handled the garbage collection in Drayton Valley.

The current contract expires at the end of the year.

It is council's intention to put the contract out to tender in September.

At the present time the residential rate in Drayton Valley is $3.75 and the bin rate is $30.

Information supplied to the town shows residents of Edson pay $3.25 and in Whitecourt the rate is $4.20. The bin rate in Whitecourt is $36.75.

Manny Deol, town manager, says council decided to go this route as they felt it was time to test the market.

Lindale, Breton schools may need renovations

The Twin Rivers school division hopes to know shortly if any major renovations will be needed on the schools in Lindale and Breton.

The division has acquired the services of Kurt Berndtson, facility services manager for the County of Parkland for one week, to review proposals submitted earlier through the County of Leduc and to conduct site inspections of the three schools and make recommendations.

Berndtson, who has already done a similar inspection on the four public schools in Drayton Valley, will be taking a leave of absence from his job with the county to assist Twin Rivers.

"His experience is invaluable," George Bevan, superintendent of schools, told the trustees at last Wednesday's board of education meeting.

Red Basket battles Red Rooster in courthouse

By Wendy Carruthers
The Red Basket Food Store group is preparing for a legal battle with C Corp — lease holder of the Red Rooster franchises in Canada.

Drayton Valley's Northernd Red Basket owner Murray Galavan has joined the 30 or so former Red Rooster stores in the fight.

Red Rooster stores have been forced to sign a new lease with C Corp who acquired the Red Rooster franchises from Horne and Pitfield Foods Ltd. recently.

Galavan, who celebrated his first anniversary as a Red Rooster owner last month, says he doesn't like much about the new lease being offered.

"They even want to take down the owner/operator sign," he says, adding it will take some doing to make him remove it.

Galavan's counterpart in Slave Lake, Red Basket owner Cindy Boisvert, has already received an eviction notice from C Corp, even though the store is on her land.

"They claim the head lease allows them to do this," she says.

The head lease is in place because Boisvert owns the property and leases it to C Corp, who in turn sub-leases it to a Red Rooster owner. She claims there is no head lease in place.

Boisvert is also involved in the court battle because of the new lease which she says is only for one year at a time. (Leases were running at 10 years before C Corp took over the companies.)

"You can't even sell your business (with only a one-year lease guarantee)," Boisvert said.

Boisvert has been served with an eviction notice which takes effect at the end of February. While the courts battle over the lease however, a stay of proceedings allows her to remain in the location.

Galavan has not been served with an eviction notice but has had "a few threatening letters."

Peggy Metcalfe, manager of the other Drayton Valley Red Rooster Store could not say whether the owner (who is on holiday) was planning to join the Red Basket Food Store group.

Dick Smith has been operating the Red Rooster Store in Evanburg for just over a year and says he has no comment to the situation.

"I'm not ready to switch to Red Basket yet."

Owner of C Corp, Claude Perrault, would not comment on whether he was prepared for the legal battle or why the changes in the leases were made or even if more eviction notices would be served on Red Basket stores.

"We are before the courts and I'd better not make any comment," Perrault said.

The owners who have joined with Red Basket have switched grocery suppliers to Wallace and Gary Foods, and have recommended a sign company to other dissatisfied Red Rooster owners to change their signs to Red Basket.

Galavan has not changed his sign yet, but is only waiting for the sign company to fit him into their busy schedule.

AGT's new Long Distance rates and Calling Packages let you call more often for less money!

Call distant friends, stay in touch with family, call long distance for any reason at all and take advantage of low AGT Long Distance rates. Starting February 1, 1989, you can save an average of:

- 11.5% on direct dial calls to British Columbia (excluding areas served by Northwestel)
- 2% on calls to Saskatchewan And you'll continue to save:
- up to 20% on direct dial calls within Alberta
- an average of 18% on calls in Canada, east of Saskatchewan
- an average of 17% on calls to the United States (excluding Alaska and Hawaii)

In addition to these savings, you may save even more by choosing one or both of AGT's new Long Distance Calling Packages:

Community Calling™

If you make regular AGT Long Distance calls to an Alberta community within 80 kilometres of yours, Community Calling lets you call more often for less money.

Pay just $2 per month for each community you call, and save 30% off the per-minute rate of direct dial calls to that destination. Now available between more than 2,000 Alberta centres!

"Between Friends"™

"Between Friends" is a new convenient way to buy AGT Long Distance. A set monthly fee for the first 30 minutes of calls makes it easier to estimate what your next phone bill will be. You can make any combination of calls, and talk longer than 30 minutes for the same flat rate on a per-minute basis.

You can choose the Alberta Plan or the Canada & U.S. Plan, or choose both, depending on your calling patterns! The details on this new and exciting AGT service are now on their way to your mailbox!

Warburg ratepayers criticize electoral divisions

By Paul Flegel

A small group of Warburg ratepayers recently gave a lukewarm reception to two proposals for new electoral divisions in the county of Leduc.

At the first of three meetings designed to gather public input, the vocal group of residents criticized the county proposal to maintain seven electoral divisions despite a loss of 20 per cent of the county to the new municipal district of Brazeau.

"I think there should only be five (electoral divisions) now that we've lost that whole area on the west end," offered Warburg farmer Burt Rimer.

"They've got to look at the smaller area, the number of roads and such. They've got to cut back — we're losing all this revenue."

Alvin Meyer, another area farmer who suggested the current county system is

"top heavy" with administration, is worried county revenue losses will result in higher taxes for rural residents.

"We lost money over the (Edmonton International) airport, Nisku (industrial park) and what if the province takes over the Genesee power plant? If you try to make it up in taxes ... pretty soon there won't be any farmers left."

Reeve Norman Bittner said future tax increases would not be drastic but explained the county will lose about $1.2 million in revenue and incur a net loss because of the recent Brazeau annexation. Nevertheless, he stressed the need to retain seven councillors to handle the committee workload.

He said there would still be a heavy workload regardless of the number of divisions.

"There will be no fewer committees to handle the county workload. In some cases, they (councillors) will have more work to do."

Asked how much money would be saved by employing five instead of seven councillors, Bittner said councillors are paid by the number of meetings they attend and money would only be saved at meetings attended by all councillors.

High school cafeteria on drafting board

A cafeteria for the Frank Maddock high school is still on the drafting board.

Principal Al Day says the idea of a cafeteria was included on a list of school priorities sent to the County of Parkland in October.

It's Day's understanding the county would forward the request as part of their five-year building plan, on to the Twin Rivers school division.

While students have expressed a need for a cafeteria, Day says the high school doesn't really have the space.

Eldorado appropriate for ECS

Eldorado elementary would be the most appropriate school for an ECS program in Drayton Valley, according to the Twin rivers school division.

The board admitted however, that space was limited in Eldorado and a study would have to assess the possibility of the program. School superintendent Dr. George Bevan said he would undertake a study on an ECS program in Drayton Valley. He will look at transportation, enrollment, costs and accommodation of students in an ECS program to start next September.

The possibility of having the ECS program in the old Eldorado portables was discussed and would be looked at as well.

Bevan said he would hopefully have the study completed by March.

As well as the Feb. 1 meeting, trustee Carolyn Strand asked for a study to be done on the boundaries of the school district.

Area attendance at Breton, Lindale and Drayton Valley schools will be looked at before any new boundaries are set.

The board also passed a motion making the Twin Rivers school board office totally smoke-free.

Child's play leading cause of fire deaths

Children are fascinated by fire, whether it's a campfire, birthday candles, or an adult smoking. A child's curiosity about fire can lead to playing with fire. Such fire play can bring about deadly and destructive fires.

Children playing with fire was the leading cause of fire deaths and the third leading cause of fires in Alberta homes in 1987. These fires numbering 385, claimed eight persons (seven of whom were children), injured 21 persons and caused property damage of $2.1 million. It is not known how many of the fires, determined to have been started by children, were set deliberately and how many were set accidentally during fire play.

Children who set fire can be divided into three types: curiosity fire-setters, problem fire-setters and delinquent fire setters.

Curiosity fire-setters

This child plays with fire out of curiosity and unintentionally starts a fire.

He is normally a boy three to 10 years of age, with no behavior problems. This child will generally only set one fire.

To prevent this type of problem parents should:

Keep matches and lighters out of children's reach. Teach children that if they find matches or lighters, they should take them to an adult.

Avoid using a cigarette lighter to pacify a baby who is crying.

Teach older children that "a match is a tool, not a toy" and teach them to use matches safely. Under adult supervision, let them light the birthday candles, explaining to them the dangers of fire.

Teach children how to stop, drop and roll if their clothing catches fire.

Never leave small children unattended in the presence of candles, fireplaces or wood stoves which can tempt them to experiment.

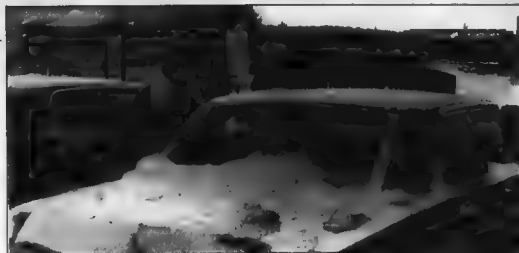

Watch for signs of fire-play - experimentation, matches in pockets, burns or smoky odor on the clothing.

Problem fire-setters

These children are usually five to 13 years of age, almost always boys and having a history of school and social problems. They usually set fires out of anger or frustration.

Usually more than one fire is set, mostly in and around the home. Stress and trauma in the child's life such as moving, a new baby, death, divorce or abuse may also trigger fire-setting behavior.

This kind of fire-setting behavior should be treated with counselling, with the school and fire department involved, and possibly also psychological evaluation and therapy.

RCMP to the rescue

Const. Grant MacDonald helped a local senior clear snow last week after the blizzard left many stranded.

Successful farming takes more than growing and producing says Cripps

Value adding to agricultural products and marketing Alberta's agriculture products are exciting challenges in diversifying the province's agriculture industry, says associate minister of agriculture, Shirley Cripps.

Cripps told the annual Uniform convention in Edmonton that a thriving agriculture community needs to continue to add value to its products to prosper.

"It's not just growing and producing, but also value enhancing and getting the product to market that's important."

She also told convention delegates they shouldn't underestimate the impact of major events like the Calgary Olympics in opening doors for Alberta products. She says in her trade mission travel since the February Olympics she hasn't had to explain where Alberta is.

The trade agreement with the United States and trade missions to the Pacific Rim are the two of the most exciting market potentials she says.

Cripps is also enthusiastic about Alberta's ability to produce, market and sell agricultural technology and products to China, South Korea and Japan. Consumers in the buoyant Japanese and Korean economies are looking for more product variety at a cheaper price, she says. Their governments are looking at liberalizing trade.

Japan currently imports $40 billion worth of food annually. Canadian food exports there total $2 billion and Alberta's share is $300 million. Cripps says the province's total can be higher.

'Bear' wins Liberal nomination

By Belinda Atkinson
Garth "Bear" Werschler announced March 1 that his first move as Liberal candidate for the Drayton Valley constituency will be to trap a Thurber.

Filling a bear trap with play money, a pension plan and a travel magazine, he said, "In order to trap a Thurber, you have to offer the things he wants."

Werschler admitted his former political involvement is limited to complaining about politicians such as PC candidate Thomas Thurber, but the husky Alder Flats man still won the Liberal nomination by a landslide.

Sole runningmate Dr. Lila Fahlman, of Seba Beach, was eliminated in the first ballot with only 10 votes to the entertainment producer's 68.

"I never aimed to get involved," he said, "but I looked at my son who is an honor student and I was scared there would be nothing left for him."

Werschler complained the Drayton Valley constituency sits on one of the largest oil fields in the province, the Pembina field, and yet schools and roads are inadequate.

He blamed Conservative "rats" in Edmonton for ignoring rural voters' needs and vowed to "tree some of those rats."

"They'll know when the Bear's on their butts," he said.

Werschler attacked the provincial government for funding businessmen, farmers, and oil companies when marketable loans would be more mutually beneficial.

"It would be better to loan them the money, not at 12 per cent (interest) but at one per cent and make it over 25 years," he said.

"At least then we know the government is going to get the money back."

Having a background in agriculture, construction and the oil industry, as well as the distinction of owning the only rural take-out pizza business in North America, Bear said he's seen all sides of the constituency and recognizes the Conservative's inadequacies.

He condemned the PCs for building hospitals in urban areas and leaving them empty while rural hospitals are forced to close beds to compensate for a lack of funding.

He said more money must be put into our hospitals so they can properly perform their functions: stabilizing trauma and extended care for the elderly.

Bear asked supporters to accept his "year and a day" policy which would allow him that amount of time to learn the ropes.

"If I can't do a job within a year and a day, I'll step down," he said.

He said he would appoint people from all walks of life — farmers, loggers, oil workers, pensioners and others — to a board which would decide whether he had addressed the problems in the constituency.

After Garth "Bear" Werschler won the Liberal nomination, he brought his bear trap which he renamed the Thurber trap.

Martin gets close decision

By Wendy Carruthers

A unanimous decision has put Lynne Martin in the driver's seat for the New Democrats in the upcoming provincial election.

During the NDP nomination meeting Feb. 2 in Warburg, Martin battled with Lawrence Dublenko to represent the Drayton Valley constituency after March 20.

Martin was schooled in Breton and Red Deer College. She is currently working toward her electrical apprenticeship.

About 80 people filled the hall, with 63 voting members of the New Democratic party making the choice of their representative.

Martin concentrated her speech on slamming the Conservative government for misspending tax dollars and a new platform for the NDP.

"I think (Premier) Getty called this election (too soon) to give him an advantage," Martin said, adding that the large turnout of NDP supporters may change his mind.

Martin said the NDP had been holding public hearings for the last two years and have come up with a "very positive platform" for this election.

"There has been a steady decline in the rural population in Alberta," she said. "Fifteen families leave the farm every week."

With that, the NDP wants to cooperate with different agencies to create a debt moratorium board. This board would hear what the farmer has to say before any foreclosure on his farm. And to create lower lending rates for farmers.

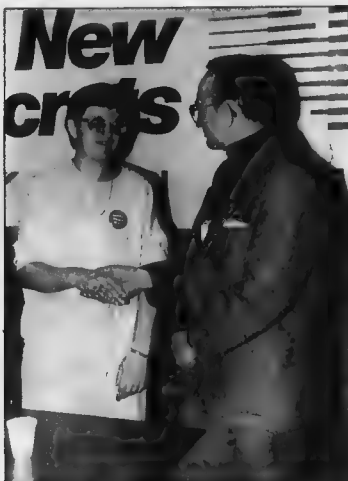

Martin also said the NDP opposes the closure of rural post offices.

"Rural post offices are a very intricate part of any rural community."

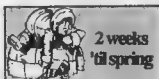

Ridding Albertans of the federal communications tax on long distance phone calls was another NDP objective. "The tax is especially discriminatory to rural people," Martin stressed. Day care was a big issue in Martin's speech, who would like to see it become non-profit and tighten up the standards for workers.

Lynne Martin is congratulated by opponent Lawrence Dublenko after her nomination victory.

The warm weather is scheduled to stay around for another week. The Edmonton weather office is calling for a high of plus 3 C today (Tuesday) with an overnight low of -6 C.

On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, look for a high of 0, cloudy conditions and an overnight low of -14 C. Wednesday and -11 C. Thursday and Friday. There is a 40 per cent chance of flurries or showers on Thursday.

Local News Briefs

Dennis Grotkowski, who spent five years in Drayton Valley with the RCMP, has been appointed sergeant with the Barrhead detachment.

There's no word on the new IGA store that is supposed to be built on the lot south of Fields.

The MD is now accepting applications for its community recreation cultural grant. The deadline for the request is March 31.

Alberta Municipal Affairs hopes to hold an open house March 20 or 21 to discuss the airport vicinity protection area regulations.

The MD will hold public meetings on April 17 at its office in Drayton Valley and the following night in the basement of the Breton Civic Centre. Both meetings are scheduled for 8 p.m.

The official population for the MD of Brazeau is 5,448. In contrast the County of Leduc population is 12,555 and there are 21,397 people in the County of Parkland.

Jim Kosh, who chalked up five straight victories in winning the Drayton Valley men's bonspiel was defeated in the 'A' final at the seniors' playoffs in Medicine Hat. Kosh lost out to Bill Clark of Calgary in the seniors' final.

The Twin Rivers school board expect tomorrow's (Wednesday) public meeting to discuss the 'special education survey' report, will be well attended.

The meeting gets underway at 1 p.m. in the MD council chambers.

Prior to the start of every Twin Rivers school board meeting a prayer is held.

A new residential subdivision is being planned in the Drayton Valley area.

Oil spill

Traffic was restricted to one lane near the junction of the Rocky Rapids and Cynthia corner on Hwy 22 last Thursday when a pup trailer came loose from a Baumann Trucking rig. It created a small oil spill. A vacuum truck from Nelson Oilfield Services was called in to suck up the oil.

Local returning officer prepares for election

With the provincial election on Feb. 20, polling stations have been set up and ballot boxes are being prepared.

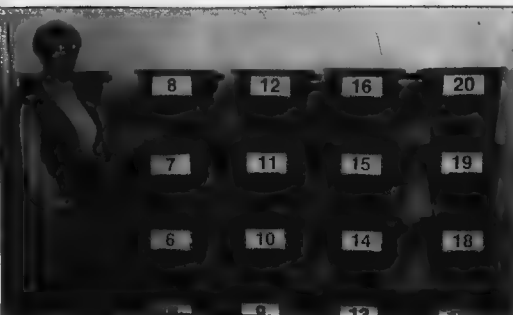

Poling places have been listed in The Western Review in the election proclamation advertisement.

Nomination of candidates for the Drayton Valley constituency will be completed by March 6, when no further candidates may step forward.

There will be an advance poll March 15, 17 and 18 for those voters who will not be in the area on election day. Eligible voters must be at least 18 years of age, residents of Alberta for the previous six months and of course be Canadian citizens.

Drayton Valley returning officer Marlene J. Samis is ready to answer any questions about the upcoming election.

She can be reached at 542-5607 or 542-5696. Or interested parties can drop by the election office at 4232-52 Ave., Drayton Valley.

Marlene Samis prepares ballot boxes.

Twin Rivers division may add new school

The Twin Rivers school board has some major decisions to make in the next two months regarding upgrading local and area schools.

Superintendent Dr. George Bevan says the board is looking at two major decisions.

One possibility will see Eldorado modernized, adding larger rooms for classes and making space available for a ECS (Elementary Childhood Services) program.

At the same time the board would have to decide it they wanted to expand both Eldorado and Evergreen to K-6 (Kindergarten to Grade 6) schools.

By 1994, Dr. Bevan says there's a good chance a new K-6 school will be built in the north end of town. The site will depend on finding a suitable location.

If the board went to three K-6 schools, it would also be looking at modernizing and upgrading H.W. Pickup junior high. And, something might be done about providing some sort of cafeteria at Frank Maddock high.

Another possibility would see a new K-9 school which would mean that extra space wouldn't be needed at H.W. but it would still require modernization.

According to Bevan, the board will also have to consider the school at Lindsale and two at Breton in its plans.

But before any building can proceed, the board needs approval from the school building branch. "They have to give their support. The board can't proceed without it," Bevan says.

"You only have to be 16 to work in a daycare and 18 to be a supervisor."

Martin said the NDP would promote full-time on-site directors in each daycare that hold an early childhood development degree.

Job creation was a "number one priority" on the new platform Martin proposed.

"An Alberta works program to build roads, sewer systems and other services in municipalities," Martin said was one idea the NDP was putting forward to decrease the unemployment rate in Alberta.

Small business would also benefit from the new platform with a re-evaluation of loans to small business.

A new program to give money to young people to start their own small business was also part of the job creation scheme.

Martin touched on the health care system, opposing the two-tier system and partial privatization of health care.

"The Conservative government needs to cut back on their own spending and end the 'giveaways' to corporations," Martin stressed.

With the largest cabinet of any province and the highest paid deputy ministers, Martin asked where the belt tightening of the government has occurred.

"I don't like being bribed with my own money."

Local hockey clubs overcome hurdles

It's been an eventful winter on the local hockey scene.

Most teams faced up to the fact that they would be late getting into the new Drayton Sports Centre.

And, while many of their opponents were on the ice a month ahead of them, local teams seemed to resign themselves to the cold, hard facts.

If the delay in getting into the $1.5 million sports centre wasn't bad enough, minor hockey went round-and-round on getting a much-needed outdoor rink built.

Just when it appeared they had the materials and some of the money in place, town council decided to hire a contractor and build the rink themselves. The town also said they would take care of providing the storage lockers under the seats.

Minor hockey president Lanny Schultz and his executive are to be commended for getting over the many hurdles they've faced this year.

It hasn't been easy, but minor hockey has shown the grit and determination to make the best of the situation.

Those who organized the Pile Base Rangers pee wee trip to Denver are also to be commended. If nothing else, the trip was a good educational tool.

The recent incident involving a stripper at the sports centre is an isolated case. The team responsible has apologized and will accept the town's three month-suspension.

While the end of another hockey season is near, there's one more major event left.

The Lariettes, who have done their best to promote women's hockey, will host the provincials later this month.

It's an excellent way to cap another season.

Los Angeles Kings lack Gretzky and discipline

The Los Angeles Kings are a much improved hockey club but they still have one major problem.

Many of their players lack discipline.

That was quite obvious in their recent 4-1 loss to the Oilers.

When the Kings finally got on the scoresheet, but still trailed by two goals, one of their players took 14 minutes in penalties. In fact, they seem to play most of the third period short-handed.

Maybe it was because of all those penalties that Wayne Gretzky & Company had trouble getting on track.

Attending the game also allowed me the opportunity of visiting with the Kings Phil

One thing I really missed at the game was the replays. I guess that's the number one reason I don't get into Edmonton to see more games. The TV game is far superior in my books.

The new $750,000 leisure centre at Birchwood Village Greens (Lindale) is on schedule.

It includes an indoor swimming pool, pro shop, spike room and lockers on the main floor. There's a fully-equipped kitchen on the top floor that is supposed to seat 300 people.

Penalty too harsh

This letter is to you, the people of Drayton Valley and the persons directly and indirectly involved or offended with the incident that occurred on Feb. 10, at the Drayton Valley Sports Centre. We, the "Black" team, as a team, would like to apologise to anyone that was involved or hurt by the action taken by our team. We do realize that by bringing an entertainer of this type into a public place such as an arena was not a very mature and/or responsible gesture. As a team, we accept the action taken against us by the town for our involvement and will serve the suspension given.

However, as a team, we can not accept the ruling handed down by our league, forcing us to disembody the team for the next hockey season. The decision to restrict not more than three players of our team to join any of the other 12 teams already in the league is not accepted by us. There are a few members who are directly responsible for the start of recreational hockey in Drayton Valley and have given many hours to the organization of the league. Our team has represented the town in many surrounding tournaments throughout the past years and have always been invited back. Many of our players were not directly responsible for what took place after the hockey game. However, we are a team and will take our suspension as a team.

Catholic school board not 'private school'

I wish to draw your attention to an error in a headline on page two of the Feb. 21 issue. That headline in referring to "the catholic school board" refers to "private school". That is incorrect.

The Drayton Valley Roman Catholic Separate School Board is a publicly-funded separate school board, created under the authority of the School Act, just as the other dimension of the publicly-funded system of education; namely the public schools are.

Rocky residents cautious

In recent weeks, a representative for Amoco Canada has interviewed residents of the Rocky Rapids area, in order to ascertain the depth of local water wells, and general statistics on levels of water contained therein.

According to the information we have received, the government requires Amoco to conduct field flood operations in order to increase oil recovery. For this reason, Amoco has applied for a permit from the department of environment, to drill a water source well, with a proposed water output of 50 gallons per minute.

Water usage of this amount, could seriously affect the groundwater supplies which the community depends on.

This fact has caused grave concern among the residents of the hamlet of Rocky Rapids, and surrounding area.

River frontage needs protection

Since last fall myself and a group of local residents have been trying to preserve a stretch of river frontage from development.

This area on the land use map is deemed Recreation District and is located south of Violet Grove along the North Saskatchewan River. This particular site is used year-round for recreation. Many families swim, fish, canoe, snowmobile, ride horseback...and enjoy the sand dunes scattered throughout the trees.

The M.D. in conjunction with Public Lands, has allowed an excavation for gravel to proceed with much criticism and outcry from local residents. A grazing lease was denied here because too many people were enjoying these recreational benefits (as well as the natural beauty and wildlife habitat).

After two very brief meetings, the Municipal Planning Commission saw fit to issue a development permit even without permitted road access. They had likely never seen this area, but did have the foresight to do a site inspection while there was half a foot of snow on the ground.

Your last week's article claims "the municipal district of Brazeau is going to bat for...area residents" which seems to me not to be the case at all. Our goal was to show that with hundreds of acres under disposition for gravel, there is no need for further violation for a place so special.

I was naive in believing the decision of the Planning Commission would be swayed by all those who voiced their objections.

Local hospital will have to make do with grant

By Belinda Atkinson

The local hospital will have to make its share of the $101-million provincial operating grant increase work, says the executive director.

"I guess you can always say you'd love to have more but I'm going to do the best with what we have," Jim Jansen said last week.

Health Minister Nancy Betkowski announced the five-per-cent increase last December but Jansen said he received no personal confirmation until recently.

The local share may be more or less than five per cent, depending on need, and larger institutions such as the Alberta Hospital may receive as much as eight per cent.

"I might get a lot less," he said.

If so, Jansen said he will compensate by reducing the hospital's occupancy rate in order to reduce payroll expenditures.

"Basically, what I'll do is reduce the volume through the summer when employees want to take holidays," he explained.

Though Jansen is pleased with the $101 million negotiated by the provincial government and Alberta Hospital Association, other administrators say their share of the increase will not be enough.

Jim Ramsbottom, executive director of the Drumheller Regional Health Complex, said the funding will only allow his institution to "catch up" after budget cutbacks from two years ago.

Ramsbottom called it nothing more than a "pre-election announcement" but Jansen disagreed.

"It was all done well in advance of any election call," he said.

And while Jansen has the option of reducing volume to compensate for a strained budget, smaller hospitals do not.

Realtor receives worldwide acclaim

By Sue Kenyon
Wayne MacKinnon of Drayton Valley received international acclaim last month when he received the Centurian Award in Dallas, Texas for excelling in real estate sales.

This is MacKinnon's fourth consecutive year holding this honor. MacKinnon has been selling real estate for Century 21 locally for the past seven years.

MacKinnon was unable to attend the convention but owner of the local Century 21, Lorne Pinkoski and manager Audrey MacLure were in attendance.

"There were a large number of delegates that came from all over the world. It gave us a chance to discuss differences in economy and in the cultural aspect of the real estate industry," MacLure said.

MacKinnon also received the 1988 National Presidents Club award. MacKinnon was chosen number 10 out of 7,000 other agents.

"It entitles me to a membership in the President's Club which recognizes the top 21 per cent," MacKinnon said.

The convention was attended by many notables including former U.S. president Gerald Ford, singer/actor Pat Boone, country music star Barabara Mandrell and trainer Tom Hopkins.

Century 21 is the top corporate sponsor for Easter seals. National Easter Seal child, 10-year-old Joy Hall was introduced to the convention and Pinkoski said he was very impressed by her.

"She had braces on both legs, but this little girl was so cheerful," he said.

This is the fourth consecutive year Wayne MacKinnon has won the Centurian Award for excelling in sales at Century 21. Left, Lorne Pinkoski presents MacKinnon with his award.

Long waiting list for mental health patients

By Frank Ryan

People making appointments to see the mental health counsellor in Drayton Valley can expect a long wait.

Kelly Frederickson estimates his waiting list ranges between two and three months.

It's not a new problem. Just one that keeps surfacing.

And at least two schools are feeling the effects.

Jim Wolff, a counsellor at Frank Maddock high school said he has noticed an increase in his workload.

Wolff says his workload has increased drastically during the past four months.

He was unaware of Frederickson's workload, but after being informed of the situation, said it all started to make sense.

"There's more business here than one mental health counsellor can handle," Wolff admits.

Chris Kelly, principal at Evergreen elementary is also concerned.

"People don't know where to turn," he says.

Kelly says he was aware of the crisis, because he had been sending people to Frederickson.

MLA Shirley Cripps says the biggest problem province-wide is the lack of mental health workers.

She promised to look into the concerns, but had to have some letters indicating there was a problem.

Frederickson says people making appointments are both shocked and disappointed.

He says an increase in the number of referrals since Christmas has created most of the current problems.

Hockey players off to Europe

Two Drayton Valley hockey players are off to Europe next week.

Bruce Rezewski and Jason Polk, who play with Chevron in the Oilmen's/Commercial Hockey League will play five games in an 11-day span in Europe.

They are part of a 17-player squad that will make up Team Western. The team also includes players from B.C., Saskatchewan, Manitoba, New Jersey and New York. The team will play their games in Finland, Sweden and Holland.

The two Drayton Valley players plan to stay an extra four days and travel to Germany and Switzerland. It will be their first-ever trip to Europe.

"I'm really excited. I can hardly wait," Rezewski told The Western Review.

The excitement of the trip actually starts next Monday when they will be interviewed by CBC radio.

The two players learned about the trip through an article which appeared in The Western Review. They applied and shortly after learned they had made the team, which was selected on the basis of the first 17 calls.

Their cost of $2,400 includes all air flights, an overnight 14-hour cruise, accommodation, team jackets, jerseys with their names on the back and equipment bags.

They leave March 16 on what promises to be a one of their longest hockey trips ever.

Rezewski says that if everything works out, he can see more local players applying next year.

There's lots of fishing spots in this area.

Fishing regulations change

Several changes and amendments to Alberta's sport fishing regulations have been announced by the provincial government.

"Albertans are able to enjoy some of the best fishing in Canada and these changes will work to conserve our fish stocks and optimum fishing conditions," says LeRoy Fjordbotten, Minister of Forestry, Lands and Wildlife.

"The amendments are based on proposals made by our fish and wildlife division and by informed and concerned public interest groups," he added.

Some of the amendments include:

- * Implement a catch and release fishery for trout and arctic grayling on the headwater portion of the Little Smoky River, and a possession limit of two trout and arctic grayling in other parts of the river upstream of Fox Creek.

- * Establish on a province-wide basis a 15-inch (38 cm) minimum length limit for walleye. All walleye smaller must be released. The objective is to reduce the catch of small walleye to allow them to grow to a more generally acceptable size.

- * Reduce the catch limit for walleye from five to three fish, and remove the daily catch limit of two walleye per day and four in possession from April 1 to the Friday preceding the Victoria Day holiday.

- * Close fishing from April 1 to the Friday preceding the Victoria Day weekend on Gull, Sylvan and Pine lakes.

- * Permanently close Pinto Lake (near Nordegg) and the outlet stream downstream for 1.5 km.

- * Close the Cline River (near Nordegg) and its tributaries to fishing from Sept. 1 to March 31.

- * Close Job Lake (near Nordegg) to sport fishing for three years. This is due to a massive mud slide into the lake in 1986 which greatly reduced trout spawning.

- * To reduce the daily catch at Lost Guide Lake (near Nordegg) from five to two trout.

- * Extend the length of the fishing closure at Gap Lake (near Nordegg) by two weeks. It will now be closed to fishing from Oct. 1 to Nov. 30.

Further details on all the changes are available at fish and wildlife offices in Drayton Valley and Evansburg.

Golf club needs money

The Breton Golf Club has approached the MD of Brazeau for some financial help.

President Alvin Strand and vice-president Jim Wheale made a presentation to the MD councillors last Tuesday.

As part of a vision, Strand told the MD the Breton course visions 200 members by 1990 with over 2,500 walk-ons. The course expects to be self-sufficient for operational purposes.

The vision also includes capital projects which will require the continuing cooperation and assistance of the MD.

For starters, the course needs a 40-hp tractor with front end loader, three-point hitch and turf tires. It's expected to cost between $13,000 and $17,000.

The club also wants to purchase the land where the course is located. At the present time the land forms part of the land bank for the Village of Breton.

Cost of the 123 acres where the golf course is located will cost the club $97,327.

MD Reeve Henry Rondeau, says any decision on the request for funding won't be discussed until budget time. That is expected to be sometime in April.

"The Breton golf club is dedicated to the preservation of the working man's golf course. We are determined to maintain low yearly passes ($60 this year) and reasonable green fees ($6 per day) so everyone can play," Strand informed the MD.

Their membership has grown from 54 in 1984 to 151 last year. Over 1,200 golfers took out green fees last year.

Park Valley pool offers busy month

Park Valley Pool has lots of family activities planned for March.

On St. Patrick's Day, March 17, a special leisure swim is planned from 3:30 to 8:30 p.m. They suggest to wear something green and join in the shamrock hunt.

The pool will be closed Good Friday, March 24, and on Easter Monday, March 27.

They will be open on Easter Sunday, March 26, and will have an Easter egg hunt from 5 to 7 p.m. There is a draw for a chocolate Easter bunny during the Easter leisure swim from 2 to 5 p.m.

During spring break watch for the 'Looney Swim'. Admission on this day will be one looney. There will be looney cartoons and Looney games from 1 - 3 p.m.

On March 30 the staff will perform in a "just for fun" water show from 1:30 to 2 p.m.

Starting April 4, for the first time, the pool will be running a 'starts and turns' program. Registration cost is $18. The classes will run every Tuesday and Thursday, April 4 to May 4 from 4 to 4:30 p.m.

Park Valley Pool hopes to try and run a scuba course. New dates are April 18 to May 23 (Tuesdays) from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. (class) and 9 to 11 p.m. (pool). Please register at the pool. The course needs at least eight candidates. For more information call 542-5749.

Boxing club wins medals

Members of the Derrick Boxing Club have been busy lately.

Two boxers, Shawn Harden and Carl Schmidt, won silver medals at the Golden Gloves in Hobbsville.

Harden collected his silver when he lost out to a Grassland, Sask. fighter in the final of the 106-pound class.

Schmidt, who got a bye in his first fight, lost out in the 126-pound final to Rick Twinn of Slave Lake.

Shelby Harden, who hadn't fought in seven years lost out to Terry Buck of the Cougar Club in an exhibition match. The fight was arranged after Harden, who was scheduled to fight in the 190-pound heavyweight category, didn't have an opponent.

All three fighters are on the road this week to Edmonton and the provincials to be staged at the Regency Hotel Saturday and Sunday.

Last month the club took five boxers to a card in Spokane, Washington.

Doug Peachler, 20, stopped his opponent in the second round to win the 147-pound class.

Neil Tatnault lost his 75-pound bout David Szatkowski got head-butted in the first round and his corner had to throw in the towel, Darcy Crompton of Warburg lost a 139-pound bout and Michael Hodgkinson didn't have a fight due to the lack of an opponent.

Clippers take second in gold medal midget hockey

The Drayton Valley Clippers had to settle for second place at a midget hockey tournament held in Rocky Mountain House on the weekend.

The local squad dropped a 6-3 decision to Whitecourt in the gold medal game. Cory Dusterhoft netted two goals and Len Johnson added the other.

Goaltending school offered

The Canadian Professional Hockey Schools will be offering its exclusive professional goaltending school this summer in Edmonton and Calgary.

The school will cover all aspects of goaltending. Sessions will be video-taped and played back in classroom for evaluation.

The goaltenders' school is open for all ages and offers an exclusive adult instruction program for recreational players.

For a free brochure including an application and complete information on the goaltenders' schools and the hockey schools for forwards, defense, as well as the three-day specialized hockey skills clinics in power skating, goaltending, shooting and checking, write Box 8382, Edmonton, AB, T6H 4W6 or phone (403) 435-8331.

The local squad started out on the wrong foot Friday as they dropped a 6-3 decision to the host Rocky Royals. Serge LaCoste, Warren Schneider and Johnson had the Drayton Valley goals.

But they rebounded with two wins on Saturday. First they downed Peace River 6-5 with Mike Enyedy, Adrian Aginas, Johnson, Schneider and LaCoste getting the goals.

And to advance to the finals, the Clippers downed Airdrie 3-2. Johnson, Aginas and Dusterhoft had the goals for the winners.

The Clippers' tourney opens Friday with an 8 p.m. game.

Rangers lose in overtime

Stettler was victorious in a weekend playoff against the local Pile Base Rangers.

Stettler took the Rangers 3-2 Friday in Drayton Valley and 8-7 Sunday in Stettler.

After accounting regulation time for the second game, referees determined a 9-3 tie and granted a 10-minute overtime.

Stettler bounced into action and scored two goals against the local team.

Lariettes win on foreign ice

The Lariettes tasted victory on foreign ice last weekend but couldn't find a win at home.

The Lariettes took the Mojós 4-2 in Mayerthorpe Saturday with help from Rachelle Bills, Kerry and Nicki Baumann and Mandy Nelson.

When in Drayton Valley, Sunday, the Mojós retaliated with a 5-2 win.

The Lariettes will take on the Edmonton Roos March 19 in Drayton Valley.

Tragedy strikes family twice

By Belinda Atkinson
Fawn Severed was in the process of re-organising her life when tragedy struck again, her former sister-in-law said last week.

The 23-year-old mother of one would soon move to Calgary, attend BAIT and leave behind memories attached to the home where her and former commonlaw husband, Stephen Harold, 38, lived until his death Christmas Eve.

Because of that impending move, Maurice Fortier, 29, asked to say goodbye to his former friend's wife but the visit resulted in tragedy when the pair slipped off the fifth-story balcony of Edmonton's Riviera Hotel.

"She was a beautiful person," said Debbie Swallow, former sister-in-law. "She kept Stephen in line."

Swallow remembered first meeting Fawn in Grande Prairie in 1984 when she and Stephen were dating.

"I thought there was too big of an age difference at first," she said, "but it worked really well because Stephen was young at heart and Fawn was mature."

The couple moved to Drayton Valley in September 1985. Stephen continued his welding trade while Fawn upgraded her education through the local consortium.

Fawn became pregnant but still received her high school diploma.

"She went to classes all through her pregnancy. The baby was born in June 1987, but she still graduated with her class," Swallow said.

Daughter Heather was only a year-and-a-half old when a car accident near Thorsby took the life of her father and uncle, Donald Kuehl, 20.

"I don't think (Stephen's death) would have really sunk in until the move," Sparrow said. "Stephen was away a lot and I think (Fawn) just imagined he was working."

The couple planned to visit his daughters (from a previous marriage) over Christmas and see his grandchild for the first time.

Sparrow regrets the baby will never know his grandfather. What's worse, she says, is that their daughter Heather will never know her own parents.

"At least if a child is adopted there is a chance of knowing the mom and dad but the only way Heather will know them is through the relatives."

Still mourning the loss of Fawn, Stephen and Donald, the family is trying to put personal sadness aside and focus on Heather's welfare.

"We all want (Heather). We'll just have to see who has the best home to offer," she says, denying an Edmonton Sun report Feb. 28 that Fawn's mother will take the baby.

Swallow has much anger toward the Edmonton Sun. A report describing Fawn and Maurice as "lovers" has tarnished the reputations of two people she says can never defend themselves.

"They were both fully clothed. He wasn't her lover," Swallow blurted. "That's really a bunch of crap."

But Swallow will relate her memories of Fawn as an "elegant young lady" and "excellent mom" who always dressed nice and Stephen as a friendly and "intelligent" man who had read libraries of nonfictional books and was well sought after in his industry.

"It's been a rough year."

Twin Rivers needs new superintendent

The Twin Rivers school division is looking for a new superintendent.

Dr. George Bevan, who has been filling that role, was originally hired on a contract basis to set up and get the division operational.

Bevan says the board hopes to have a new superintendent in place by Sept. 1.

One of the first chores facing the new superintendent will be to select a treasurer.

Bill Weber, who was also hired on a contract basis, will be leaving at the end of September.

Originally, Weber was hired until the end of March, but that contract has since been extended until Sept. 30.

Dr. Bevan told The Western Review it was doubtful he would apply for the superintendent's job.

Association to build playground

The Eldorado School Parents' Association wants to erect a $42,830 playground structure.

They approached the Twin Rivers school board last Wednesday for approval and $6,190.

The town will also be asked for the same amount.

Gail Woyanowich, president of the parents' association informed the school board the total will include one creative playground structure and another specially designed for children two to five years of age.

Volunteer labor will be used to erect the structure.

The parent association hopes to get $20,000 from the community facility enhancement program.

The structure Eldorado is looking at is similar to the ones already being used at Evergreen elementary and McKenzie Park.

It is the school's intention to tear down the present wooden structure and re-build the metal playground on the same site.

That is causing some problems for the school board.

With modernization of the school being discussed, the board is concerned it may extend into the area of the proposed playground.

This old wooden fort will be coming down.

They are also concerned about drainage around the playground site.

As a result, the board will look at hiring an engineer to examine the site and have given the project approval in principal.

The approval did not include permission to proceed or guarantee any financial support.

Clinic gives mom hope

By Belinda Atkinson

Jaime Gilbert's mother received hope last week when a letter arrived from Berkeley Laboratories asking how treatment will be paid for.

"They wouldn't be interested in knowing unless they are going to take her," said Jane Robinson.

For two months, Robinson has anxiously awaited word from the California clinic.

If Jaime is accepted, her mother hopes the 12-year-old girl will be cured of Arterio Venous Malformation (AVM) without having to undergo surgery.

If clinic doctors decide the rare matting of brain arteries must be removed, Jaime will lose speech and memory.

But the letter gave Robinson new confidence that the clinic, which has cured many victims of this rare disorder, will accept Jaime and they'll soon be on their way to San Francisco.

"I've got to have positive thinking or I'll go crazy," she said.

"It's bad enough thinking about a place to stay, how we'll get down there, her having another attack before we do...all these things are just kind of bothering me," she admitted.

Robinson says Jaime is fine. She's bored and has lost the energy and some of the color she had before the attack Dec. 7 but hasn't had any headaches that would signal a worsening condition.

Jaime has gained weight, due to lack of exercise and boredom, and a doctor put her on a diet, but Robinson says this should not interfere with treatment.

"I just want her to get down there as soon as possible," she said.

Rocky Rapids residents are upset with Amoco

In order to increase oil recovery, Amoco Canada proposes to drill a water source well with an output of 50 gallons per minute which has some Rocky Rapids residents concerned with the future water supply.

Eva Cameron, a concerned resident feels it may cause a future shortage of water in that area.

"Fifty gallons of water a minute works out to 72,000 gallons per day; this has got to deplete the water source," Cameron says.

In a notice sent to residents from Amoco, it states:

"Groundwater is a crucial item to a landowner. Amoco Canada understands the concern and commits that it will not take groundwater in such a fashion that it would adversely affect our neighbors' wells."

Amoco Canada says in the past they have got water through a water pumping station on the North Saskatchewan River. This pipeline was destroyed by flooding in 1986. The same pipeline was damaged in 1972 and because of a prone to flooding the company is now reviewing alternate methods.

Amoco says that tests have shown the best layers containing water were found at 134 feet and 181 feet. At 385 feet a less productive water layer exists but Amoco feels it is sufficient for their requirements.

Rocky Rapids residents plan to hold a meeting with Amoco to get their concerns out in the open. No date has yet been set.

New highway group formed

A new highway group has been formed to fight for better conditions on the Lodgepole Road.

The Highway #60 Advocates was formed last Wednesday night in an attempt to push for better conditions along the route.

Danny Kos has been elected president. He will be assisted by vice-president Cliff Whitelock. Janice Kos will handle the secretarial/treasurer chores. Directors include LeRoy Fagervold, Christel Durham, Dovie McGee, Fay Beauchamp, Ron Cameron and Jerry Merwin.

The group is opposed to the provincial government's plan to pave the 18-km section from Lodgepole to the Elk River Road corner and their proposed patching job for other sections of the highway.

They would like to see the section of Highway 620 from Drayton Valley to Lodgepole re-built with proper shoulders.

Drayton Valley Airport Vicinity Protection Area Regulation

The Council of the Municipal District of Brazeau No. 77, the Yellowhead Regional Planning Commission, and the Planning Branch of the Department of Municipal Affairs invites you to attend an Open House regarding the Draft Drayton Valley Airport Vicinity Protection Area (A.V.P.A.) Regulation.

The Drayton Valley Airport Vicinity Protection Area, as proposed, consists of the lands described below:

In Township 49, Range 7, West of the 5th Meridian:

Northeast quarter of Section 21;
West half of Section 27;
West half of Section 28;
East half of Section 28;
Northwest quarter of Section 28;
Section 33.

In Township 50, Range 7, West of the 5th Meridian:

South half of Section 4;
Northwest quarter of Section 4;
Southeast quarter of Section 5.

The Open House provides an opportunity for the public to review the proposed regulation; to find out about the A.V.P.A. Program; and to provide their comments.

The Open House will be held from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. on March 22, 1989 in the terminal building of the Drayton Valley Airport.

The proposed regulation may be viewed in advance at the office of the Municipal District of Brazeau No. 77, the Town of Drayton Valley, the Yellowhead Regional Planning Commission, or the Department of Municipal Affairs in Edmonton.

Trucks bring business to Drayton Valley.

Chamber accepts tender

The chamber of commerce selected a local company Feb. 23 to print this year's tourist brochure.

Breaking a two-year tradition of using Leduc's Lyndard Publishers, the chamber unanimously voted in favor of a tender put forward by Drayton Valley Printers.

Calgary's Meridian Printing and Edmonton's R.L. & Sons Printing had also forwarded tenders but they had not matched the local company's offer, according to Natalie Gibson, chairman of the chamber's tourism committee.

"Quite a few different things were considered," said Gibson, listing quality of work, price and type of press as primary considerations.

She said the brochure will be very similar to last year's 44-page booklet and eight-page business and service directory.

Gibson said the booklet will be completed the third week in May and distributed throughout the Battle River Tourist Association boundaries free of charge.

Trucking industry profit varies

Opinion varies on how much profit the trucking industry brings to Drayton Valley's hotels, restaurants, and service stations.

Many businesses say profits from this transient industry seldom surpass 10 per cent of total sales and drop off dramatically during the summer months.

"We get a lot more business in the winter when trucks are doing a lot of gravel hauling. In the summer they use campers," said Roy Rogers, manager of the Drayton Valley Hotel.

Rogers says an average five to seven per cent of total hotel and restaurant customers work in the trucking industry but during the high season he sometimes turns people away.

Jim Bloemen, manager of the Westwind Motor Inn, says his yearly average is closer to 10 per cent.

"It just depends on the weather and how much work there is," he said.

Mohawk manager Randy Buchanan agrees 10 per cent is an appropriate number when averaging seasonal highs and lows.

Right now, there is the most activity I have seen since last year," he said, adding that number will significantly decrease in the summer.

One hotel owner, however, says his yearly average is closer to 90 per cent when including seismic crews and other truck-related operations.

"We're the biggest hotel. With our room selection and restaurant and bar, our occupancy rate would be the biggest in town," said Black Gold owner Gunther Schmidt.

"We've got a full house all the time," he said.

Even during "spring break" when rigs aren't working, Schmidt says truckers are still in town servicing rigs and although they may sleep in campers, they make full use of the restaurant and bar.

New logo for MD

The MD of Braseau has adopted a new logo that will be appearing on their new welcome signs in the not too distant future.

The new logo is part of a six-foot diameter sign that will be mounted on standards at five locations on highways leading into the municipal district.

The name, Municipal District of Braseau #77, is inscribed around the logo with the centre indicating the agricultural, oil and lumber industries along with hunting, the sun, mountains and water.

Part of the new MD sign will also include the words 'Welcome Home.'

According to Reeve Henry Rondeau this will hopefully promote friendliness.

Now that the logo, selected from 40 submissions which came from individuals and school students, has been finalized, color will be added and prices to have the signs constructed will be obtained.

Future of Winfield school depends on enrolment

By Susan Mosciacki

A meeting attended by 200 community residents at Winfield school last Wednesday, has people wondering if a decision will finally be made regarding the fate of the high school.

Declining enrolment at Winfield school, particularly at the high school level, has forced the community to look at options for the senior high students to be provided with the best education possible.

Three options discussed at the meeting: close the senior high and bus students out of county (of Wetaskiwin) to Breton at a cost of $3,462.83; close the senior high and bus students to Pigeon Lake Regional high school ($20,293.75-$25,183.35, depending on whether one or two buses are added); or to look at a distance education program involving the use of FAX machines. This would cost $10,000 for a minimal program.

Breton high school principal Jim Musson and Bryan Wyley, Pigeon Lake Regional high school principal, offered details of the many courses and extra-curricular activities in their schools (if parents opt for closure).

Bill McCarthy, superintendent of schools, explained the distance education program and referred to it as a "glorified correspondence course" which allows assignments to be marked and returned within 36 hours using FAX machines.

A group of more than 60 concerned parents and taxpayers met Feb. 27 to prepare for Wednesday's meeting. They were represented by Evelyn Mosier, president of the Winfield Chamber of Commerce.

"glorified correspondence course"

"There was some dissatisfaction expressed about how we have been represented by our elected officials," Mosier said. "There has been constant run-around and delayed decisions and there is what has been considered unfair treatment to this area."

People were given the opportunity to ask questions about the options being considered and it appeared several were considering either Breton or distance education. Few believed PLRHS a realistic option. "It's too far," was echoed by several people.

Shellie Herrington, parent of a Grade 11 student, feels the problem is the community as a whole. "They come to the once-a-year meeting and say they're interested in saving their community and school, but you can't get anybody to a PTA meeting."

"constant runaround"

"The board of education, the PTA and community members have been dragging their heels on this issue," Heather Guard, a teacher's aide at Winfield school, stated. "And I feel it's time for everyone to start working towards the students' future."

Fraudulent supplies nets 18-month term

A former Drayton Valley man has been handed a 18-month jail term in Queen's Bench court in Edmonton.

Kirby Lucas, former manager at the Shell bulk plant was also ordered to pay $34,696 to Shell.

According to local RCMP who investigated the case with the help of the Edmonton commercial crime section, Kirby was charged with fraudulently obtaining supplies from the bulk plant.

The investigation concentrated on the time between Dec. 18, 1984 and May 23, 1986.

The preliminary hearing was held in Leduc to accommodate the lawyers and the Queen's Bench court last Wednesday in Edmonton.

Wheeler's win 'A' final

By Shelli Carson
Judy Meade skipped her rink of Pat Stout, Vicki Long and Shirley Meade to a second-event victory at the recent Alder Flats bonspiel, while Liz Long's team of Marlain Davidson, Linda Davis and Noreen Caruthers won third in the first event.

The Warburg Wheelers had a successful weekend by winning the A final in a novice tournament hosted by the Thoraby Stingers. After being down 5-1 at one point in the final match, they mounted a comeback and were victorious 7-6 over J&A Trucking from Drayton Valley. The team was led offensively by Michael Fresson and had superb goaltending from Craig Cunningham.

The Warburg pee wee Devils had a good weekend as well with three wins in as many days.

Forest production company one of 'world's largest'

The oriented strandboard plant in Drayton Valley has joined one of the world's largest integrated forest product companies.

In December last year Pelican Spruce Mills announced their Drayton Valley operation would become a division of Weyerhaeuser.

Weyerhaeuser was incorporated in the state of Washington in January of 1960.

It is principally engaged in the growing and harvesting of timber and the manufacture, distribution and sale of forest products. The company is also engaged in real estate development and construction and in financial services through its unconsolidated subsidiaries, Weyerhaeuser Real Estate Company and Weyerhaeuser Financial Services Inc.

The company owns approximately 5.8 million acres of commercial forest employed in its timber-based land in the United States, 21,000 are covered by and located extremely well to collective bargaining both domestic and international markets. They are negotiated on a multi-year basis.

arrangements in Canada Weyerhaeuser is subject to covering approximately 12 federal, state and local pollution control laws and regulations in all areas in which it has operating facilities.

In 1987, the company sales to customers outside the U.S. totalled $1.7 billion.

The company has 44,800 employees of which 35,800 are located at Kamloops.

Bruzs takes first in ladies bonspiel

By Joan Elmont
Congratulations to Duane and Brenda Hoffman and to grandparents Lawrence and Marion and Harry and Laura Geisbrecht of Edmonton, on the birth of Ashley Brenda Marie, Feb. 13 at the Drayton Valley hospital.

The Alder Flats ladies bonspiel ended with the Heather Bruzink team taking first place in the first event. The Audrey Rainer team placed second with third going to the Margie Doucette foursome.

The Judy Meade rink defeated the Karen Becker team to win the second event. Third place went to the Willie Hark and fourth to the Duperron team.

The winner of the third event was the Judy Melin rink, second was the Barb Seely team, third went to Lorna Markus' team and the Hammond team placed fourth.

A Native Education Inservice Agenda was completely destroyed by weather Feb. 27. Teachers from Alder Flats and Buck Lake along with those from several other county of Wetaskiwin schools managed to attend Pigeon Lake school. Unfortunately all but two of the speakers either ended up in snow drifts or had to turn around when the road was closed.

Buck Lake

Tourism gets $300,000

By Joan Elmont

Sixteen people from Alder Flats, Buck Lake, Yeoford and Winfield areas attended a public meeting hosted by the Wetaskiwin Tourist Action Committee at the Buck Lake hall.

The provincial government has allocated $300,000 to Wetaskiwin to promote tourism in the area.

The committee has identified a number of tourist markets in the county and listed various tourist attractions.

The committee welcomes ideas and input and, where funding is needed for a project, is prepared to consider any tourist-oriented suggestions.

Herman and Carol Seigel announce the arrival of their first grandson, Riley Phillip Seigel, born Feb. 20 at the University Hospital in Edmonton. Proud parents are Darcy and Marjorie Seigel, grandparents Eugene and Margaret La Chance of Warburg and great-grandmother Maggie Seigel of Buck Lake.

Tammy and Lance Schneider announce the arrival Feb. 25 of Randi Michelle. She is a great-granddaughter to Bev Seigel, Loretta and Gordon Schneider, Euphemia Burns and Eva Schneider of Clondonald, Isabel Willows of Rimby and Maggie Seigel of Buck Lake.

Buck Lake school held their Winterfest activity day recently. According to one little guy, "It was the funnest day ever! Can we do it again tomorrow?"

The day wrapped up with a sleigh ride provided by Danny and Dorothy Willows Belgians.

A 'taxation update' hosted by Rimby district agriculturist Ted Ford, attracted six people Feb. 23 at Buck Lake hall.

Students from Alder Flats,

Winfield and Buck Lake along with kindergarten and a few preschoolers enjoyed a show Feb. 28 at the Buck Lake school put on by the Kenupets of Edmonton.

Have you ever had one of those days?

Fountain Tire's Curtis Mitchell found out what it's like changing a tire in the cold.

Manjeet Saran, town engineer, digs out of his garage.

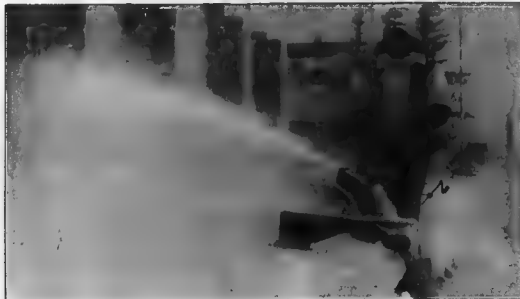

Homeowners were also snowed in.

Dwayne Winter spent last Tuesday trying to get this truck started at the UFA Co-Op.

The town estimates it will cost $30,000 to clean up the recent snowfall.

Despite severe wind chills, this young lady was well dressed as she cleared the walks at the Legion.

This was a familiar sight around town as motorists attempted to get their vehicles operational.

New cenotaph honors war dead

By Susan Moscicki

An air of solemnity surrounded the dedication of the new cenotaph at Alder Flats Legion Hall Jan. 28.

The cement and stone monument was erected in memory of the many men, boys and women who gave their lives serving their country during World Wars I and II and the Korean War.

"It's a wonderful thing they did," said Pastor George Hensch in the opening dedication. "I wonder if I could do it myself, but I hope I would."

"I am indeed honored at this time...to unveil your new cenotaph," said Pete Morrison, first vice president of the Alberta/N.W.T. command. He, too, remembered the war dead in his speech: "Let us not forsake the 100,000 who gave their lives for us."

During the Last Post the crowd of more than 50 was particularly grave.

Hugh Greene, Dominion vice-president, laid a wreath on the cenotaph and the service ended with the singing of God Save The Queen.

The building of the cenotaph was long overdue. "We never had one (cenotaph) before, and every Legion should have one," said Alder Flats Legion president Al Clemmer.

The Legion has had their charter since 1956 and has used a cross setup in the local school for Remembrance Day services in the past.

Legion member Hank Weultjes and past-president Ed Simpson did the majority of the work on the monument, but other members were involved also. It was a "joint venture," according to Clemmer.

Legion members from Wetaskiwin, Rimbey, Winfield, Drayton Valley and other areas participated in the ceremony.

"We attended to lend support—we came to support another Legion in our zone," said Norm Ewan, a Winfield Legion member. "You stick together—you have to."

Ideas exchanged at reception

External Affairs Minister and Yellowhead MP Joe Clark, with 50 of his External Affairs officials and Canadian ambassadors, met about 150 Yellowhead residents at a Jasper Park Lodge reception Jan. 15.

The reception was a unique for Clark and senior officials of External Affairs to exchange ideas with Yellowhead residents on further expanding the economic growth, diversification and trade that have taken place in Alberta since 1984.

At the reception the role of External Affairs in helping ensure the economic prosperity of Yellowhead was informally discussed. External Affairs plays a major role in exporting important Alberta resources such as coal and wood products and in international relations such as settling agricultural subsidy wars.

Sunday's reception was a kick-off to a three-day conference, previously held in Ottawa, where Clark and senior officials began setting Canada's foreign policy priorities for the next four years.

First regular meeting

The Twin Rivers school division board of trustees is hard at work at its first regular meeting, held last Wednesday at the division's administrative building. The six-member board meets on the first Wednesday of every month. Trustees also hope to hold meetings at other schools in the area to provide a chance for all residents to witness the board in action.

Around Town

Don Regenwetter is what you would call a 'super' salesman.

Regenwetter more than demonstrated that during the Kinsmen's New Year's Eve ticket campaign. He sold 180 tickets.

If that isn't amazing enough, he went into the office at Venture Realty and sold one to every staff member, right under the nose of manager Rod Schultz, who just happens to be a Kinsmen member. In defence of Schultz, we understand he was busy with other things.

Carl Pasay, well known curler, has been sporting a cast lately. Apparently he took a bad fall on the ice while skating.

Steve Fletcher, reporter/photographer at The Western Review for the past two years (less one month) leaves on Thursday for Grande Prairie and a news reporting job with The Daily Herald Tribune.

Councillor Alex Salvi says his political career is still undecided. But one thing for sure, he doesn't plan on running for mayor in the next municipal election.

The Drayton Valley Ski Club appears headed for a record season.

Their opening on Jan. 28 before the rain and snow hit, was their 24th of the season, just two openings behind last year's record. They have been open longer, but you have to go a long way back in the minutes to find out when.

'88 farm income up

Provincial farm income was greater in 1988 than in 1987 according to Statistics Canada who pegged total realized net income at an established $1.056 billion last year.

Total realized net income is the income available to pay down principal on debt, for personal consumption and for investment, savings and income tax. The 1988 estimate is almost 50 per cent higher than the 1987 total of $709 million.

Continued strength in the beef sector, price recovery in grains and healthy government program payments all contributed to the increase.

Although the 1988 estimate is a substantial increase over 1987, when adjusted for inflation it is at about the same level as 1981 and still well below income levels of 1974.

Statistics Canada isn't predicting the same positive trend for 1989. The federal agency projects farm income levels will decrease as payments for the Western Grain Stabilization Act and the Special Canadian Grains Program taper off.

A higher portion of crop receipts will be coming from the marketplace in 1989. This year farm income will depend largely on the amount of grains and oilseeds a producer has available for delivery.

Adults can provide support

Knowledge of children's individuality helps adults to understand what stresses them, how they react and what works best to keep the stress under control.

The person must be able to see the stressor through the child's eyes and be able to communicate easily with children in order to gain their trust.

Adults cannot eliminate stressful experiences from children's lives, but they can provide immediate support and a bank of coping alternatives the children can draw upon in the future.

There are several ways in which concerned adults can help children cope with stress.

They can help them develop effective stress-managing techniques by "evaluating their capabilities, setting reasonable expectations for achievement and by providing them with opportunities to gain emotional security."

To do this, they must understand the changes children experience and be aware of children as social beings. Most important is the necessity to be able to lessen the negative effects of the extreme pressure and stress children are experiencing.

A list of concepts and techniques useful for both children and adults in managing stress are:

Awareness; building networks and support systems; successful communication; a healthy self-concept; successful problem solving; relaxation; diet and exercise.

The world of the child is special. As adults, we tend to lose touch with the child within us, and have difficulty understanding children and communicating with them.

Young children live in a world where feelings supply most of their life experiences. Certain events can add joy and excitement to life, while comparable events may produce painful feelings of fear and abandonment.

Understanding that each child perceives situations in different ways is the first step in helping young children cope with stress.

Strand singing in Texas

The community extends sympathy to family and friends of Raymond Movald who was killed in a motor vehicle accident Jan. 13.

Sympathy is also extended to friends and family on the death of Opal Ward Jan. 22.

Congratulations to the Breton Lady Cougars who won the Niton Junction basketball tourney for the second consecutive year.

In hockey action, the Warburg Atoms defeated Beaumont 5-1 in the A final of the Thorby tournament held Jan. 21. The Warburg Devils defeated Lacombe 13-3 in the D final at Alix recently. The Breton Hawks men's team won the Warburg Grizzly tournament.

Several Breton rinks were involved in the Alder Flats bonspiel Jan. 21 and 22. The Roy Young, Alex Waldron, Jack Hiker and Fred Kaita foursome won the third event.

Angela Strand left for Houston, Texas Jan. 16 where she is soloing with Bandwagon Ministries, a musical touring company. She will also be doing volunteer work and rehearsing for her first solo performance to take place in February at the Mid West Conference for all the Covenant Churches in North America. The conference will be held in Colorado.

The next bingo at the New Moose Hill will be Feb. 10.

Don't let fear of public stop you from having fun

By Bev Brooks
District Home Economist

You've got warty palms, dry mouth, increased heart rate, shortness of breath, shaky hands and weak knees.

It's not a rare tropical disease but a result of our number one anxiety—public speaking. Surveys in the United States have found 85 per cent of us feel anxious or uncomfortable speaking in public.

Currently, members of the nine district 4-H clubs are preparing their speeches for club and district competitions. School children often participate in classroom public speaking activities and as adults we have various opportunities to speak to groups of people. This may be a few words at a family reunion or a longer speech to a community or service group. The key to getting through the event with flying colors is to prepare.

Decide on one or two major points you'd like to get across. Then plan the best way to do it. Use jokes sparingly and only if they apply to the situation. You were asked to speak a few words not do a Johnny Carson monologue.

Think about the people you'll be addressing. Remember the group has many different attitudes, interests and familiarity with the subject. Talk to them on their terms and in their language.

Be spontaneous. Don't read your speech or memorize it. It's important to rehearse but if you begin to repeat it word for word you've overdone the practicing. Use point form notes on index cards to keep yourself on track.

Address people in the audience directly. Don't attach your eyes to just one friendly face though, as you'll make them feel uncomfortable. Remember there are lots of friendly faces out there.

Take it slow and easy. People tend to rush things when nervous and that makes it difficult for the audience to understand the key points. The people who ask you to speak believe you have something worthwhile to say. They aren't going to enter your name in the Guinness Book of Records' fastest speech category.

Sometimes we fall into a stilted speaking pattern in a formal situation. It's important to speak as you would in normal conversation with someone you respect. You'll put your listeners at ease, too.

Lastly get constructive feedback from someone you trust. You may have some mannerisms that distract your audience and get in the way of your message. Usually these small problems are easy to correct once you're aware of them.

Don't let the fear of public speaking stop you from taking part in some fun and rewarding experiences. The more you do it the easier it gets.

Locally, an International Training in Communications (ITC) group exists to help and encourage adults to develop their public speaking skills. The group meets the first and third Tuesdays of each month at Frank Maddock high school. For further information call Val at 542-3773, afternoons only.

Goodard elected new president

By Mae Tryon

It was decided at the Jan. 24 meeting of the Lindale School Association to go ahead with the beef raffle.

A slow-pitch tournament to be held in July was also discussed.

Due to her new duties as school trustee Mae Tryon resigned as president of the association. Allan Goodard is now the new president.

The next meeting will be tonight (Tuesday, Feb. 7, 7 p.m. in the school library.

The Lindale Hall Association will hold a valentine social and dance Feb. 11 at the Lindale Hall. Music will be supplied by the Daybreakers. Doors open at 8 p.m. with the dance starting at 9. For advance tickets call 542-2991 or 696-2039.

Lindale Hall memberships are now available through the Lindale post office or Coeren at 542-4527.

On Jan. 22 another of the old-timers of our district, Opal Wild, died.

Mrs. Ward was born Dec. 21, 1907 in Richland, Texas. She was very active in community affairs and will be missed.

Parkland County faces four per cent tax hike

Parkland county taxpayers will pay about $20 more in municipal taxes in 1989, after Parkland's budget was passed Jan. 12.

Parkland's millrate will increase 3.9 per cent in order to keep present levels of service by the county, says commissioner Jim Simpson.

Two per cent of the increase is due to depreciation of the county industrial assessment. The additional 1.9 per cent increase "will enable council to maintain existing levels of service," said Simpson.

The municipal portion makes up about 48 per cent of the overall budget and does not include education and other requisitions.

The extra $20 for 1989 is based on a 1,200-square-foot bungalow on four acres of land valued at $56,000, according to a sample provided by finance administrator Del Dyck.

The new budget will see farmers pay about $12 more this year for a quarter section valued at $27,000.

Council unanimously passed the 19.6 million dollar budget.

The budget gives $693,1105 of money collected from taxpayers to the police and animal control. Parks and recreation gets $556,870 to cover their net costs.

Road construction services gets $2,787,180 and administration costs are $1,572,485.

Family farm survival is serious question

Agriculture's backbone, the family farm, has been recently described as having a pickup in the yard, a chicken in the pot and a wolf at the door.

Survival of the family farm has become a serious question, one that will be addressed at this year's edition of the Managing Agricultural Technology for Profit (MATFP) conference March 5 through 8 at the Kananaskis Lodge.

Speaking on the controversial topic "Is the family farm a thing of the past," is Gary Comstock, an American professor and author.

Three years ago Comstock organized a conference on family farm survival and followed that with his book Is There A Moral Obligation to Save the Family Farm? In the book he summarises expert points of view covering economics, sociology, ethics, philosophy and theology as well as the personal experiences of farmers.

A birthday present for daddy

By Pastor H. Heinemann
Emmanuel Lutheran Church

When our children were growing up, they did not have many opportunities to earn money, especially before they reached the ripe old age of 12.

When we first arrived in a small town east of Edmonton, our oldest daughter quickly befriended an elderly couple across the street. Grandpa and Grandma Burger not only became our children's surrogate grandparents but also our dear friends.

One evening while sharing a cup of coffee with them in their home, they told an amusing story about our daughter, who at that time would have been about four years old.

It seems one day our daughter went to visit the Burgars, especially to view their talking parakeet who used to sit on one's shoulder and rattle off a string of "pretty birds" and "where's Chic."

Our daughter told about how her daddy's birthday was coming up real soon and how she was buying him a pair of slippers. As Grandma Burger opined how nice that would be, Grandpa Burger asked where she was going

New canopy too high

The town's new $1.4-million administration complex isn't even open yet and renovations are already taking place.

The canopy, situated over the main entrance was lowered 26-and-a-half inches last Thursday.

According to town manager Manny Deol, the canopy was sitting too high.

The town was also investigating the possibility of installing plexi-glass on the canopy.

to get the money to buy this fabulous gift.

Without a moment's hesitation, our daughter said, "Mom will get it from dad and give it to me and I'll run downtown and get them." We were amused at the irony that I would be paying for my own birthday present.

While thinking about that later, the simple fact occurred to me that our very small children do not own a thing their parents have not given them. Even the gifts which their loving hearts prompt them to give to their parents have to be paid for with the parents' money.

Then it occurred to me how true that is in our relationship to God. There is nothing in all creation that was not made by Him and nothing we have that He has not first given to us.

We gripe and complain about what we don't have in life, thinking that somehow because of our good deeds and hard work God owes us something. We talk incessantly about what we can do for God or give to Him. For instance, we talk about giving our lives to God. But that would not be possible had it not been for God giving His life to us.

When Jesus, His Son, came into this world and lived as we cannot live and died the death we cannot die, for all our sins and sinfulness, it became possible in the God-given gift of faith, to give ourselves to Him.

What can we possibly give God that wasn't His before He gave it to us?

It's truly a Canadian sport

Enjoy the province's glorious scenery on a snowmobile.

Break new trails in Alberta this winter with a ride on a snowmobile.

Snowmobiling will make everyone forget they ever wished the snow and ice would go away in favor of beaches and palm trees.

There's nothing quite like zooming through trails surrounded by breathtaking winter scenery at each bend.

Truly a Canadian sport, snowmobiling had its origins in Quebec in the early 1900s as the answer to replacing dogteams used by the Inuit, Eskimos and trappers. The machines available on the market today are state-of-the-art and can be operated by almost everyone, including the handicapped.

The Alberta Forest Service maintains about 1,300 kilometres of snowmobile trails in all designated areas throughout the province. These snowmobile trails are in areas near Blairmore, Pincher Creek, Cochrane, Rocky Mountain House, Swan Hills, Fox Creek, Edson, Whitecourt and Grande Prairie.

Whitecourt is the snowmobile capital of Alberta. There aren't many places where you have to rely on a bus or a car for transportation around town. Here you can hop on your snowmobile and go!

The Eagle Creek staging area is just six km from town. In this area there is a parking lot, warm-up shelter and 88 km of groomed trails that will satisfy all riders with its beautiful scenery, valleys and snowcovered hills.

The other two areas in the Whitecourt forest are Iosegun Lake and Krause Lake. You'll find everything here from hundreds of kilometres of cutlines of powder, to straits of flat land where you can test your driving skills and take in the breathtaking beauty of winter.

Whether you're an expert or novice, whether you have your own machine or wish to rent one, whether you want to ride in the mountains or prefer to skim across a frozen lake or field, call Travel Alberta toll-free at 1-800-222-6501 for more information.

Canadian home security leaves lots to be desired

If your home is your castle, then like any castle it may someday find itself under attack.

Ever two-and-a-half minutes, on average, a home somewhere in Canada is broken in to. Chances are only one in eight that charges will be laid against the culprit. Recovering what was stolen is even less likely.

Despite these discouraging statistics, police departments say security in Canadian homes leaves a lot to be desired. Many of us rely on ineffectual locks to secure our doors. Thick shrubbery in our yards provides a perfect hiding place for would-be invaders and our homes do not look lived-in while we are away.

You may want to consider bolstering your home's security provisions with an alarm system. The alarm business is booming in

Consumer's Corner

By Samia Valleand

Canada. However, not everyone who has an alarm system is happy with it.

As many as half of the alarms installed may not be used regularly. Some owners do not like the restrictions on their lifestyle. Some systems are plagued by false alarms and some do not provide all the protection they should.

An alarm system is a sophisticated purchase that requires a great deal of thought and planning. Living with one calls for rigid discipline. You must work closely with whomever you hire to install the system to ensure an end result that works for you and your special circumstances. Ask your local police department for a recommendation and look for a company that is a member of the Canadian Alarm and Security Association.

The Canadian Consumer magazine examines various types of alarms and sensors. If you would like a copy of this report, just phone CAC-Alberta at 420-0747.

Cards of Thanks

MOVING: Heartfelt thanks to relatives, friends and neighbors for cards, flowers, memorial donations, the love brought over to the house and their loving support during the loss of a dear husband, father and grandfather. Special thanks to Pastor Daniel Strommen, organist, Woodlands, pallbearers, Service Corporation, the Royal Pulp for serving a lovely lunch, and Long and Trust Funeral Home. Your kindness will always be remembered and we appreciate it very much.

FROM THE JAN. 15 TV SM HILL Wipe-out: Thank You to the volunteer staff and people who so selflessly responded to my cry for help. You are to be commended for the care you gave me and for all the work you do in the community. To Dr. Coulson who went on call when I arrived at the hospital, to Dr. Payton and the entire nursing staff at the DV Health Complex. Thank you for the TLC I received during my stay. And to my family and friends, my very special family and friends who were once again there when I needed them so badly - for your visits, cards, gifts and flowers - I thank you from the bottom of my heart. Your kindness will never be forgotten. God bless you all.
Bev Siegel

Market outlook to be discussed at Accent '89

Last year will be long remembered as the year of the weather market as last summer's drought made farm prices volatile.

While none of the speakers at the Accent '88 conference predicted the drought, several of them emphasized a poor crop in any major producing region of the world would have a big impact on prices.

Potential supply and demand developments that will affect farm prices in 1989 will be discussed at the 10th annual Alberta farm outlook conference in Edmonton Feb. 28 and March 1.

The two-day program features both an international and domestic market outlook for this year and beyond.

The conference is also being held two weeks earlier than usual, in the hopes of avoiding the peak of calving season and be able to have more cattlemen attend.

Further conference information is available by contacting the market analysis branch at 427-5387. Conference brochures are also available from Alberta Agriculture district offices.

Marriage seminar offered

Stresses arising from economic uncertainty, the way we see ourselves and the way we think others see us profoundly affects marriage and family, says an Edmonton family therapist.

"A successful marriage can be more than just survival," says Peter Dyck who is among the speakers at Alberta Agriculture's upcoming Managing Agricultural Technology for Profit (MATPF) conference March 5 through 8 at the Kananaskis Lodge. His theme is "the old values of family, loyalty, love and respect can survive in the midst of many changes."

His wife, Mary, will be joining him in addressing some of the real issues many marriage partners are struggling with today.

The Dycks will suggest ways problems can be changed into useful "tools" in marriage relationships.

Registration forms are available from Alberta Agriculture district agriculture offices.

Tomahawk

By Joyce Schadeck

There will be a skills workshop March 13 starting at 7 p.m. in the Agra Plex. Subject of this workshop is 'How to get and keep volunteers.'

This is a constant concern to everyone who has done volunteer work for their community. A good turnout is anticipated.

A mothers' day out is scheduled for March 20. Easter crafts are the theme for this gathering starting at 1 p.m. in the school club room.

If the winter doldrums are getting you down and your spirits could be lifted by learning a new and interesting craft, call Joyce Goetz at 339-2412 or Doreen Gilbert at 339-3938. Craft classes such as rug braiding, sweat shirt or T-shirt decorating, one-piece kimono or night-shirt quick-sew or sewing with leather are just a few of the unlimited number of one-day classes.

An open house was held at the Agra Plex on March 4 to celebrate Gaston and Marion Joan's 50th wedding anniversary.

Still scraping by

Snow plows were kept busy again last week scraping ice off roads after cooler temperatures froze previously melting snow.

Icy roads cause havoc

Icy roads both in town and surrounding rural areas wreaked havoc on motorists Feb. 20.

Fifteen accidents were reported throughout the day, according to RCMP officer Tim Valamianuk, though all were of a minor nature.

Valamianuk said the most extensive damage occurred to two privately-owned gravel trucks which collided in the Brazeau area but he did know the total loss in dollar figures. All drivers escaped without injury.

MLA expenses up

Personal and travelling expenses for Drayton Valley MLA Shirley Cripps for the 1987-88 fiscal year totalled $9,300.

Similar expenses for Cripps in her role as associate agricultural minister were not clearly defined in documents obtained by an Edmonton newspaper.

An article in the Edmonton Sun by staff writer Brett Harris stated that Alberta MLAs spent 25 per cent more on travelling expenses in 1987 than the year before.

Financial documents obtained by The Sun indicated 84 MLAs claimed travel expenses totalling $1,616,000.

The travel bill for Premier Don Getty was $53,000.

Confidence in Rural Alberta

The Right Kind of Leadership

When Don Getty became Premier, he said he would try out new ideas and take some calculated risks. He said he would do his very best for farmers and ranchers, and all residents of rural Alberta. He has proven to be a leader who rural Albertans can trust.

Optimism for Agriculture

Agriculture will continue to strengthen in 1989, although issues remain. Don Getty believes that "agriculture must keep changing — it can't stand still — but it will remain the cornerstone for Alberta. When agriculture is prosperous, life is better for hundreds of thousands of Albertans." Progressive Conservative policies have three main components:

- providing a safety net through stabilization and insurance programs
- keeping down input costs — of credit, energy, feed grains and fertilizers
- developing a more competitive and diversified agricultural economy, through marketing, research, transportation, resource conservation and food processing.

Now, there are major new commitments for agriculture in soil conservation, "market enhancement" in the new free trade agreement, a new farm employment program, immediate and long term improvements in the crop insurance program, and other specific programs outlined in the recent Speech from the Throne

Building a Powerful Rural Base

Here are key factors in the new confidence in rural Alberta:

- Don Getty's policies of diversification are helping communities in every region of Alberta, especially in the areas of tourism, forestry and food processing
- better government services create opportunities and support for rural Alberta. These include health services; a major breakthrough in "distance education"; and transportation improvements

What It Means for Rural Communities

Because of the new strength of agriculture, and because of the new opportunities in small towns and cities, thousands of families will be able to stay together, rather than seeing young people leave their communities

In 1989, and in the years ahead, rural Alberta can count on a solid partnership with the leadership of Don Getty. He needs our support to carry on his work

Frozen pizzas found lacking

If you have a craving for pizza there are many ways to get your "fix" — have it delivered to the door, make one from scratch, pick one up from the deli or just open the freezer.

The frozen pizza is certainly the most convenient. With a package of these in your freezer, you will always be ready when the craving hits. But, do they actually taste good?

To find out, the Consumers' Association tested 21 brands of frozen pizza, including four microwave brands. The panel of taste-testers gave most of them a lukewarm reception and even dismissed one as completely inedible. Common complaints about

By Samia Vallewand

the Test pizzas included bland sauce, tasteless, soggy vegetables, hard rubbery cheese and dried out meat. But the biggest problem with the toppings was that there just weren't enough.

Panelists wanted pizzas with plenty of meat, cheese and sauce and what they got was mostly crust. Only two of the pizzas had more topping than crust, and one was nearly three-quarters crust. The news wasn't all bad — those pizzas that tested most tolerable, generally did better than average for nutrition as well.

The sad truth is, even the tastiest frozen pizza probably won't satisfy the true pizza connoisseur. If you are willing to put up with its shortcomings, however, frozen pizza can be a convenient and reasonably nutritious snack. CAC Alberta would be happy to give you the test results for all 21 brands — just phone 420-0747.

"FOR EVERYONE"

CANADA-ALBERTA Crop Insurance

Better Prices.
Better Markets.
BETTER INSURE.

Come in and sign up for protection against weather-caused crop losses.

If you are already a policyholder, you can confirm your contract at the local office and make your elections for the new crop year.

Or make your 1989 application for Canada-Alberta Crop Insurance if you were not among the thousands of Alberta farmers who insure regularly.

If you're considering Individual Coverage, the local office can give you information about Canada-Alberta Crop Insurance that's based on your own production levels.

And you can find out about Canada-Alberta Forage Insurance at your local office. This protection for hay and livestock producers against drought is again available in all areas of Alberta.

Better not delay. Last Day to Apply for Forage Insurance is March 31. Last Day to Apply for Crop Insurance is April 30.

Who should receive the 1989 Annual Alberta Environment Awards?

This year marks the third annual celebration of this special program to recognize and honour Albertans who have made significant contributions to the quality of our environment.

Your nominations could be instrumental in helping us select the recipients of the 1989 Alberta Environment Awards.

In order to reflect the broad range of contributions to Alberta's environment, Awards may be presented in up to four categories:

- Individual citizen;
- Industry, Business or Government Agency;
- Education Institution or Education Organization;
- Volunteer Organization or Service Group

The Committee also reserves the right to present a special award for a contribution not encompassed by the previous four categories.

Due to the large number of excellent nominations received in 1988, all nominees who did not receive awards will be reconsidered for 1989 awards. (If you submitted a nomination in 1988 you will be contacted to verify that you wish your nomination to stand for 1989.) New nominations are also welcomed.

To receive an award, an individual or group will have been instrumental in:

- increasing public awareness and understanding of an environmental problem or situation;
- identifying, reducing, solving or avoiding an environmental problem; or
- improving an aspect of Alberta's environment.

First consideration will be given to individuals or groups whose work directly affects Albertans, although national or international achievements by Albertans will be considered.

Nominations must be submitted by April 15, 1989. For nomination forms or more information, contact:

Bureau supports Crime Stoppers

The Insurance Bureau of Canada has undertaken a national $50,000 program to support Crime Stoppers.

Crime stoppers is a community volunteer program which assists police forces in their fight against crime.

Since the chapter was organized in Canada, Crime Stoppers has helped police solve violent crimes against persons, seized $74 million in illegal drugs and recovered $25 million in stolen property.

Part of the campaign will see the insurance bureau provide appropriate assistance for the organization of additional Crime Stoppers units across Canada.

There are now more than 70 Crime Stoppers chapters in Canada.

Approaches to managing stress and avoiding burn-out

The following is a brief description of approaches useful in reducing stress and preventing burn-out. A wide variety (a smorgasbord) of approaches is reviewed. It is up to the individual to select the ones he or she believes are most appropriate and attractive. These approaches are similar to healthy diet plan — they work for those who make an effort to make them work.

Goal setting and time management: considerable stress comes from a feeling of having "too much to do in too little time."

Time management encourages people to set goals and use their time effectively in reaching short-term and lifetime objectives. (Though the process of setting goals is often lengthy, failure to set goals almost guarantees dissatisfaction and a lack of fulfillment.) For high priority short-term and lifetime goals, subjects are often asked to list tasks designed to accomplish these goals.

These tasks are prioritized according to importance; subjects are instructed to do the high priority tasks first and are urged to ignore the low priority (low payoff) tasks. Low priority tasks can bog one down and interfere with high priority tasks.

Positive thinking: everyone has a choice between a negative view of events and a positive view. People prone to burn-out tend to take the negative view and to tell themselves "I've had it. I'm no longer going to try. I'm just going to go through the motions. I'm giving in." With such an attitude, they become cynical, apathetic, uncaring and unproductive.

The philosophy of positive thinking asserts that a positive view and positive action will lead to being like others, being appreciated, feeling worthwhile, liking oneself, being productive and creative, having a pleasant disposition and having good things happen.

Closely related to positive thinking is a philosophy of life which allows one to travel through life at a relaxed speed, to remain calm during crises and emergencies, to approach work thoughtfully and creatively, to enjoy leisure and to develop more fully as a person.

Relaxation techniques: people who burn-out tend to remain at high levels of stress for prolonged periods. They have not learned to relax. There are a number of relaxation techniques which induce the relaxation response: deep breathing relaxation, imagery relaxation, progressive muscle relaxation, meditation, self-hypnosis and biofeedback.

Exercise: regular exercise also helps reduce stress and prevent burn-out. An enjoyable exercise program assists in a variety of ways. It helps keep us fit — which makes us feel good about ourselves — and also gives us increased energy for meeting crises and emergencies. It helps take our minds off negative aspects of job and home life and directly reduces stress.

There are several other things involved in taking care of our physical selves: a nutritious diet, sufficient sleep and appropriate medical care. Being in good physical condition helps us to handle stresses and emergencies and thereby decreases the chances of burn-out.

Special interests and activities: hobbies and entertainment also get our thinking off the negative aspects of work and homelife and encourage positive thoughts, thus reducing stress and helping to prevent burn-out. In this connection it is interesting to that research indicates that "stress reduces stress" that is, an appropriate amount of stress in one area (in a hobby, for example) helps reduce excessive stress in others.

Two-man battle ends in victory for Thurber

Thomas Thurber and his wife thank supporters after being elected to represent the PCs in the Drayton Valley constituency.

Highways planned

Several major highway projects have been announced for the Drayton Valley area.

According to MLA Shirley Cripps, the province plans to call tenders for a major paving project in the Lodgepole area.

The project involves base and final paving on Secondary Road 620 from the junction of the Elk River road for 18 kilometres to Lodgepole.

Also included is base and final paving of Secondary Road 763 for one kilometre Psychiatric test ordered

By Steve Fletcher

A man wielding a butcher's knife inside the Breton liquor store last Wednesday night kept RCMP officers at bay for over an hour before they finally overpowered him. The man had attempted to rob the store.

An hour of negotiations between the man and the RCMP proved fruitless.

Two officers maintained a vigil outside the liquor store while at least one other officer tried to talk the man, who was apparently intoxicated, into giving up.

The ordeal began just before closing time and ended at approximately 6:45 p.m.

There were no injuries, Breton RCMP report. They would not release any further details.

A 46-year-old Breton resident appeared in Drayton Valley Provincial Court in connection with the crime. The judge ordered the man undergo a psychiatric assessment.

Thomas Thurber was declared the winner Feb. 10 of one of the closest Progressive Conservative nomination races in Drayton Valley constituency's history. After three ballots, just seven of a possible 795 votes stood between the victorious Winfield-area farmer and Drayton Valley's Grant Monsour.

The two-man battle was apparent from the first ballot with little challenge from Warburg's Erwin Zoltzman and even less from Tomahawk's Wayne Gent.

Gent ended the race on the first ballot with 158 votes. Zoltzman was eliminated in the second count with 179.

Farmer vs oilman

The gap between Thurber and Monsour grew closer with every ballot, fueling speculation the race was one of farmer pitted against oilman.

The farmer won in the end with 374 votes — only two votes above the required 61-per-cent majority. Among his top priorities, he said, would be tapping the potential of the area's agriculture.

"Unlimited agricultural opportunities"

Addressing approximately 800 people, many based in from Calmar, Devon and Winfield, Thurber said much can be done to expand the area's agriculture industry.

"There are new methods of farming and unlimited opportunities in Alberta in agriculture," he said.

He said increased beef exports and an expanded killing capability for dogs are among the projects he hopes to initiate.

One problem requiring immediate attention, he said, is the road between Lodgepole and the Brazeau Dam.

"Anyone who's ever driven over that road knows it has to be upgraded as soon as possible," Thurber said.

board director and hospital board member said his background has left him with the experience needed to represent the constituency's diverse oil, forestry and tourism industries.

He cited employment, taxation, oilfield safety standards and health care as some of the issues he will address if elected MLA in the next provincial election.

Local News Briefs

The Twin Rivers school division has decided to invite area schools to its monthly board meetings. The schools will be asked to make a 15-minute presentation to the board.

The County of Parkland plans to take a close look at the possibility of paying the Seba Beach-Idmahawk road.

They plan to meet with Drayton Valley MLA Shirley Cripps and the Minister of Transportation to discuss completion of the road.

Debora J. Coombes of Drayton Valley is one of 52 Albertans who have been awarded Michael Luchkovich scholarships for career development.

The scholarships are designed to provide Albertans in the work force with the incentive to further their education or training.

A new restaurant, gas station and motel are on the drafting board for Lodgepole.

Another proposal is for a new convenience store.

The municipal district plans to send three staff members to seminars in the upcoming months.

Executive secretary Julie Andrew will be attending a two-day session in Banff, Cost, including accommodation, registration and meals is $1,195.

Rick Plukema, the MD's new utility coordinator has been given permission to attend the Alberta Water and Wastewater Operators annual seminar. The cost is $675.

And, finance director Bill Flemming will attend a four-day government finance officers' association conference in Seattle. No cost was attached to this trip.

The town started the week off in their new $1.4-million administration complex. The official opening will be held at a later date.

Howse Pass Canada's 'nightmare': Dickson

By Belinda Atkinson
The purported "highway builder's dream" would be Canada's nightmare, says an environmentalist who opposes construction over the Howse Pass.

Dorothy Dickson told Red Deer Chamber of Commerce manager Pat Henry Feb. 9 that the destruction couldn't be reversed once the damage was done.

But Henry, a long-time supporter of the 80-km link extending Hwy 11 over the Continental Divide, said, "if we thought for one minute we were destroying the park, we would back out."

Debating before the Rocky Mountain House Chamber of Commerce, itself a supporter, Henry and the president of the Red Deer River Naturalists Association each said they had Canada's best interests in mind.

Dickson drew an analogy to the Prairies saying drought and near extinction of bison could have been prevented.

"Perhaps this time we should start being wise before it's too late," she said.

But Henry said less than two per cent of Banff National Park has been developed and numerous studies would be done before making another move.

"I again have to ask if we have destroyed so much of the habitat then how come we see so many animals when we drive through the park?" he said.

And with so little of the park accessible from the highways, he said only the environmentalists know how much wildlife is out there.

Dickson questioned the two per cent figure, saying closer to five per cent of the park has been developed. But she said even that is misleading.

"That's an ecologically ignorant and misleading way of putting it because five per cent of that development covers 90 per cent of the best wildlife habitat in the park," Dickson said.

She stressed there could be no monetary value put on lost land and animals that may fall victim to vehicles, but she wondered if the estimated $400-million price was too much for a country already plagued by deficit.

Environmentalist Dorothy Dickson says "no" to construction on the Howse Pass.

Henry argued her "exaggerations" were far off and estimated highway construction at $200 million.

However divided on environmental impact and cost, the two were even further apart on the possible boost to Alberta's tourism industry.

"Ninety per cent of people entering the province never come north of Hwy 1," said Henry.

He said Jasper, West

Edmonton Mall and other attractions would gain "one hell of a lot of dollars."

"I can think of no cleaner industry than tourism," he continued.

But Dickson said tourism would suffer. "People are not going to go north. They're going to go straight on through," she said.

"Central Alberta can't hope to compete with the Rocky Mountains. To build an escape route is ridiculous."

She said all Rocky Mountain House would stand to gain in tourist dollars would be from the sale of burgers to truckers.

Law won't change habit

Although seatbelts save lives, the recent loss of Alberta's seatbelt law probably won't increase the carnage on the province's roads, says a local doctor.

"The law was in place long enough that people are probably used to buckling up," said Dr. Bob Thompson, chief of medical staff at the health complex.

He said most of the medical profession reacted "furiously" to the recent Calgary Court of Queen's Bench ruling that labelled the July 1987 law unconstitutional.

"I think the constitutional issue has really gone too far," said Thompson. "I believe the seatbelt law was strongly supported by all medical people."

In the recent past, Thompson has been involved as a doctor in accidents where "four or five people...undoubtedly would not be alive today if they hadn't been wearing their seatbelts."

Meanwhile, RCMP have been instructed by the attorney-general's department to make no further charges for an indefinite period.

The department plans to appeal the Queen's Bench decision.

"I've been to enough accidents to see that seatbelts do save lives...I'm a firm believer in their value," says Cpl. Dave Caporale of the Drayton Valley detachment.

Caporale agrees with Thompson's assessment that people will continue to buckle up despite the ruling.

"I think a lot of them will continue (to use them)," he said. "Those doing it only to avoid paying a fine will probably stop."

Lodgepole road meeting

Government representatives are expected to be in attendance when Violet Grove and area residents meet Wednesday to discuss the Lodgepole Highway.

The general meeting starts at 7 p.m. in the Violet Grove Community Hall.

In past weeks Violet Grove and area residents have expressed their concerns over the increased traffic on the highway.

Anyone who would like to see the highway improved is urged to attend Wednesday's meeting.

Break-in Four VCRs were taken during an overnight break-in at the Sears store last week. When RCMP arrived last Friday morning, they found the front door had been smashed. The incident is being investigated.

Snow removal crews' efforts receive praise

Considering the weather and their equipment problems, the town did an exceptional job cleaning up the snow from the recent blizzard.

It was no easy task, as the town faced more snow than Drayton Valley had seen in years. This was coupled with a freak rain storm and a drastic drop in temperatures.

If that wasn't enough, the three-man crew the town dispatched to handle the cleanup faced numerous equipment problems.

On the second day of the storm, when the snow finally stopped and temperatures dropped to -40C, the town lost a grader to repairs. It was off the road for 12 hours and faces a major repair bill that could total $15,000.

The town tried without success to rent or lease a grader.

Trucks to haul away the snow also created some headaches. Only two were available on that second day. Others were either busy or froze up.

If that wasn't bad enough, the town's sand trucks couldn't handle the workload.

While sand didn't do that much to help ease the driving conditions due to the layer of ice underneath the snow, it did give the motorists a bit of relief.

Councillor Howard Olsen, chairman of the town's transportation committee, has told his fellow councillors that they should be looking at some major equipment purchases when it comes time to okay their '89 budget.

One can only guess that the town engineer will be asking for another grader and a new sander.

Despite the rain, snow and cold temperatures, those directly involved with the cleanup are to be commended for a job well done.

Survey shows students not dressed for severe weather

One of the most gratifying aspects of the recent snow storm was the way people helped each other.

People were often seen offering rides to perfect strangers while others were busy giving a boost and helping out wherever they could.

It's just fortunate, with the conditions of the highways and the -40C temperatures, that we didn't have any major problems.

Grader operator Allan Davidson, who had to hike a half-mile through a bone-chilling wind to spend a night in a chilly battery building near Berrymoor was one of the more serious incidents.

There was also at least one incident of frostbite. A student from H. W. Pickup who had walked about 10 blocks to school, was the victim.

Frankly Speaking

H.W. principal Colln Cavanagh was very concerned about the incident and conducted a survey.

He wanted to know how students were getting to school in the cold and how they were dressed.

The survey showed that some students walked two and three blocks without mitts or gloves. Many of the students wore runners.

He also had reports of a school bus stopping a couple of times en route to town to put in some anti-freeze.

Hopefully, when the H.W. principal tallies all the information, it will be forwarded on to the Twin Rivers school division.

Visitors like our streets

Dear Editor,
It's funny how our opinions in some subjects can change with a new perspective on things.

In the past, I have done my share of complaining about our street conditions. It took a weekend visit from some people who live in a town about the same size as Drayton Valley.

They were amazed at how clean our streets are. Theirs had been cleaned, but obviously, poorly. They were icy, bumpy and very rough from incompetent or incomplete cleaning.

This was brought home to me again the Tuesday after our big snowfall. Even with the snow still drifting at 7:15 a.m. the main arteries were clean. I was impressed.

I think we as a community can count ourselves lucky to have service like this.

A big bouquet to the Town of Drayton Valley staff for a job well done in the poorest of weather conditions.

Kids helped by clean roads in the town

Dear Editor,
My name is Bert Fredette and I was one of the school bus drivers interviewed several weeks ago about the problems bus drivers encounter on the road.

One of the things I mentioned to the reporter was my concern that 43 St. north of St. Anthony school was the last to be cleared after a snowfall. And not only that, dangerous because the snow was piled up on the east side of the road and children walked along the top of the snow pile, creating a potentially dangerous situation if they fell on to the road.

Well, I am happy to say I am very pleased with the town's prompt removal of snow along 43 St. after the recent blizzard, Jan. 30. It will be a lot safer for children walking along this street.

Thank you, Town of Drayton Valley.

Drayton Valley's 'dark' airport will benefit from light

By Belinda Atkinson
Mobil Oil will complete the installation of a new lighting system this week to assist airplanes landing at Drayton Valley's 'dark' airport.

According to Doug Vesle, Mobil pilot and project organizer, the $35,000 Precision Approach Path Indicator (PAPI) system will automatically steer pilots into a safe glide path (runway approach) instead of having to rely on sight.

"Because of black holes at the end of each runway and the lack of lighting at the airport there's no reference point," said Vesle. "This creates flight safety hazards."

"(PAPI) will provide a visual check," he said, explaining one spotlight will turn red and another white to indicate a pilot is making an appropriate three-percent descent.

The PAPI is a modified version of the Visual Approach Path Indicator (VAPI). Vesle said the four-light system is commonly used in larger airports but too expensive and elaborate for locations such as Drayton Valley.

Mobil initiated the project last July when first hearing that the British-based manufacturer had created the smaller system.

Vesle said they weren't planning to increase activity in the area but had wanted to reduce the safety hazards plaguing Mobil's five or six weekly flights.

Two unidentified companies offered financial support, which Mobil accepted, and the project went ahead with town council's full approval.

"Any system to improve the airport is certainly supported by us," said Howard Olsen, town councillor and member of the transportation committee.

Due to lack of funding he said the town would never have initiated such a project.

Vesle said the system will have to be approved by the Canadian Standards Association (CSA) but it should be in operation and available to all pilots by the end of the week.

Junior high students not prepared for cold

The principal at H.W. Pickup junior high is very concerned about what students wore to school during the recent cold snap.

Colin Cavanagh was so concerned that he conducted a survey.

The students were asked how they got to school and what they wore.

Although Cavanagh hadn't completed the survey when contacted by The Western Review, he said it was obvious a lot of the students were dropped off by their parents. However, there were some students who walked up to 10 blocks.

One of those students suffered severe frostbite. The survey also indicated many of the students hadn't worn any mitts or gloves. Despite the -40C temperatures, a lot of the students also wore runners.

"We're very fortunate no one was hurt," he says.

Cavanagh says the survey results point out that students need to dress better for the extreme cold. Educating them to do that, is the problem.

Texaco manager Vern Schlinder says he knows as much about the Imperial Oil takeover as his customers.

Texaco manager moves to Imperial

The manager of Drayton Valley's Texaco station has no qualms about becoming an Imperial Oil employee but he's not sure yet what it will mean.

"There's nothing wrong with Imperial Oil," said Vern Schlinder. But he admitted no one in the company has told him that Imperial Oil's $4.5-billion bid to take over Texaco Canada Inc. was successful.

"A lot of customers here are asking about it and they seem to know more than we do," he said.

"We're getting our information out of the newspaper like everyone else."

As part of the deal confirmed last week by Imperial Oil's manager in Calgary, no layoffs will result from the takeover.

Kent O'Connor had said Imperial Oil will need all Texaco employees to continue services and research projects.

Hartze Searle, Texaco's public relations person in Calgary, said last week employees may be transferred but Schlinder has no idea if he would be on the list or not.

Everything is temporarily on hold while two federal government boards — Investment Canada and the Bureau of Competition Policy — review the agreement and assure the takeover will benefit Canada.

Within a month the transaction should take place and Texaco employees will be notified of their new employer's plans.

Lease hold must stay

A leaseholder at a Lodgepole teacherage site will have to settle for the existing lease without changes after the Twin Rivers school division voted against his proposal.

At a school division meeting, Harvey Rhine, who holds a lease at Lodgepole requested some additions to the lease the division holds:

- that he be allowed to sublet the property.
- that the $100 monthly rental be reduced.
- failing the first two requests, that the board sell him the property (which he currently resides on in a trailer.

Board members moved that Rhine's existing lease be maintained without the additions he requested.

Retired farmer quits politics

By Belinda Atkinson

A mainstay in county politics has stepped out of the political ring permanently following recent defeats in the MD of Braxeau and Twin Rivers school board elections.

"I think it was time to quit," said 77-year-old Bruce Cropley, who for the last 14 years has served as a County of Leduc councillor and school board trustee.

Cropley reasoned that his wife's declining health and his advanced years made retirement a logical next step, but he said these factors would not have slowed him down if the election results had differed.

"There's not much to do in Braxeau," he said. "One of the councillors I was with said they only work three or four days a month."

Cropley had originally opposed creating the new municipal district, a view he feels brought defeat.

But the retired farmer and father of three accepted the loss gracefully and looks back on his political career with fond memories.

"The first meeting I attended after the organizational meeting was a board of education meeting," he said. "It was attended by seven councillors and 11 urban trustees plus four other staff."

"It was a bit scary to say the least for an old farmer with quite a bad speech problem."

Despite his fear, Cropley et al spent the next 14 years creating roads, building schools and serving the needs of communities such as Beaumont, where a sudden population explosion expanded the town from 300 to 4,000.

"We created 24 miles of new road and rebuilt 35 miles of roads," he said.

"There was very little gravel on the roads when I got in. We did over 100 miles of graveling."

Cropley said the construction of one particular road — a six-mile link between St. Francis and Thoraby corner — will go down as the highlight of his career.

"We worked on that project for seven or eight years," he said.

Cropley said helping plan three new schools for Beaumont, one costing $10 million, also gave him much personal satisfaction.

"The last one was probably the most modern in Alberta," he said.

The self-described simple farmer initiated many changes and helped allocate an impressive $40 million budget.

Still, he says, his career was not as much a challenge as it was a regular job.

"You got done what you had to get done," he said. "I was usually home by six o'clock."

Veteran county politician Bruce Cropley won't seek re-election.

Highway projects announced for area

from the junction of Secondary Road 630 to Lodgepole.

A two-kilometre passing lane on the Lodgepole Highway near Violet Grove and better access into the Pelican Spruce Mills plant in Drayton Valley is also included.

Total cost of these projects, all slated for this year, is expected to reach $5 million.

Alberta Transportation is also helping to do a major patching job on the Lodgepole Highway.

Joe Schlaut, district transportation engineer with Alberta Transportation told the MD council last Thursday the patching project will hopefully cover 10 or 11 kilometres and will start at the junction of Highways 22 and 620 and will pass beyond Violet Grove.

"It will handle the wheel rutting problem," Schlaut told the MD.

The MD also heard the province has done some studies into possible passing lanes for the campground and a residential subdivision north of Drayton Valley. But, according to Schlaut, it's doubtful funding will be approved this year.

Building permits top last year

Building permits in Drayton Valley last year topped figures collected from six other central Alberta communities of comparable size.

The town recorded $9,539,141 in permits in 1988.

Here's how the other six communities stacked up:

Olds.....$4,867,800
Ponoka.....$4,410,000

Lacombe.....$3,172,128
Innisfail.....$2,768,770
Rocky.....$2,706,000
Stettler.....$2,095,700

The town also led all the communities in residential construction last year. Permits in Drayton Valley reached $4,649,250.

Building figures in the other six communities shaped up this way:

Olds.....$2,439,000
Lacombe.....$2,123,780
Ponoka.....$1,900,000

Innisfail.....$1,157,570
Rocky.....$1,228,000
Stettler.....$ 730,800

Olds experienced a 64.8 per cent increase in the value of permits over the previous year, mainly on the strength of new office buildings for Mobil Oil and Canadian Western Natural Gas. They accounted for $2 million in permits.

Lodge sod turning set for weekend

The sod turning for the renovations and addition to the Shangri-La Lodge will be held this Saturday. Yellowhead MP Joe Clark and Drayton Valley MLA Shirley Cripps have been invited to the 11 a.m. ceremony to be staged at the lodge.

The major project, expected to cost $2.5 million will include renovations to the existing building and will include a 38-unit addition.

For the average lodge resident it will mean an end to cramped living quarters. The revamped facility will effectively double the size of most residents' bedrooms.

The fight to get the lodge upgraded has been going on for six years.

Trust funds surge forward

By Belinda Atkinson

Two trust funds to help Jaime Gilbert surged forward last week to $4,938 following two large donations and numerous individual contributions.

The Entwistle Community League presented Jaime with a $1,000 cheque Feb. 7 and Darwell resident Darrel Roth gave $700 from the sale of a horse.

Employees at Entwistle's Credit Union and Drayton Valley's Bank of Montreal say individuals have come in daily to support the girl's treatment to correct a rare brain malformation.

Jane Robinson, the Grade 6 student's mother, says she is overwhelmed by people's generosity.

"As soon as the (receipt) book is filled I'm going to send out thank you cards," she said.

When $1,054 was raised from a horse sale and collection hat at Sekura Auctions last week, Robinson said "I was so happy but I had to make a speech and I just about cried."

Jaime is still unable to attend school and growing extremely bored but Robinson said her health has not deteriorated.

"Her grandma and grandpa bought her some tropical fish and she's keeping busy with them," she said.

"She was so excited she just kept saying, 'right on,'" Robinson laughed. "They keep her amused."

"Now we're just waiting for letters from California. I wait for Roxanne to get back from the mailbox every day," she said.

Doctors at a California clinic are reviewing Jaime's tests and will soon decide if her condition (Arterio Venous Malformation) can be treated without surgery.

If the clinic refuses treatment surgery will be necessary to remove the matted arteries in her brain and the little girl will lose all speech and memory.

Numerous fund-raising efforts are currently being organized including a horse auction Feb. 17. Proceeds from the sale of 11 horses and numerous items will be donated.

The Lariettes will stage an exhibition hockey game against local teachers Feb. 23 to help the local girl and the Entwistle and District Lions Club will also donate all profits from a bingo Feb. 26 at the Entwistle community hall.

What goes up, must come down.

The Huskies cheer on their players.

A tough game...

During a tough first half, the H.W. Pickup Huskies felt the pressure of a close game with Lindale.

Coming head-to-head with Lindales' players' drive to win angered them and they lost some of their concentration until coach Dave Elwood told them to slow the game down and stay in position.

Lindale, who only had seven players at the game, put up a good fight for the first half, but nearing the end of the game they just didn't have the energy left to pull ahead of the mounting lead.

H.W. Pickup came through in the final half to win 45-24 over Lindale.

The audience looks passive as the game slows down.

Up, up and away.

Hard work backbone of ice review

The Drayton Valley Ice Review is coming together quickly.

This year's theme "That's Show Biz" is sure to make the audience feel proud of Drayton's figure skaters, club.

Scheduled for March 4 from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m., the show promises to be packed.

A guest skater from the Precision Skating Club in Edmonton, Bob Carlton, will be on hand, along with Northern Lites Precision skater Patty Pankewicz.

Hard work has been the backbone of this show.

"The mothers put in hours and hours making costumes and organizing," says figure skating club president Anne Kelso.

Amateur coaches have been helping out with the show and lessons for the beginning skaters.

Choreography has been done by Karen Kirkwood and Susan Benson.

The skaters have been limbering up all winter for the show, and practices have been going on for a month.

At last week's practice the novice and basics classes were hard at work

On every face though, was a smile, the one they get from hard work and just plain having fun.

By the determined look on the faces of the little skaters this year's review won't leave anyone disappointed.

Lariettes take 1 of 3

The Lariettes went up against stiff competition last weekend in Whitecourt but managed to end one of three games in their favor.

In the first game of the tournament, the Lariettes moved past the Wabamun Lady Hawks to a 2-1 victory.

Hinton, however, countered the win with a 5-3 decision in the second and the Edmonton Selects took the Lariettes 2-1 in the final game.

DV Meter start playoff with win

DV Meter won a pair of weekend games and their first round of the playoffs.

Last Friday night, they edged the host Whitecourt squad 6-5 and then returned home to record a 7-4 win on Sunday and take the twogame total goal series 13-9.

Michael Lapointe and Kyle Carnahan had two goals each in the 6-5 win and John Cameron netted three in the second victory.

DV Meter will play Morinville in the next round of playoffs.

Woman overcomes paralyzing fear of water

By Steve Fletcher

A fear of water which lasted three decades ended triumphantly for a Tomahawk resident.

Irene Zimmerman, who says she was panic-stricken when she initially attempted to resolve her anxiety at Park Valley Pool, now swims three or four miles every week.

"I realized I couldn't live with this fear," says Zimmerman, who worked her way up from a non-swimmer to a bronze medallion in about 18 months.

She believes her new-found ability in the water has changed her life.

"I think anybody so petrified by fear (should try to fight it)...I feel it limited me in all areas."

Zimmerman's terror first began during her very first swimming lesson at the age of 9.

"I had a young instructor...she went to talk to her boyfriend and I went under three times before my girlfriend pulled me out."

Her next attempt — nearly three decades later — met with about the same level of success.

Joining a beginner's class in the third lesson, she jumped into the Park Valley

Pool and "they had to pull me out. I said that's it, I'm not going in again."

Her instructor, Debbie Brigley, had other ideas, however.

During a noon-hour break, Brigley and Zimmerman practiced going down to the bottom of the deep end.

The fear began to subside. Soon she was taking lessons with 13 and 14 year olds.

Last August, Zimmerman was one of only three or four people to earn passage into the pool's 100-mile club.

Today, she says she maintains her rigorous swimming regimen to keep fit and reduce stress.

The mother of an eight-year-old, multiple-handicapped youngster, Zimmerman believes swimming helps her to deal with the pressures involved.

The deeply-religious Zimmerman's recently-blossomed fervor for the pool has surprised even her three grown children.

"I now can out-swim them all," she points out.

Irene Zimmerman overcomes her fear of water by tackling problem head-on.

Be sure to check ice thickness before venturing out

Do you know anything about ice safety?

How about your children? Are you confident they will be safe this winter?

Fifteen centimetres isn't much, but it could save your life! Northview Pond and the beaver dam beside the new Drayton Sports Centre are great places to skate, ride your bike, etc., but if the ice isn't 15 cm or six inches thick, you could find yourself in a lot of trouble.

Before venturing on to ice, have a parent or responsible person check the ice to make sure it is thick enough.

If you do fall in, don't panic. With your hands or arms on the ice, kick your legs as hard as you can while "squirming" out on to the ice. A wet mitten or glove will quickly freeze to the ice, giving you something to pull on.

Once you are out of the water, crawl away from the hole on your stomach until you are able to roll well away from the thin ice. Do not stand up until you are on safe ice or, better yet, on land.

If a friend falls through thin ice, do not try to approach him — you too could find yourself in the water. Attempt to reach him with an aid — a branch, belt, scarf, hockey stick, etc. Remember, as you are reaching to help him, you must stay low (on your stomach) in order that you don't join him in the water. If you have no aids to assist in reaching your friend, try forming a "human chain" if there are others present.

Lay on your stomachs and join hands or hands and feet, thereby extending your reach. Once again, as the victim leaves the water, make sure he also stays on his stomach until he has reached a safe area.

Hypothermia
You've got your victim out of the water, now what? Obviously, he will be very cold and unable to help himself. His body has become cold — inside and out. His internal body temperature has dropped below normal. He has hypothermia. This means his internal organs cannot function normally and unless he receives some warmth, he could die.

Some signs of hypothermia are: shivering, slow pulse, slurred speech, confusion, sleepiness and ultimately unconsciousness and cardiac arrest (heart stops beating).

What to do

Warm the victim in the following way:

Remove from source of cold (i.e. water), remove wet clothing, give warm fluids, warm with body heat or other mild heat (warm water bottle) applied to head, neck and trunk.

Do not give alcohol or rub arms and legs.

Hypothermia can occur at any time of the year, but is much more common in cold weather. Remember — all of Canada's lakes and rivers are much colder than your body and quickly cause loss of body heat.

Pamphlets on hypothermia and other areas of water safety are available at Park Valley Pool. Also, staff members will gladly answer any questions that you have.

Fund raiser to begin in March

Red Cross has lots to offer

The Canadian Red Cross Society kicks off its annual door-to-door fund-raising campaign in March under the leadership of Joan Frodrik, coordinator.

This year's campaign is special to the Red Cross as 1989 marks the 75th anniversary of the Alberta-N.W.T. Division. Keith Stewart, commissioner of the society's Alberta-N.W.T. Division commented from Calgary: "We've been able to provide support and services to our division for 75 years thanks to the financial support of places such as Drayton Valley."

"When residents make a donation to the campaign, they make an investment in their community and quality of life. Every donation we receive, no matter how small or large, helps ensure that we can continue to provide our services to your community."

In Drayton Valley, Red Cross offers the following programs:

Blood services: Red Cross facts show 60 per cent of all Canadians will need blood or one of its components at least once during their lives.

Odds are if you aren't among the majority who have required blood, you know someone who has. Red Cross is the sole blood collection service in Canada, and supplies every hospital in Alberta with blood at no charge.

Between March 1987 and 1988, more than 85,000 units of blood components were transfused to patients in Alberta hospitals.

Emergency services: Having to evacuate your home because of a fire, flood or explosion can leave you feeling helpless. Red Cross can assist through its emergency services program.

This service provides individuals with emergency supplies and shelter until friends, relatives or government agencies can be reached. When large-scale disasters strike, such as the Edmonton tornado or last summer's flooding in Slave Lake, Red Cross supports Alberta Public Safety Services and local municipalities to help alleviate distress and suffering.

Small craft safety: Paddling peacefully along an Alberta lake or river is a pleasant pastime for those who understand the basics of boating safety. For the untrained, it can become a nightmare.

Red Cross small craft safety works to prevent and reduce boating-related deaths and accidents. A combination of safety demonstrations, pupil and instructor training, and the distribution of accident prevention information help to alert Drayton Valley residents to the importance of learning safe boating practices.

Water safety services: Alberta has the lowest per capita drowning rate in North America and the Red Cross water safety services programs create awareness about safe water practices and teaches skills through courses offered at community facilities.

Instructor training programs and the distribution of educational information are additional components of the program.

Volunteers honored

Hospital employee Veronica Badick (left) presents certificates and pins to her "hard-working" volunteers Feb. 7.

Funding request denied

The recreation board has turned down a request from the Drayton Valley and District Special Olympics for funding.

Special Olympics had requested funding from the community grant, which is to be used for capital items.

The request was denied on the basis that it was intended for operational purposes.

Vivian Bredin will represent the board at the Emergency '89 conference in Edmonton later this month.

The snow bank rink in MacKenzie rink has been dropped this year due to its proximity to the Northview pond.

The sound system at the Drayton Sports Centre has been repaired and new lockers under the bleacher area have been completed. They will be used by minor hockey.

Stephenson will present paper in Rome in March

A former Breton resident will be travelling to Rome, Italy to present a paper to the World Congress.

Cheryl Stephenson, who graduated from Breton high school in 1979, spent two months completing a study and a paper on "A Model for Tertiary Care".

Stephenson works as a respiratory therapist at the University of Alberta Hospital, working in the home care department.

Her paper on tertiary care was submitted to the World Congress after their regular call for papers.

Tertiary care, Stephenson says, is the third level of care for patients. This level of care is done at home with the help of companions and/or families.

The University Hospital is one of the few in the country with a home care program, and not only do Stephenson's methods save money for the government, it also improves life for the patients of respiratory diseases.

Stephenson will be leaving for Rome on March 14, the day the conference begins and will stay an extra week after its completion on March 18.

After presenting her paper to more than 800 medical specialists and being open to their criticisms, she will need the break.

She says she hopes to come away from the congress with a better understanding of how other countries handle home care patients and the different equipment used.

She also hopes to leave them with insight into Canada's home care system.

Is she nervous? She says she is. And after this presentation she wants to take a rest, then perhaps start another paper.

Accordion ensemble

Residents at Shangri-La Lodge are normally entertained by a variety of local groups who visit the lodge on a regular basis. Last week, a small group of accordion players showed up to please an audience with a few musical renderings. Left to right, Greg Rinas, Jennifer Edmunds, Annelies Berus and Nancy Rinas play a selection of music. Berus is the group's accordion teacher.

Criminal cases higher in Whitecourt

How do crime statistics in Drayton Valley compare with other communities of comparable size?

That is one question RCMP Staff Sgt. Jim Humphrey was recently asked by town council.

Based on location and largely similar industry, Humphrey felt Whitecourt would be a suitable comparison.

The populations differ slightly. As of June 1988 Whitecourt had a population of 6,216 compared to 5,500 in Drayton Valley.

The statistics, based on an eight-month time frame (January to September) last year, Whitecourt led in three of five categories.

Their total Criminal Code cases was 764 compared to 513 for Drayton Valley.

They also led in cases under the provincial statutes with 1,219 compared to 906.

And, they recorded 118 Criminal Code traffic offences compared to 106.

Drayton Valley led in drug cases with 37 compared to just 18 at Whitecourt.

The Drayton Valley detachment handled 236 motor vehicle accidents, 34 more than Whitecourt for the same eight-month period.

The total of 37 drug charges was just one behind the total for the same period of time in 1987.

Steam, not smoke

According to Pelican Mills plant manager Bob Olsen, it was steam and not smoke shown in a photo in the Feb. 7 issue of The Western Review.

Olsen says on closer examination of the situation by mill officials, it was determined 98 per cent was steam. The steam was aided by the cold temperatures.

Funds earmarked for master plan

The municipal district of Brzeau has received $24,618 from the community recreation/cultural grant program.

The funds are earmarked for a master plan and for renovations and operational costs for the municipal library.

The Drayton Valley library will receive $16,618 toward their recent expansion and another $7,037 for operations. The remaining $2,000 will go toward a master plan.

Poor turnout at meeting

A matter of rising power costs due to higher transformer use was tabled at the annual DV REA meeting Feb. 2.

A low attendance forced the board to table the matter and another meeting will be scheduled.

Board members said a better turnout will hopefully allow the matter to come forward.

To stay alert, stay alive, every family and business should have a plan.

Stay alert during a severe storm. If there has been a tornado warning, seek immediate safe shelter. Every family member should notify the same contact person (i.e. aunt in the next town) as soon as possible of their location and condition.

Apartment — seek shelter under concrete stairwells. Trailer court — Head for a more solid structure. If no shelter is available, seek shelter in a ditch in the open.

Factories, portable classrooms, auditoriums, gymnasiums, and other large rooms — These types of structures are especially vulnerable to high winds and tornadoes. You should seek shelter elsewhere if possible.

For further information call the Disaster Services coordinator, Dave Turner, at 542-6327.

Clippers end with tie

The midge Clippers finished their regular season on the weekend with a 10-10 tie against Mayerthorpe.

Jason Kipling, Paul Peli and Mike Enyedy all had two-goal efforts. Len Johnson scored once and added five assists.

In a season playoff game against Morinville the Clippers were shut-out 10-0 and lost the two-game total-goal series 12-2.

Three wins and a pair of ties in their last five league games earned the Clippers a playoff berth. They will meet Hinton in a best-of-three series. No dates had been set at press time.

The Pile Base Rangers take to the road this weekend and a 48-team tournament in Denver, Colorado.

They will bus to Calgary early Friday and then take a direct flight to Denver for five games in five days.

Thirty-eight people are making the trip including 15 players. They are scheduled to return home Tuesday.

At a weekend pee wee tourney in Rocky, the Rangers lost a 5-4 squeaker to the hosts, dropped a 6-3 decision to Sherwood Park and were doubled by Sundre 10-5. In a league game on Sunday the Rangers edged Stettler 8-7.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Town of Drayton Valley is currently in the process of developing a PELICAN STEERING COMMITTEE in order to provide formal communications about mill activities primarily with the people in the community, the Mill and the Town.

The Town has a responsibility to ensure the project meets environmental and safety regulations during the mill's operation. The socio-economic impact of development must be monitored to ensure minimum social disruption and maximum regional benefits.

The Pelican Steering Committee will provide this monitoring function and will address problems with a view to developing solutions that are acceptable to all parties involved. That monitoring function can be accommodated through Steering Committee meetings.

Although the objective is to resolve issues by consensus, the Pelican Steering Committee shall be comprised of up to 5 members, three of which will be members-at-large. If you are a resident of the mill area and wish to become a member of the Pelican Steering Committee, please pick up an application form from the Town Office. Please return the completed form no later than February 24, 1989 to:

Sandy Moroz gets set to travel overseas this summer.

Moroz to sing in France, Belgium

By Wendy Carruthers
Sandy Moroz saw what she wanted, went after it, and got it.

The 17-year-old Grade 12 student at FMHS saw a concert in Edmonton performed by the Pentecostal Church.

She enjoyed their work and found out how to audition for them.

Last November she had been accepted to tour with the Continental Singers, a United States-based organization.

So, at the end of June this year, Moroz travels to Chicago and boards a flight to Europe.

She will be spending two months in France and Belgium, touring with the Christian organization she has spent so much energy to join.

Moroz will spend the first nine days in rehearsal and Bible studies, and will be staying in the homes of locals.

There will be 14 singers and 26 members of the orchestra travelling with her. "I feel honored," says Moroz, "and I'm really excited."

Moroz has been working hard to collect the $4,500 needed for her plane flight and expenses.

"I only have $800 so far. I still have a long way to go."

She has been singing in different churches in town, participated in a swim-a-thon and plans to conduct a bottle drive to try to raise the funds.

The Continental Singers send different groups all over the world to 'spread their message through song and study.

Moroz chose to go to France and Belgium because she always wanted to go to Europe.

Her main objective will be to sing but she also says that will be her way "to tell people about Jesus".

Moroz will be working hard over the next few months to raise the money for her trip.

If her excitement is any indication of how hard she is willing to work, there should be no problem for her.

Battery thefts related

RCMP believe that a series of battery thefts taking place last week are all related.

Five reports in a span of two days suggest one person, or a group of people, are responsible, says Cpl. Dave Caporale.

"We get the odd theft of a battery maybe once a month or every two months, but never five in two days," he said.

Caporale added that nothing else was taken from the vehicles.

The five thefts were "scattered around town," said Caporale.

Anyone with any information regarding these crimes is urged to contact the local RCMP or Crime Stoppers at 1-800-922-TIPS.

Local mother stages horse auction in hopes of aiding Jaime Gilbert

A local mother has singlehandedly planned a full-scale horse auction and hopes to raise $1,500 for the Jaime Gilbert Fund.

Valinda Johnson read about the local girl's fight against a rare brain malformation and was compelled to help the ailing girl who had been in her daughter's Grade 6 class.

"They're all good people. I didn't have any worries about getting the response I did," said Johnson.

Johnson spent a week on the telephone urging friends and fellow horse enthusiasts to donate various items and said people came forward with overwhelming support.

"I only had two refusals," she said.

"They're all good people. I didn't have any worries about getting the response I did," said Johnson.

"These aren't just people from Drayton Valley either. There are people from Niton Junction, Winfield, Buck Lake, Alder Flats," she said.

In all, six quarter horses, one appaloosa, two Morgans, a percheron and a thoroughbred will be auctioned off Feb. 17 at Sekura Auctions.

Various collars, hobbles, halters, ferrier services and other items will also be auctioned and Ink Pot Press will donate the printing of auction lists.

All money raised will be placed in the Bank of Play a comedy-lover's must

How better to end a week than to take a humorous stab at the British Navy, self-serving public officials and blind patriots?

And who better to take that stab than a home-grown, dry-docked group of players who practice their craft in a barn and use granaries for sets, props and other performance paraphernalia.

That's right. The Alberta Opera Touring Association will present the world-renowned H.M.S. Pinafore Feb. 17 at H.W. Pickup.

Having performed everything from Hansel and Gretel to The Mikado, AOTA now attempts the hilarious play that first brought writer W.S. Gilbert and composer Arthur Sullivan international fame.

Pinafore begins in Portsmouth Harbour with a British crew in preparation for the arrival of Sir Joseph Porter K.C.B. (Knight of the Bath.) He is coming to claim the promised hand of the captain's daughter and, by doing so, secure the captain's future.

The anticipation is broken by an unsightly peddler woman who sings, as in all good musicals, and then hints of a terrible secret.

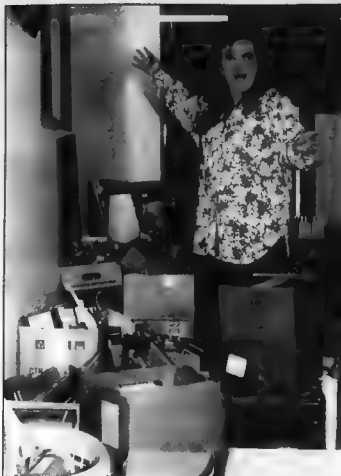

Ralph Rackstraw, the handsome and strong but lowly sailor, admits he too is smitten for the captain's daughter, though he is unaware the love is requited.

Things get messy from there. Ralph spills the beans in front of all, the captain's daughter rejects him momentarily then promises they'll run away together, the captain sings his sorrow and then hears peddler Buttercup carries a torch a torch for him.

The loveboat twists and turns in a storm of hatred as Ralph is thrown in the brig but finally finds port in a calm, tropical sunset.

H.M.S. Pinafore is a comedy-lover's must.

Foundation registered charitable organization

About a year ago, St. Anthony's school decided it did not have enough funds from the Separate School Board to get the extra equipment it needed.

So the Parents' Association (of St. Anthony's), the teaching staff and representatives from the Separate School Board got together to do something about it.

A fund was set up called St. Anthony's Foundation and registered as an official charitable organization with the government.

"It was no more difficult than going through other government offices," laughs St. Anthony's principal Ron Williams of getting the organization registered.

So far the foundation has spent about $2,000 on new school equipment.

"We have purchased a duplicator," says Williams, "that's a poor man's edition of a photocopier."

"They have also bought an AV stand for the library and school uniforms for their sports teams."

Williams said the money comes mostly from private donations.

"It is possible for people to designate funds for certain purposes," he says, "as long as it is within the mandate of the foundation."

The foundation will also accept items, although Williams says that is a complicated process when they have to have items valued.

"If someone donated a picture from a master painter we would take it."

The fund has only been in operation since last fall but Williams hopes it will grow as people learn about it.

Money from the foundation is always spent for the benefit of the school and its students.

Subdivision drainage costs to be shared

The town, hospital and Mobil Oil will share the cost of a berm in Celebrity Heights to help with a serious drainage problem.

Since the development of Celebrity Heights subdivision, located in the southeast corner of town, a swale running toward the northeast has developed.

The volume of water has increased and has resulted in flooding problems for two lots near the subdivision.

According to a report presented to town council, the reason for this is that the runoff is faster due to all the brush being removed in the area due to landscaping. The major runoff is from the hospital site through the Mobil Oil well lease.

To solve the problem, a berm and swale which would intercept the water from the hospital property and the town, directing it west, to be collected by a new storm sewer catch basin manhole be installed. This will tie into the existing storm sewer system at the hospital.

The project, to be shared by the three partners, is expected to cost $10,000.

Jill Kolinski picks up yet another prize from Wayne Gent for her efforts in the MS Readathon.

Employee surprised, honored

When asked who should be chosen as the hospital employee of the month for December, Jim Jansen, hospital administrator, didn't hesitate.

"Les Hewlett," he told the chamber of commerce.

Jansen said Hewlett, an employee since 1979, was brought to mind immediately because of his hard work as materials manager.

"He really helped us through the planning process," said Jansen. "He was responsible for a $1.8-million budget."

Jill Lorenz, chamber director and member of the retail merchants committee, presented the honorary plaque to Hewlett Feb. 8 with a few words of congratulations.

The soft-spoken Hewlett said he was completely surprised to be chosen for such an honor and wondered why someone else had not been selected.

Les Hewlett accepts employee of the month plaque from Jill Lorenz.

But Jansen was adamant: "He really helped us through some trying times."

Hewlett is a registered nurse and holds diplomas in both psychiatric nursing and hospital and health care administration, but says he is happiest in his current position.

St. A. does itself proud

St. Anthony's school can give itself a pat on the back.

Students placed second in Alberta in their school category for fundraising during the MS Readathon last October.

Drayton Valley MS Society representative Wayne Gent was on hand Feb. 7 to present participants with prizes.

All participants received a poster of Alf and a badge.

A colorful painter's cap was given to the student with the most books read in each grade.

As well, a watch was handed out to students who raised the most money in each grade.

The top honors went to Jill Kolinski (Grade 4) for raising the most money in the school, $223.20. That figure was only $10 off the highest amount in the province, putting Jill in fourth place overall in Alberta. As well as the watch she also received a large stuffed dog.

Brendon Brisbane read the most books in the school, 66, and received the added gifts of a back pack and a Frisbee.

Each student was to get sponsors during the month of the readathon and read as many books as possible.

Resources valuable tools

By Janet Carlson
Regional 4-H Specialist

Within your club and community are a variety of people with skills and interests in a number of areas. Some of these people may be more than willing to share their talents.

Resources are valuable tools if you use them properly. You can inject variety and interest into your club year by using a number of different resources. People, books, magazines, films and tapes are just a few of the many resources available to your 4-H club.

Your club should have a film catalogue and a club supply catalogue. Listed in these two books are films, slides/tape kits and project kits which your club can order on loan. They can add a special touch to your club meetings.

People and their time are the most valuable resource we have. Using them effectively can be very rewarding both for your resource person and yourself. Within your club or community you have people with skills and knowledge in certain areas. They may enjoy coming out and presenting a session at one of your club meetings. All you have to do is ask.

To help identify these resources you could ask

Items stolen from cottage

Sometime between Oct. 10 and Nov. 18 a summer cottage located about one mile east and eight km north of the intersection of highways 22 and 39 was broken into.

Items taken included: a McCulloch powerplant, two balloon tires for dunebuggy, one axe, a five-gallon metal red gas can, one gas barbecue with 20-pound propane cylinder, Coleman lantern model 325, Panasonic radio tape player, adjustable 10-inch wrench and two flashlights.

Crime Stoppers will pay a cash reward for information leading to the arrest of any of the persons responsible for this offence. If you have information on this or any other criminal offence, call CrimeStoppers, toll-free, at 1-800-922-TIPS (922-8477).

parents or club members if they have any special skills or areas in which they would like to contribute to your club. Even though you may not see a place in the club program where you can use them right away, keep a resource file with all that information in it. It will come in handy in the future.

Here are a few tips in using resource people effectively.

1. Everyone's time is valuable. Inform your resource person of the purpose and need for the session.

2. Contact your resource person well in advance. In general, six weeks beforehand is a minimum. Everyone likes to do a good job and needs time to prepare.

3. Make sure the person knows how much time they have on the program.

4. Check if they need any special equipment.

5. Make sure they're clear on date, time and place of the meeting.

6. Phone a few days in advance as a reminder. Remember — only elephants never forget!

7. After the session, remember to send a thank-you.

If these simple steps are followed you will be providing proper care and maintenance of your resource people.

Resources come in all shapes and sizes. Try a few new ideas to find resources and look within your club, then within your community. You may be surprised at the talents you uncover!

Residents want to preserve site

The municipal district of Braxeau is going to bat for a group of area residents who want to preserve a recreation spot along the North Saskatchewan River. MD Reeve Henry Rondeau has sent a letter to the provincial Forestry, Lands and Wildlife section recommending the establishment of an appropriate reservation.

The residents of the area who have been using the land for recreation purposes are very much in favor of the preservation of the lands in question for wildlife and environmental protection," Rondeau's letter stated.

Area used for recreational purposes

The controversy arose in October of last year when a gravel contractor moved in to start development of the area in question that he had received in 1985. The local group objected because they felt the gravel operation would ruin the recreational use of the area.

Residents have been using the area for camping, picnicking, horseback riding and snowmobiling.

The public lands division, which is part of Forestry, Lands and Wildlife has already inspected the area.

This latest turn of events follows on the heels of an article expressing one of the concerned residents' viewpoint, printed in the Feb. 7 issue of The Western Review.

Sixty-four acres are involved in the MD's proposal.

Anderson constable

Mike Anderson has received the green light from the solicitor general's office as a special constable with the MD of Braxeau.

In the position, Anderson will enforce the highway traffic, motor vehicle administration, motor transport, dangerous dogs, animal protection, litter, the off-highway vehicle and liquor acts on all roads located within the MD except on a primary highway or a road designated as a 900 series secondary road under the Public Highways Development Act. Or, on a road located within a urban municipality or Indian reserve.

The appointment does not permit the carrying of a firearm.

Review a member of press council

The Western Review is a member of the Alberta Press Council.

Readers with a complaint about any part of the newspaper should first contact the editor or the advertising manager to raise their complaint.

If the complaint is not dealt with to their satisfaction, a written version should be sent to the Alberta Press Council, 12524 Lake Fraser Way, S.E., Calgary, T2J 3T8.

INTRODUCING

Randy Rook

Mayhew Motors is pleased to announce the appointment of Randy Rook to our sales staff.

Randy has over seven years experience in selling General Motors vehicles including the Medium Duty Trucks. He is active in the minor hockey league coaching a team in the Spruce Grove area. He enjoys hockey very much as he was a NHL player himself (for a brief stint).

Randy intends to bring his wife and three children to Drayton Valley and make it his home in the very near future.

We invite all Randy's customers to visit him at Mayhew Motors. He is an excellent addition to our present professional sales staff.

Coffee with Chris

Ole Yeller wins heart

By Chris Kreiser
I have stood firmly, and resolutely said "no" time and time again.

"No" to dog hair, "no" to having a dog in the house, "no" to a dog, period!

Then I watched 'Ole Yeller.' Since Ryan was two years old, he has wanted a dog. We bought him a fish. The fish died. We bought him a rabbit, the rabbit got loose (and probably died).

He still wanted a dog. So we got him a Pound Puppy, but somehow a stuffed dog didn't measure up.

I had thought viewing an old classic would provide a wonderful evening of family togetherness. I made a mountain of popcorn and we settled in on the sofa, eagerly looking forward to the tale of a boy and his dog.

What a mistake! Boxes of kleenex later there wasn't a dry eye in the house.

I finally relented and agreed that every boy should have a dog to love and share adventures with.

So that explains how Killer became part of our family. I, who had loudly declared no dog would ever be allowed in my house, purchased a shellie pup the next day.

He was really meant for Ryan but I'm the one who fell hook, line and sinker. Although the kids promised to care for him (who am I kidding?), I'm the one who feeds him (I knew this would happen), trains him and even bathes him.

I still don't like the thought of him in my house, and on that matter I stand firm. He is only allowed in the kitchen and I now wash the kitchen floor five times a week. Surprisingly I don't even mind.

Fred's been woefully commenting that someone is getting eggs every morning — and it's not him. I've been up at 6:30 every morning making scrambled eggs mixed with cottage cheese for Killer. It's one of his favorites.

I can't believe how much I love this pup! Ryan is ecstatic and the ear-to-ear grin that appeared the first time he held Killer has never left his face. The big surprise is me.

I know anyone reading this and who knows me personally, suspects someone else is writing this column. Odd as it sounds, and as out-of-character as it seems — it is me.

And all because of Ole Yeller.

All that jazz...

Breton singer solos in Denver

By Wendy Carruthers
What do Elvis Presley, the Oakridge Boys and the Statler Brothers all have in common?

They all started their careers as "singer-songwriters...and that's what Angela Strand is working toward.

Strand, 19, of Breton, is currently in Houston, Texas doing volunteer work in the head office of Bandwagon Ministries, waiting for her big break.

Actually Strand's immediate plans include giving a solo performance at the mid-winter conference of Evangelical Covenant Churches in Denver, Colorado on Feb. 13-17.

The annual winter (they hold another in the summer) conference is a gathering of spiritual performers and believers including all the Bandwagon Ministries from across North America.

"Bandwagon Ministries has been instrumental in providing musical and spiritual guidance," says Pastor Dan Stroman of the Breton Faith Covenant Church.

Strand hopes this solo performance will bring in bookings so she can tour with her talent.

Her mother, Carolyn Strand, says Angela will record a demo tape of her songs after the conference, as well as recording songs for a children's puppet video musical.

The series was developed by an original member of Bandwagon Ministries, formerly called Heart Song.

The series, says Stroman, is called Quigley Village. Instead of education shows, the tapes centre around Biblical truths.

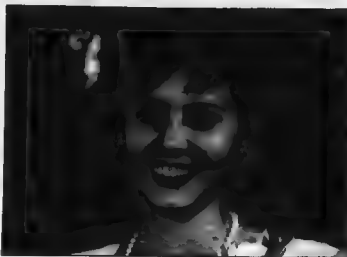

"Titles like 'Why tell the Truth' and 'Be Kind to One Another' show youngsters the answers to moral and social issues of our time.

The tapes will be broadcast in the United States and may be part of a television show.

The Bandwagon Ministries were set up originally to help the Covenant Church to start new churches in other areas. Breton has been involved for three or four years with Bandwagon but Stroman says the "musical ministry" has been around for about 15 years.

Strand's mother says Angela plans to continue recording and touring as a representative of Bandwagon Ministries for one or two years. Then she hopes to put her long-term goal of a musical career into action.

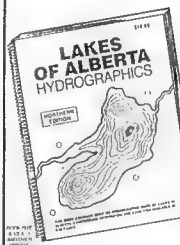

Who knows, perhaps Breton will be the birthplace of the next singing legend.

Angela Strand goes solo in Denver.

Snowstorm tough on wildlife

The Jan. 30 snowstorm has forced area wildlife out into the open in a search for new food supplies.

Hay fields are being used to satisfy their appetites. Fred Kreiser, Drayton Valley's fish and wildlife officer, says three farms have so far reported elk or deer herds feasting on their hay stacks.

One problem, involving a 56-head of elk north of town, has been rectified "by putting (special) bales out" for the animals.

Kreiser and the landowners involved are also trying to protect the hay from damage by erecting snow fences in other problems areas.

Two local landowners have so far complained of 15-strong deer herds feeding on hay.

"It's not that (the farmers) can't afford to feed them...it's the wastage we're trying to avoid," said Kreiser.

He pointed out wildlife can damage a large amount of the crop by walking over it or defecating on top of it.

Kreiser noted that, because of the previous mild winters, this is the first time he has had to deal with the problem since his arrival here two-and-a-half years ago.

The snow cover produced by the blizzard made traditional wildlife grazing areas hard to get at, he said.

Kreiser added the cold weather is also tough on game because they expend energy at a faster rate.

An elk is capable of consuming as much as 40 pounds of hay in sub-zero temperatures, he pointed out.

Man gets 90 days

Japanese may buy Pelican

Pelican Spruce Mills is keeping its fingers crossed that an agreement will be signed next month with the Japanese.

If Pelican, located in Edson and Drayton Valley, get the nod, they will be the first non-plywood mill in the world to jet JAS (Japan's official stamp).

Pelican has been sending some of their oriented strandboard into Japan, but it has been a non-certified product. That could change next month.

"Things are still looking good," plant manager Bob Olson says.

Several new rules for income tax have been introduced this year — such as mandatory inventory adjustment which came into effect Jan. 1, for farmers and part-time farmers.

Buck Lake

A seminar to help explain them will be held at the Buck Lake hall Feb. 23, from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. To register, contact Linda Korsch at the Rimbey Agricultural office, 843-2201.

Are Albertans politically apathetic or are they (in this area) just plain "fed up"?

A meeting, hosted by Drayton Valley M.A. candidate Erwin Zotzman, drew only three people. John Duffy entered the hall at 7:15 p.m. followed by Chuck Parker at 8:30.

Only 26 attended the all-candidates' forum (including candidates, their wives, managers and spouses) in Drayton Valley recently; Warburg forum attracted 16 and six people attended the Thorby forum.

Lions club donate profits to Jaime

The Entwistle and District Lions Club will donate all profits from a Feb. 26 bingo to Jaime Gilbert.

President Dick Balfour initiated the event after hearing the Drayton Valley 12-year-old and former Entwistle resident will have to undergo lengthy treatments in the United States to correct a rare brain malformation.

Balfour said club members voted unanimously in favor of the donation and hope to raise a sizable sum of money to help incur costs that Alberta Health Care will not pick up under regulations restricting coverage out of the country.

Balfour urges Entwistle and Drayton Valley residents to attend the 8 p.m. bingo at the Entwistle community hall and help support the cause.

"The more people that show up, the more money we'll raise," he said last week.

Balfour said a similar event last year raised $260 for Entwistle seniors.

Traffic tickets down

The town handed out 389 traffic tickets last year.

This is down from 432 in 1987.

Bylaw enforcement officer Dave Turner says the decline is due to a more effective education, public relations and sign program offered by the town.

The town was only involved in two court appearances over traffic tickets, the same amount as the previous year.

The first three months of 1988 proved to be the busiest for Turner. According to statistics provided to town council 44 tickets were issued in January followed by 43 in February and 46 in March.

The lightest month for tickets was in July when only 13 were issued.

Turner also reports handling 120 nuisance problems in 1988. Thirty-six were repeats from the previous year.

The town also received seven written complaints about garbage, five for dogs, four pertaining to the noise and dust problems at Pelican Spruce Mills and three about ice and heavy trucks parked on the streets.

Safety video premieres

Thorby elementary school held a special premiere at their school recently as they shared their starring role in a new Alberta Agriculture farm safety program video with their parents and community dignitaries.

Students and teachers at the school cooperated in filming the 1988-89 edition of 'A Teacher's Guide to Farm Safety' last November.

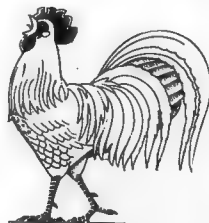

Premiere special guest, Associate Agriculture Minister Shirley Crippa, presented school principal Al Senio with a commemorative plaque and a copy of the video.

The video assists teachers in integrating farm safety into their curriculum.

Wetaskiwin makes second bid

By Joan Elmont
The MD of Clearwater has learned that a second bid to annex the Ross Creek area has been made by the County of Wetaskiwin.

The newly-created Brazeau municipal district has also moved to annex the area in conjunction with the Alder Flats area.

Clearwater council characterizes both bids as "tax grabs" and will move to fight both attempted annexations.

As promised by Doug Wetter, regional manager for AGT, at the open house held at the Alder Flats community hall Jan. 24 and 25, private telephone service was connected just after 12 p.m. at the home of Angela and Perry Larson.

The couple was presented with an engraved telephone for being chosen as the first subscriber.

Alder Flats

Congratulations to Jim Wilson of Buck Lake on being the winner of the draw for a telephone at the AGT open house.

Christina Michelle, seven pounds 14 ounces, was born Jan. 22 at 1:35 a.m. at the Drayton Valley Health Complex, to Corrina and Danny Janke; a sister for Justin and the 32nd great-grandchild for Gene and Ethel Seely.

The Faith Bible Church is holding a Valentine's supper and dance at the Alder Flats hall Saturday, Feb. 18 and 6:30 p.m. discuss the extension proposals for the community hall. Six written proposals were received.

Suggestions concerning the size, type of stage, dance floor, acoustics, exits and potential uses of an extension were made.

A motion was passed to apply for a Category A funding for an assessment study. This would enable the society to find quotes for an architect to design the addition, to find out the cost of the project and for an engineering study with regard to feasibility.

It was decided that any addition should blend with the present building and not appear as an "add-on."

Mill committee well received

The town's new Pelican steering committee is being well received in the community.

James Dryden, who has voiced his concerns about the dust and noise coming from the oriented strandboard plant, has been approached to sit on the committee.

"I'm very interested," Dryden told The Western Review last week.

Bob Olson, Pelican's plant manager, also liked the idea.

"I think it's a good idea," Olson said last week.

Olson says the establishing of the committee has the blessing of general manager Al Owen.

Five people are expected to sit on the committee. This will include three from the community (to be appointed by town council), along with a mill and council representative.

The steering committee will provide monitoring functions and will address problems with a view to developing solutions that are acceptable to the community, town and mill.

Expenditures must match income when budgeting

By Bev Brooks
District Home Economist

Budgeting — the Oxford dictionary definition is an "annual estimate of revenue and the expenditure of a country, organisation, private person or family." Simply stated, budgeting means planning your future finances.

Estimate when income will be received and how much, when expenditures will be made and how much they'll be, then matching the two, is an exercise that has many advantages. Among them are:

You can spot problems before they occur. For example, if you see in March that a major loan payment and a large insurance premium will both be due in May you can look at your assets to determine method of payment. Or, you can get in touch with your banker and insurance agent ahead of time to attempt to reschedule your payments or make other arrangements.

You can be more accurate in answering the questions lenders may ask when evaluating a loan application. Many require more financial planning and cash flow analysis than ever before.

You can help foster family harmony. First, your family can make more realistic spending plans so everyone can set goals and know what can and can't be afforded. Secondly, with planning, you can time expenditures so everyone can either see progress toward his or her

Battle River talks tourism

The Battle River Tourist Association will hold their monthly meeting this Thursday in the Pioneer Recreation Centre in Warburg.

The chamber's tourist committee and the town's tourist action plan committee are expected to send representatives to the meeting which starts at 6:30 p.m. with dinner.

One item on the agenda is expected to be Drayton Valley's participation in the association's annual cavalcade in mid-May. The chamber has been asked to prepare a report on hosting between 60 and 70 recreational vehicles who will be travelling in the cavalcade.

While the busiest time of the year for the tourist association is still a couple of months away, plans have been finalized for participation at nine travel shows.

That circuit starts this weekend in Medicine Hat and will be followed by stops in Regina, Edmonton, Lethbridge, Red Deer, Calgary, Camrose, Drumheller and Fort Saskatchewan.

goal or at least understand the reasons behind the lack of progress.

The first step in budgeting is to find out where the money is going. Start by keeping track of your expenses for a period of at least three months, preferably one year.

An alternate method is to gather previous records of family living expenses, such as cheque books, receipts, amounts and due dates of insurance premiums and debts, plus any other record you've kept in the past year. Then start grouping them into categories. This allows you to examine each category separately and make decisions as to where changes could be made if changes in family living allowance occur.

Remember to include fixed expenses and flexible expenses. Fixed expenses are for a fixed amount, due once a year, every six months or every month. Examples are insurance and personal loan payments. Flexible expenses are insurance and personal loan payments. Flexible expenses generally occur monthly, but in varying amounts. Families have considerable control over these. Examples are food, transportation, utilities, furnishings, clothing, gifts, education and recreation.

There are also expenses that are neither fixed nor flexible. A water heater may give out without warning, or you might have to pay the $250 deductible on your auto insurance because of an accident. An emergency fund is therefore necessary to act as a shock absorber.

Emergency funds can be built up by saving, investing, establishing a good line of credit or by selling assets.

Once you've recorded expected income and expenses, take a couple of days to think about your situation and how you might improve it. Be open with everyone in the household about the financial situation. If everyone is involved in the planning process and in setting goals, they'll feel more committed to them and be more willing to cooperate.

When you've got a plan everyone can live with, stick to it. Keeping careful records and reviewing them regularly makes it easier because you become more aware of the impact of every purchase.

Budgeting doesn't promise to be easy, or a process without its discouraging moments. Give yourself credit though. By analyzing your income and expenses, setting goals and developing a plan, you've made solid progress towards having your finances under control.

Museum needs donations

By Shelll Carson
Congratulations to Cheryl Stephenson who was chosen by the World Congress on Home Care to present a paper she wrote last fall entitled A Model for Tertiary Care.

The Breton high school graduate will make her presentation at the World Congress in Rome, Italy in March. Stephenson, a respiratory therapist, is currently working in home care at the University of Alberta Hospital.

The Breton and District Historical Society is currently looking for items to furnish the living quarters of the museum.

Some items needed include wash dish, metal water pails, stop pail, match box for wooden matches, old frying pans, salt and pepper shakers for stove, shaving brush, mug and razors, tea and coffee cans, old calendars, old-time lumberjack clothing, house dress, mattress for full-size bed, oil cloth, alarm clock, coffee grinder and any other items you may have.

The society has tentative plans to open the museum for a St. Patrick's Day tea March 17, from 1 to 4 p.m. Helen and Roger Breikreuz announce the arrival of Nicole Eklund, born Jan. 28 at the Breton General Hospital. Nicole's grandparents are Allen and Margaret Fenneman of Punnell and Art and Sharon Breikreuz of Carnwood. Great-grandmother is Anne Tryon of Breton and great-grandparents are Ted and Blance Barnett of Edmonton.

Breton

I am pleased to report Art Breikreuz is recuperating at home following recent surgery.

Several hockey teams are involved in provincial playdowns at the present time. The Warburg atom team met a determined and fast-skating squad from Caroline Jan. 25 and came out on the losing end.

The Warburg Bantam Sabres were winners over Spruce View, 6-4, in a home game of first-round provincial play Feb. 6.

The Breton junior boys basketball team defeated St. Anthony school by a score of 20-19 Feb. 6.

Your library is back in service! Judging from the public response since reopening, the new facility is popular with our longtime patrons and is attracting many new faces, too.

Welcome to all. Your library staff is eager to help with your reading requests.

If you haven't visited the new library, do come in soon. Wider aisles give more room to browse in comfort and various seating areas are a welcome addition.

February is Amnesty Month. We ask your cooperation in returning all overdue books now.

There is a backlog of books still to come in. We are not charging fines during February. If you have overdue books - recent or absolutely ancient - do get them in now, please. The book chute is open 24 hours daily. Fill it up this week! February is Love Your Library Month and we have the annual draw for a prize.

It's adorable! Have a look and get your entry in soon. Draw will take place Feb. 28. Remember, the library will be closed Thursday, Feb. 16 to install new shelving.

'Serious painter's' talents haven't gone unnoticed

By Steve Fletcher

The year 1982 will be remembered by art lovers as the year stark reality, in the economic sense, returned to the Canadian art world.

It was the year when the value of art, made buoyant by a half-decade of artificially-inflated prices, came thundering down.

It shattered dreams, diminished pocketbooks and ruined investments.

Doug Loates — realist painter by vocation — accepted the situation without remorse, walking away from a promising career as an art dealer to begin what would be a curiously different future thousands of miles to the west.

Loates, who with his wife Jean had founded Gallery 480 in Elnora, Ont. and had built a stable of about 20 artists, wound up as a security guard at Pelican Spruce Mills in Edson, AB.

"The value of blue chip, investment-calibre art work fell about 50 per cent overnight," recalled Loates.

The reason: an auction at Sotheby's, the dominant seller of art work in Canada.

"They determine the price trend and who's hot and who's not," Loates said. Sotheby's had decided, quite convincingly, that prices were too extravagant.

"It was traumatic, but it wasn't the end of the world," said Loates, who doesn't relate realism solely to his canvass.

Born in Cambridge, Ont., Loates aspired to be an artist at an early age. An apprentice painter at 14 and the youngest art dealer in Canada at 20, his talent has not gone unnoticed.

Today, he is one of 30 artists represented by widely-regarded art dealer Tom Beckett.

Famed wildlife artist Robert Bateman, for one, has given Beckett exclusive rights to sell his originals — which can fetch as much as $100,000 in the marketplace.

A self-acknowledged "serious painter," Loates, now 30, paints with very broad strokes when it comes to discussing the current state of his art career.

"Art is definitely my background," he maintained. "And I definitely still want to have it as my primary source of income."

That pursuit, however, was somewhat sidetracked when he moved to Alberta and joined on with Pelican Spruce Mills.

Despite a lack of formal education, Loates quickly rose through the ranks, transferring to Drayton Valley in 1986 to become the local mill's technical director.

A scant nine months ago he was placed in charge of research and development and quality control for the lumber company's operations in both Edson and Drayton Valley.

Loates credits the indiscriminate leadership of then-owner Al Owen for his rapid ascent up the corporate ladder.

Lacking formal education, he says, is "not a hindrance if you work hard...Al Owen, I think, only went to Grade 9, so he was sensitive to that and he gave me the chance which I really appreciate."

Possessing only a high-school diploma, Loates admits he often confers with counterparts who are professional engineers or university graduates trained in wood sciences.

Obviously, hard work and self-education have always been catalysts in the realization of Loates' goals.

These traits played a prevalent role recently when his artistic ambitions progressed to a significantly different level.

Up to 1985, Loates had practised various forms of technique, including oils and, more recently, pen and ink.

Then, three-and-half years ago, he began to study the "notoriously laborious" procedure known as painting with egg tempera.

Egg tempera is a centuries-old art form once practised by the likes of Leonardo de Vinci.

With his introduction to this technique, Loates entered an exclusive segment of the art world.

Only a handful of artists, including Ken Danby, paint with egg tempera on a commercial basis.

Loates, who learned the technique through books, describes the egg-tempera process as a "labor of love."

Requiring many hours of intensive work, the painter goes through stages that makes the work look horrid.

"You can go up there (to the studio) day after day and it doesn't look like you're getting anything done."

Because of this, a full-time tempera painter usually completes only six major works in the span of a year.

It is also because of this that a tempera painting can be a highly-valued commodity.

Loates expects to show his most recent tempera undertakings in 18 months time at the Beckett Gallery in Hamilton, Ont.

He hopes to have eight paintings ready at that time, each of which will be priced between $2,000 and $5,000. Art devotees will pay at least $400 for about 30 preliminary studies (sketches and drawings) that will also be exhibited.

Forty-five per cent of that money will be taken up by the dealer and extra expenses before the artist sees his share.

Today, Loates is working diligently toward completing a tempera project that has so far consumed four months of his spare time.

Sequestered inside his studio on the top floor of a new home in Aspenview, Loates habitually paints to music known as New Age, a fusion of jazz and classical.

"It's the right speed," said Loates, who stresses that music is a normal motivating force for many painters.

His cousin, accomplished artist Glen Loates, for example, is a Disney fanatic who insists on painting to the soundtracks of the old animated features.

Painting hot on canvas but on a specially-crafted masonite panel, Loates' two children sometimes act as subjects while wife Jean is his best critic.

Sitting stoically at his work table and under the pressure of the approaching deadline for his next showing, Loates has the dedication of the proven professional.

And why not? Art, a prime focus for most of his life, is undeniably in his blood.

"I come from a long line of artists and architects," said Loates. The tradition continues...

Not a typical art dealer

Doug Loates, casually dressed and chomping on a cigar in Gallery 480 in Elora, Ont. in the early '80s, was approached by a middle-aged woman of great wealth.

"I am sure the director would not approve of you smoking that thing," she said defiantly.

"When I told her I was the director," recalls Loates, "She turned around and walked out."

Loates, who operated the art gallery with his wife Jean between 1979 and 1982, was not the stereotypical art dealer.

And Gallery 480 — a 3,500-square-foot edifice situated in a southern Ontario tourist town — was not exactly interested in the old, staid ways of traditional galleries.

"We didn't buy a lot of the real typical crap that was happening in the art scene," said Loates.

Refusing to be pretentious, Gallery 480 strived for an open, family-oriented atmosphere. The concept, when combined with director Loates' young age, attracted a lot of publicity.

A.J. Casson, the last surviving member of the Group of Seven, was a regular visitor.

"It was a very glamorous lifestyle because we were dealing with very high-priced items," said Loates.

Organizing six realist shows a year, another three or four abstract exhibitions, Doug and Jean Loates also strived to bring in from the cold Canada's best-kept secrets.

One was Bernard Pickering, an artist in the 1920s and 1930s who painted with the Group of Seven.

Pickering had been labelled a communist and his work was never shown at a gallery.

Loates held a Pickering exhibit from works the old artist had collected in boxes under his bed.

"We framed and we sold everything," Loates said. "He made a lot of money."

Gallery 480 was "phenomenally successful" before the art market crashed in 1982, he noted.

"Unfortunately we weren't prepared for any downfall at all — we were young and naive."

An artistic rendering by Carl Beam that rests in Loates' studio. Once an unknown, Beam's works are now displayed at the National Gallery in Ottawa.

Consumer's Corner

What is your opinion?

There is more in aspirin than just ASA. As the label indicates, acetylsalicylic acid is the "active ingredient." But nearly all drugs also contain active ingredients or "excipients." Because excipients are considered inactive, a drug label does not have to list those contained in the product. This can cause problems for people who are sensitive to them.

Excipients serve a variety of purposes. They can bind ingredients together, give medicines a better taste and make pills smooth and easier to swallow.

But they are not inactive to everyone. Pity the recovering alcoholic who inadvertently uses a drug containing alcohol. Or the individual that is severely allergic to sulphite preservatives.

preservatives.

These dangers have prompted the Consumer's Association of Canada to call for complete ingredient listings on drugs. In response, some drug manufacturers have started using labels that list those ingredients known to cause reactions. That is only a partial solution. Other manufacturers have gone further and adopted a full disclosure policy. Still others will supply ingredient lists to physicians when asked.

While this voluntary action is good news for consumers, it is not enough. Complete drug ingredient listings should be mandatory so they appear on all drug labels.

What is your opinion? CAC Alberta would be pleased to hear. Just phone 426-3270 with your comments.

Don't try to be Superman

Stress has become an important word in our daily lives. You see it on book covers, vitamin bottle labels, and brochures about exercise plans.

Everyone is talking about it. Everyone has it.

Some experts have stated that stress can be defined as "wear and tear" on your mind and body. You can feel the stress sensation when you are sitting in the dentist's office, when you are waiting to write a test (or have the results handed back), or when you have to give a speech in public.

You can often recognize when you are under stress by the feelings you note in your own body. You might have trouble remembering simple things, or you might feel nervous, tense or grouchy. Often, people have trouble falling asleep when they are experiencing stress. Sweaty palms, a breathless feeling, a pounding heart, headaches and tight muscles — these are all indications your body is reacting to a stressful situation.

When people are under extreme stress for extended periods of time, it is possible certain medical problems can arise. Ulcers and heart disease are common physical disorders that have been linked with stress. There is also a range of emotional problems which can arise, as well.

How can you manage the stress you encounter in your day-to-day life? Here are a few suggestions which you might find useful:

Organize your day. Make a list of things you have to do. Then try to work through the list one at a time. Don't try to accomplish everything all at once.

Don't try to be Superman. Be realistic about the number of things you try to accomplish at any given time. Limit the number of tasks you set for yourself. If you feel other people are expecting you to do too much, try to find some way to tell them — if it is difficult to tell them in person, a good idea might be to write your feelings down on paper and send them a letter.

Exercise regularly and especially when you feel stress building up. Even just going for a walk can relax your muscles and clear your mind. Jogging, callisthenics, or lifting weights can be an effective, and natural, way of releasing yourself from stressful feelings.

Cry (if and when you feel like it). If you're upset and feel like crying, go ahead and let the tears flow out. Whether you are a boy or girl, a woman or man, don't try to hold it in — sometimes a good cry can really help remove some of the stressful sensation.

Get away from it all. Set aside some "quiet time" every day just for yourself. Listen to music, read a book, or just think. Let people around you know this is "your time" to be by yourself — your own "stress management" period in the day.

TURNING OPPORTUNITY INTO ENTERPRISE

OPPORTUNITY

In 1979 after years of construction industry experience, Ed Croshaw and his partners identified the need for truss products in North-Central Alberta.

CHALLENGE

They needed aggressive start-up financing to build a competitive, state-of-the-art plant.

SOLUTION

They went to AOC and received an excellent financial package and valuable advice on controlling the plant in Elk Point. Elk Point Truss now employs up to 25 people in designing and manufacturing trusses for homes, barns and commercial buildings.

MORE INFO

Have a sound business idea that needs a financial solution? Call your nearest AOC office and ask for our brochure, "How To Turn Opportunity Into Enterprise". Your nearest office is in Ponoka, 783-7011.

Ed Croshaw, President and General Manager of Elk Point Truss Ltd. The company serves residential and commercial customers across the West. AOC has offices in Brooks, Calgary, Edmonton, Estlin, Grande Prairie, Lethbridge, Lloydminster, Medicine Hat, Peace River, Red Deer, St. Paul, and Ponoka (Head Office).

AGT introduces new money-saving initiatives this month

AGT customers will be able to choose from a variety of options for savings on long distance calling beginning Feb. 1.

Highlights of these new initiatives include:

A new service called "Between Friends" will be introduced. This service will allow Albertans to call anywhere in Canada or the continental United States during off-peak hours for a flat rate of $11.50 for the first 30 minutes and a rate of 38 cents per additional minute. Within Alberta the 30-minute flat rate will be $6.50 with a rate of 22 cents per additional minute. These rates will apply to direct dial calls only.

A service called "community calling" will give customers a discount of 30 per cent on the per-minute rate on calls direct-dialed to selected locations within an 80-km radius. Charge for this service is $2 per route per month. This service applies to both business and residential customers.

Interim long distance rate reductions announced last August were finalized. These reductions are up to 20 per cent on calls within Alberta, an average of 18 per cent on calls to Manitoba and points east and an average of 17 per cent on calls to the continental United States.

Long distance rates between Alberta and B.C. will decrease by an average of 11.5 per cent. Long distance calls between Alberta and Saskatchewan will be reduced by an average of two per cent.

Customers may now request an address as well as a phone number when they call directory assistance. The charge for directory assistance service will increase from 35 cents to 50 cents. There will continue to be no charge for new number listings or to those customers who need assistance because they are disabled.

Autopinion '89 available

The Alberta Motor Association has released Autopinion '89, a car-buyer's guide containing specifications and color photos of all 1989 automobiles and light trucks, as well as comprehensive information on older models for used car buyers.

The annual magazine includes pricing guidelines, fuel consumption ratings and a comparison of the benefits and drawbacks of the various "optional extras" available on today's cars.

There are feature articles on multi-purpose vehicles, new car warranties and tips on buying a car. In addition, the used car section provides details on the repair records of vehicles owned by 23,000 CAA members who participated in a nation-wide "vehicle durability survey." There is also a table listing vehicle recalls by model year.

Autopinion '89 is highly recommended to anyone seriously considering the purchase of a new or used vehicle. It is also a valuable source of consumer information for all Canadians who own or drive cars.

Our vision isn't always good

By Pastor John Martens
DV Pentecostal Assembly

If you are like me you like to make decisions on what you know and can see for yourself.

Unfortunately, we are limited in our knowledge and our vision isn't always so good either. Just when you are sure you understand what you are seeing, a slight change in perspective transforms the information into a totally different picture.

The Bible records several cases where people made an about turn in light of a new perspective. People like Simon and Saul of Tarsus in name a couple. Both encountered the power of God and changed their walk in life as a result of their new understanding of Him.

Simon was a fisherman. He and some of the other disciples had been trying to catch fish all night, unsuccessfully. His initial reaction to Jesus' words: "Let down the nets for a catch," questioned the rationale of another cast. Nevertheless, he did put out the nets and caught so many fish his boat began to sink.

Through his encounter with Jesus' power, Simon was brought face to face with the reality of his unworthiness and the Lord's greatness.

And Saul, "Go away from me,

From the Pastor's Pen

Lord; I am a sinful man!" Jesus' goal was not to bring the disciples to despair and leave them. Only after gaining a true knowledge of who Christ was were they ready to leave everything and follow Him.

Saul of Tarsus was raised as a Pharisee, a devout keeper of the law of God. The Bible records that Saul was actively persecuting Christians thinking he was doing service to God. His ignorance of God's work of salvation ended abruptly when the resurrected Lord Himself confronted him on the road to Damascus.

Who are you Lord?" was Saul's question.

Truly Saul had not known who the Lord was until Jesus introduced Himself. "I am Jesus, whom you are persecuting." From that point Saul changed his direction and became one of the most effective missionaries in church history, spreading the gospel across the Gentile world.

Both Simon and Saul had a dramatic change in their lives when they encountered the Lord Jesus. In Jesus they both found a new meaning in life — and their lives lives changed because of it. Dedicated to serving their Lord and Master Jesus, their lives were unrecognizably transformed.

Jesus said He came into the world "so that the blind will see." There is a possibility you have had some trouble "seeing" or "understanding."

Like Simon, you may have been trying to be successful in life. Or like Saul you may be very determined to be involved in what seems to be a "just" cause.

The big challenge comes when we are confronted with the Truth, Jesus Christ.

The event may be dramatic, like the flash of light around Saul, or more personal, like Simon's realization of his Master's greatness. Encountering the living Saviour puts us within earshot of His voice, calling us to leave the very things we had devoted our lives to, to follow Him.

One way or another, Jesus confronts us all, and asks us to take up the challenge of a new point of view.

League elections held

By Linda McGinn

The Whitby Community League held its first meeting Wednesday, Jan. 24 at the Whitby community hall.

Elections were held and Avelie Peck was voted in as president, Jor Kelly as vice president, Susan Hines is secretary, Jalna Rytie was named treasurer and Carol Kelly will handle hall bookings. Other board members include Ev Howatt, Diane Sullivan and Linda McGinn.

Plans were made for two dances to be held March 18 for St. Patrick's Day and June 17 for Father's Day.

Members decided to contribute to the Jamie Gilbert fund.

Whitby

Renovation plans were discussed (and caused). A raffle planned for the latter part of the year is being looked into.

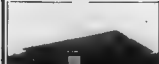

Get well wishes go out to Glen Howatt.

Recent snowfall proves costly

The most recent snowfall is expected to cost the town $30,000.

The first major snow fall of the winter cost $22,000.

Councillor Howard Olsen informed council last Thursday, that while the main roads were cleaned in record time, there were problems.

To complicate the snowfall cleanup, the town faced major problems with equipment.

Last Tuesday's cleanup was hampered by the loss of a grader, that was in the shop for 12 hours.

Olsen says the town tried without success to line-up another grader.

It has been estimated it will cost between $12,000 and $15,000 to fix the grader.

Trucks to haul the snow away was another problem. Because of the truck activity in the area coupled with the cold weather, only two trucks were available last Tuesday.

One of the town's sand trucks is also in poor mechanical condition.

Olsen cautioned his fellow councillors he would have some of these items in his 1989 budget requests.

Mayor Bob Mayhew raised the rate of pay for the trucks, after seeing a number of them sitting in front of the public works garage.

"I don't want to see the control being lost. I want to see it monitored," he stated.

Olsen stated that Tuesday was a bad day with equipment breakdowns and all, but he would make note of the mayor's concerns.

"We're doing our very best," Olsen added.

Recent snowfall removal expected to cost $30,000.

Let's talk about Your Future

It's people with quality training who have the edge in the job market. And when it comes to quality training, it's the Northern Alberta Institute of Technology (NAIT) that has the edge.

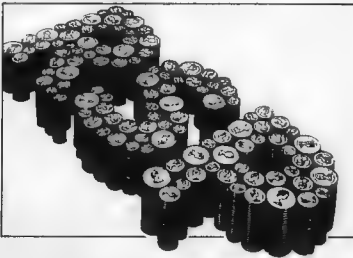

Applications are now being accepted for the fall of 1989.

- more than 60 one- and two-year programs in the career fields of engineering technology, business and computers, health and medical sciences, resource technologies, and applied arts.
- a practical, hands-on approach to training that is geared to employer needs.
- a learning environment that features small classes, superior instruction, modern facilities, and a varied range of student services and activities.

All NAIT programs have enrolment quotas - early application is recommended.

You can learn about NAIT's programs and services in a variety of ways: calendars, information seminars, Open House (March 10 and 11), appointments with counselors, visits to programs, and others. For additional information, write or visit the Registrar's Office (NAIT, 11752 - 106 Street, Edmonton, Alberta T5G 2R1) or phone:

Westerners hold new portfolios

Western Canada gained strength in the new cabinet announced by Prime Minister Brian Mulroney with key portfolios and positions on powerful committees either being retained or assigned to Western MPs.

Cabinet jobs Westerners will hold include: Agriculture: Agriculture, a critical cornerstone of Alberta's economy, is now under the direction of Don Mazankowski. In the last Parliament this position was held by John Wise of Ontario. Mazankowski also continues to be the deputy prime minister.

Energy, Mines and Resources: Manitoba Jake Epp takes on this vital ministry from Marcel Masse of Quebec.

Regional Industrial Expansion and Science and Technology: Calgarian Harvie Andre's new portfolios will help shape Alberta's future and help diversify our economy.

Western Economic Diversification and Minister of State (grains and oilseeds): Charlie Mayer's excellent performance Minister of State in the last mandate wins him this position with the added responsibility of Western Economic Diversification.

National Defence: Saskatchewan's Bill McKnight takes over this key ministry from Perrin Beatty of Ontario. McKnight will oversee defense spending and the awarding of government defence contracts. Joining McKnight as the associate minister of national defence is Mary Collins of B.C.

Forestry: Frank Oberle of northern B.C. is in charge of forestry, an important Western resource, and will head the new Department of Forestry.

Indian Affairs and Northern Development: Kim Campbell of B.C. is this portfolio's newly appointed Minister of State.

Fisheries and Oceans: Tom Siddon continues as minister of this committee portfolio and has joined the planning and priorities committee.

What Ever Happened to Randy Grubb?

In 1972, Randy Grubb became an apprentice millwright with Canadian Forest Products Ltd. (Alberta Division). After four tough years and a stack of exams, he was a certified tradesman. When Canfor announced a switch to a more progressive, computerized mill, Randy seized the opportunity and began upgrading his electrical skills. By 1992, Randy Grubb will have earned his electrical journeyman status.

RANDY GRUBB ON GETTING

STARTED: "In 1970, I was fresh out of high school and eager to land a job in a trade. Jobs weren't exactly easy to come by then, so I took what I could. An odd job here. An odd job there. In 1972, I got my first big break — an apprentice millwright position with Canfor. By 1976, I'd earned my certification. That was a proud moment."

RANDY GRUBB ON OPPORTUNITIES:

"Our company was building a fully modernized mill. I reckoned where there were computers, there was a need for electricians. So, with a little government assistance, I decided to build on my millwright skills by learning another trade. To this day, I'm still learning the ropes, and believe me, it's hard work. But I've got a long term plan. I'm not thinking about the obstacles, I'm just thinking about getting my certification."

RANDY GRUBB ON ALBERTA'S

ECONOMY: "In my 17 years in the forestry business, I've seen a lot of change.

Both in the technology we use and in the way we think. To me, these are exciting times. Because as Alberta continues to diversify, new opportunities will continue to surface.

"If opportunity knocks, I say grab it. Because in this competitive day and age, you can't afford to let things happen. You've got to get out there and make them happen."

ALBERTA CAREER DEVELOPMENT AND EMPLOYMENT ON

RANDY GRUBB:

Randy Grubb displays the quality of character that makes him a valuable individual in today's diversified economy. We can learn from his eagerness to embrace change, seize opportunities and work hard to achieve his goals. We can help you adapt to our diversifying economy with training, counselling and job creation programs.

Musicians should ensure music is mixed

Be sure the musicians play a variety of selections from different eras and that the pace is balanced so everyone can enjoy dancing during the reception.

Also be certain you've heard the musicians, know they play well and that your contract specifically states the group you hired will indeed appear.

One couple was astonished when they entered their reception to the beat of a '60's rock band that was a last-minute replacement for the more conservative group they had chosen.

Occasionally, the bride and groom do not want to dance. If they opt to omit the traditional first dance, it should be announced the guests are invited to begin dancing.

15 sentimental ways to say "I love you"

Keep the spirit of romance alive, even as the crunch of details consume you and your bride-to-be during the weeks before the wedding. She'll be delighted with your special shows of attention, and thrilled with the reminders of what a caring and romantic soul she's marrying.

Here are 15 very special little touches, each one guaranteed to find its way into her heart.

1. Schedule a romantic evening for two. Rent her favorite movies, unplug the phone and cuddle up with each other and a bowl of popcorn.
2. Buy her a ridiculously extravagant and absolutely frivolous gift. She might say, "You shouldn't have," but her eyes will be telling you, "Oh, yes!"
3. Make all arrangements for a luxurious night on the town, including a limo. Dress to the nines and treat her like royalty.
4. Slip a gift-wrapped bottle of her favorite perfume into her briefcase.
5. She's accustomed to eating sandwiches at her desk, but you have a better idea. Arrive at noon, picnic basket in hand, and invite her to a picnic lunch in the park.
6. Arrange for a relaxing day at a local spa two or three days before the wedding to relieve the last remnants of tension.
7. Write her a letter to be read the morning of the wedding. Tell her just how you feel on what is sure to be the first day of your life together.
8. Send a bunch of helium-filled balloons to her office.
9. Prepare a candlelight and champagne dinner for two — even if you have to use take-out food.
10. Tuck a surprise gift in her coat pocket.
11. Slip a seductive note into her purse.
12. Give her a gold locket with your picture in it wrapped around the neck of a stuffed teddy bear.
13. Leave a gardenia on her door step every day for a week.
14. Give her a dozen "IOUs" that she can turn in for boxes of candy, bunches of hugs and kisses, etc.
15. Tell her you love her...every day!

Wedding cake brings good luck

The wedding cake is more than a delicious addition to the wedding feast.

It brings good luck to the happy couple and their guests.

In Roman times the cake brought good fortune, but it was crumbled over the heads of the couple and the visitors!

The Anglo Saxon was less messy and was the forerunner of our own cake tradition. They brought a basket of cakes to the wedding and gave one cake to each of the guests for luck.

The cake wasn't exclusively European custom either. The Iroquois included cakes in their wedding celebrations to bring good luck too.

Dreaming on the cake came from another custom. In the olden days, single girls were given apples to put under their pillows so they would see their future husbands in their dreams.

Over the years the wedding cake was substituted for the apple, probably because of its association with the wedding itself.

Cutting the cake is also done for more than the eye of the camera.

The couple cut the cake together to show that they will share other work as well.

The bride is also cautioned to keep a piece of her own wedding cake to ensure that her husband remains faithful.

Rocky Mountain Furniture's Bill Brundritt sits down with Iris Gilmore in front of his store at the Derrick Mall. Brundritt says his store will take the time to work out the arrangements required to ensure newlyweds' furnishing needs are well looked after. The furniture store has both new and used goods in stock.

Mixed reaction can follow request

When an older, single woman is asked to be a bridesmaid for a younger relative or friend, her reaction is often mixed.

She's pleased at the honor, but apprehensive, too. Will being part of all the wedding plans and traditions make her look and feel like an "old maid"?

Understand her feelings. Realize it's possible for your friend to be delighted for you — but still feel somewhat wistful. If she would like to be married herself, but "Mr. Right" has yet to show up, a woman might wonder what's keeping him. This can make close involvement with a wedding difficult for her.

Head off comments by others. Well-meaning wedding guests can make matters worse by asking your friend "And when are you getting married?" or announcing, "It's your turn next!" Your friend can most likely deal with these tactless comments herself, but you might help.

The best response is usually a light-hearted one that immediately changes the subject. If you notice your aunt interrogating your single maid, don't hesitate to interrupt by suggesting your maid join you to greet your college roommate — at the other end of the room.

Plan with sensitivity. There are some practical considerations you might make for an older attendant. For instance, the dresses you've chosen for your younger maids may look too "girlish" on an older woman: Perhaps she would wear a more sophisticated version of the style.

Another consideration is the bouquet tossing. If your older attendant is sensitive about being single, throwing the bouquet very deliberately in her direction is like hiring a skywriter to announce her eligibility.

Finally, while many of your friends may offer to host wedding showers for you, you might want to give priority to a shower given by your older attendant — to help her feel more a part of the celebration.

Bridal bouquet

The bride throws her bouquet so an unmarried friend can "catch" some luck in romance, goes the modern explanation. But the custom actually started as a form of self-defense.

In times past, belief in the mystical value of a bride's adornments prompted friends and strangers alike to try to grab a piece of her outfit.

Eventually, some clever bride found that by flinging her flowers away from herself, the crowd would have something to fight over — and she would escape intact!

Golden memories of wedding still abound

By Steve Fletcher

Bill and Jean Huska were married at a local church in small-town Saskatchewan.

It was late fall and the country was still wracked by the 'Great Depression. The Prairies were little more than one giant dustball.

Yet the times were incredibly simple; the close-knit community was always quick to celebrate a grand occasion such as the joining in matrimony of a favorite son and daughter.

On that day—Nov. 6, 1938—the church was crammed with the teary-eyed relatives of three other couples, who were all married at the same time.

In those days, weddings were only held on Sundays—making the minister's time a valuable commodity.

Bill, then 22, and Jean, then 18, were an item for three years before the crucial step was forged in 1938.

"Bill came with his parents to my place and asked my mom and dad if he could marry me," Jean says.

The wedding arrangements were made immediately.

Bill and Jean Huska, above, as they are today. Left, the young couple as they were just after their wedding.

The Huskas recall that no written invitations were sent out. Instead, they went "home to home by horse and buggy" to invite friends and neighbors to the ceremony.

The bride's voluptuous gown was purchased for $20.

The groom wore a $20 Botany surge suit that you "had to iron until it finally got shiny."

Price of the his and her wedding bands: $15.

The ceremony itself was quick and to the point. The reception afterwards was a credit to human stamina that has few equals by current standards.

"In those days it was a three-day event," Jean recalls.

The young Huskas danced all night inside a granary in Jean's hometown. Then travelled 30 miles the next day to do it all over again at Bill's.

With the floors nicely waxed, Bill remembers dancing away the hours with his new wife.

"We danced till daylight, and there was lots of booze."

Every guest at the reception donated about $1 in lieu of a wedding gift. The newlyweds used the money to buy their very first automobile—a '28 Chevrolet.

Celebrating 50 years of wedded bliss last November, the Huskas maintain that it wasn't an unexpected feat.

Marriage was considered a "for better or for worse and till death do us part" proposition in those days, says Jean.

Marriage inevitable for local couple

Tying the knot was almost a forgone conclusion for Barry and Lois Pankewicz.

"Not only have we been married for 25 years but we've known each other forever," says Lois, who wasn't exaggerating.

The local couple celebrated their silver anniversary last Nov. 9.

Lois grew up in Warburg. Barry in nearby Sunnybrook. They attended the same schools. Their parents were close friends.

Matrimony seemed inevitable.

Lois says she had just completed Grade 9 when she and Barry became official hand-holders. Barry was entering Grade 11.

Four years later they were married at the Catholic Church in Warburg.

Lois recalls the occasion "wasn't too much different" from ceremonies held today.

The reception, however, did include one special highlight.

"Barry's grandma (who spoke mainly Ukrainian) gave a little speech in English for my benefit," says Lois. "Everyone ended up teary-eyed."

The reception, filled with the music of "good ole country and western," was open to everyone in the area, adds Lois. "It was plum full."

Twenty-five years later, the Pankewiczes remain as happily married as ever.

Lois has her own secret to maintaining a healthy relationship.

"Always be honest and say what you feel...don't hold it back."

"And never go to bed angry."

"Never go to bed angry," advises Lois Pankewicz, pictured recently with husband Barry (above). Left, as they were on their wedding day.

Love and marriage not the reserve of the young

By Belinda Atkinson

The bride has lost her hour-glass figure and the groom's hair has seen better days, but their hearts haven't aged beyond 16. Ed Degen, 65, and Millie Jones, 57, have found young love, complete with sweaty palms, churning stomachs, cracking voices and minds that can't retain thoughts beyond each other.

The mother of three and father of five have lived full lives apart, but seem born again to one another with their recent engagement and promise to wed in a year's time.

"I had always hoped there would be someone else in my life because I don't think we were meant to be alone," said Millie of her husband's 1987 death following a prolonged fight against cancer.

"My wife wanted me to be with someone else. She told me to meet a nice lady," said Ed who lost his wife to cancer in 1985. "I thought it would be for convenience sake but I never thought I'd feel so strongly committed...I love this man," says Millie, eyes sparkling.

"I love her too," said Ed. The two seemed to lose all sense of anyone else in the room.

Like the origin of many young loves, a glance across a crowded dance floor brought the two together.

"I was tending bar and she (Millie) saw me there checking out the female clientele," Ed boasted.

"I think I asked him to dance," Millie added.

"I was eyeing her for a few months (at the West Country Singles Club)," he said.

"After a couple of weeks we started dating but it took a little while for me to get the nerve up."

Millie said she was as giddy as a kid, telling friends about her new boyfriend and giggling over nothing in particular.

"I'm still taking her around and showing her to all my friends," Ed laughed.

Millie's son and Ed's daughter have been the only two to meet their new step-parent. They've offered a few words of caution but both are also happy to see their parents transformed.

"All they have to do is look at me and see that I'm totally changed," said Millie. "My son said, 'My God if anyone has earned the right to be happy it's you.'"

Both retired, Ed and Millie have spent the last month finding a new home. Millie has put her home up for sale and Ed's preparing to move out of his apartment.

"I'm so excited. I can't wait to get moved," said the blushing bride to be.

"We're going to go fishing and camping quite a bit," Ed confided.

The oilfield construction business gave Ed a chance to see much of Canada, though travel was often limited to highways at night. Millie also saw the country from an oilfield industry truck while assisting her ailing husband with his work.

Now they hope to take many trips together, possibly as far as the east coast, and live the self-indulgent, responsibility-free life that all young lovers are entitled to.

Sweethearts Ed Degen and Millie Jones will wed in a year's time. The two suffered the loss of their spouses but have found happiness in each other.

Pre-marital tips to avoid hassles as day approaches

Glen Lonie, president of the Drayton Valley Ministerial Association, offers advice and tips on preparing for the wedding ceremony.

Why get married?

It provides for legal protection for each other and your children. Vows are made in the presence of God, family and friends and are more apt to be kept. They also hold us accountable.

Why have a church wedding?

It's traditionally accepted in our culture, and it's a reminder that God is the silent, unseen witness to the covenant being made.

When should you contact a minister?

Well in advance of your planned marriage date (several-months, in fact).

Why?

The minister may not be available on your planned date or the church may already be booked. The minister also usually requires that some pre-marital counselling be completed.

Will the minister do the pre-marital counselling?

Often, but he may also make a referral.

What is the purpose of such counsel?

Glen Lonie

It assesses the readiness for marriage, stimulates effective communication skills, anticipates potential stress factors, examines the Biblical teaching about marriage and plans the wedding ceremony.

What does a minister charge?

Often there will be no set fee. It is best to ask the minister directly. An honorarium of $50 is typical. Remember there probably will be a charge for the use of a church, hiring of an organist and soloist.

Nearly 30 per cent of all marriages today are remarriages. But, the number of remarriages isn't all that's growing, says Bride's magazine. So is the spirit of celebration.

Some of Bride's suggestions for a re-marrying couple:

- * As the bride, be just a little bit selfish at this time. Wear an engagement ring. Indulge in a beauty day at the salon — complete with lavish haircare, facial and manicure. You deserve it all!

- * Feel free to marry in the outfit of your choice. The traditionally simple, cream-colored suit is still lovely — but so is a romantically long and lacy gown, in white or your favorite color. The only accessory best omitted, suggests Bride's, is the veil — long a symbol of youth.

- * If either of you has children, try to include them in as many plans as you can. If children will be part of your marriage, why not make them part of your wedding? They'll feel especially important playing a role in your ceremony.

- * Make your reception as extravagant a party as you wish, complete with all the wedding traditions — receiving line, the "first dance," the ceremonial cutting of the cake, and a champagne toast. A warm way to welcome guests is to head up the receiving line yourselves, rather than leaving it up to your parents.

- * Don't feel a honeymoon isn't necessary "this time around." Getting married is tiring, even if you've been through it before. How to fit in some rest and relaxation around children? If possible, plan a trip just for the two of you first, then a "group honeymoon" so you'll all feel like a family.

Photos the one thing that lasts

A wedding is an act of love, a joining of families, a celebration.

But once the cake is eaten and the bouquet thrown, what's left of this special day? Your photographs.

Since the photographs are the one thing from your wedding day to have lasting emotional value, all the more reason to contract a professional photographer who has the experience, technical expertise, versatility and imagination to tell your wedding story in photographs.

Here are some suggestions to help you select the right photographer:

- * Begin your search early, particularly if you are getting married in June, July, August or September.

- * Interview a variety of photographers before making your final decision. Select a photographer whose style suits the images you'd like to capture.

* Carefully review your photography needs and budget after selecting a photographer.

Your photographer should also be willing to discuss various components of the bridal portrait such as hairstyle and makeup, which reflect your true image. It's a good idea not to change your hairstyle or color for your portrait sitting.

* The location is also an important component of your portraits. Professional photographers can suggest an attractive park location as an alternative to the more traditional church wedding.

* Once the poses are selected, consider the number and size of the prints you need.

Remember that your wedding photographs are also suitable for gift-giving as an album for your parents, personal thank-you notes, gifts and holiday cards. And wedding portraits can also be enlarged and framed, adding personal elegance to your home.

The wedding party

The wedding party originally served the serious purpose of protecting the bride and groom from the curses of evil-wishers.

They dressed in clothes exactly like those of the bride and groom, so the identity of the happy couple was kept secret on the way to the church and until they were safely married.

No hard or fast rules about planning the wedding, honeymoon budgets

There was a time when the roles in wedding ceremonies were fairly well defined.

The bride assumed most of the responsibility for planning the event and her parents picked up most of the tab; the groom and his parents paid for the honeymoon and certain incidentals such as the marriage licence and clergyman's honorarium.

Today, these lines of distinction about who pays for what have begun to fade. In fact, there are no hard and fast rules anymore.

The following is a breakdown of who traditionally pays for what — but remember, there are no longer any strict divisions of responsibility.

The groom and his family pay for...

- * Engagement and wedding rings.
- * Purchase or rental of groom's wedding attire and accessories.

* Groom's doctor visit and medical tests.

* Marriage licence.

* Boutonnieres for the groom, best man and ushers.

* Bridal bouquet and going-away corsage.

* (Optional) Corsages for members of the bride and groom's families.

* Clergyman's fee or honorarium.

* The honeymoon.

* The bride and her family pay for...

* Groom's wedding ring.

* Wedding dress and accessories.

* Bride's doctor visit and medical tests.

* Invitations and announcements.

* Wedding photographs and video.

* Gifts for bridesmaids.

* Rental of awning, tents or carpet for aisle.

* All reception expenses including space rental, catering, food, refreshments (In some locales and within certain ethnic groups, the groom is expected to pay for alcoholic beverages), wedding cake and favors.

* Fees for services by sexton, organist or choir.

* Music for church and reception.

* Transportation from bride's home to wedding ceremony and reception.

The Black Gold Inn offers a special banquet room to celebrate a wedding and all the trimmings for a perfect dinner.

Parents often hold party for couple

The parents of the bride-to-be often celebrate the official announcement with a party for the couple. (If this is not possible, a close relative may host it; if your parents live a great distance away, the groom's parents may do this, if they wish.)

It is absolutely essential the bride and her fiancé be in attendance. If this is not possible, the party must wait.

The engagement party is usually a simple cocktail party, but can be a dinner or even a summer barbecue.

The engagement is officially announced during the party. Informally printed or handwritten invitations should read: first line — your parents' name (or his, if they are hosts); second line — your name (or his); third line — "to meet Thomas Johnson" (or Jane Jones). Telephone invitations are also correct.

Honeymoons a time for romance

Finally, the whirlwind of the wedding is over and it's time to relax and revel in your romance.

In '89, travel agents tell us that: "honeymoon planners are looking around more, desiring more of a vacation for less, and spending $2,000-$3,000 on an average for comfortable accommodations, or $1,500 and up for a one-week stay."

To assure your honeymoon is trouble free, local travel agents provided some tips:

"If budget is a concern, go for a package deal."

"Pick a spot where you don't have to deal with language barriers. Deal with a travel agent who has travelled to the destination you have in mind."

"Research your destination to avoid disappointment, pick a spot where you'll be comfortable. Don't go for an extremely unusual location unless you're prepared."

Most local travel agents agree the top three destinations are popular favorites:

- 1) Hawaii: "old favorite."
- 2) California: "often driven to by car."
- 3) Mexico: "know where you can eat and drink, be aware of language barriers."

The remaining top destinations vary depending on personal taste and financial situation:

- 4) Canadian National Parks, Okanagan: "places you can drive to, good value with Canadian dollar."
- 5) Cruises: "to the Caribbean, or the Orient" (double the cost of Hawaii).
- 6) Bermuda, Florida
- 7) Australia and New Zealand: "unspoiled, picturesque."

The camera never blinks — be warned

* Don't shade or contour your face too much. Keep skin tone as even as possible. The camera's eye is very discerning.
* If you're using iridescent shadows don't use gloss. Keep lip color matte.

* For emotional brides apt to cry, don't use mascara on lower lashes. Just rim lid with pencil for added emphasis, or use waterproof mascara.

* Use a dry sponge to remove tear lines by smudging over area and blending. Then repowder.

* Freshen up between the ceremony and reception with translucent pressed powder that matches your skin tone.

* If pictures are being taken outdoors, avoid direct overhead sunlight which will make you look harsh. Shade is best for softening face and to keep from squinting.

* Don't radically alter your makeup. Wear your usual makeup, just slightly more intensified. Be sure the finish remains matte.

* Learn to smile with your eyes. Happy, alert eyes make photographs come alive.

* Keep your head up to make neck appear longer and to avoid the double chin appearance.

* Three-quarter angles are more flattering than head-on poses for almost everyone.

* Always keep two cotton swabs and facial on hand for quick makeup repairs.

Attendants should be ready

Maid/Matron of Honor

Before the wedding: If asked, help select attendants' dresses, assist in addressing invitations. Plan a shower or party for the couple. If attendants want to give a collective gift, make the selection with their approval.

The wedding day: Arrive early to help the bride dress and finish packing. During the ceremony, hold the groom's ring, bride's bouquet, adjust her veil and train, and sign the marriage licence. Stand next to the groom in receiving line, mingle at the reception, and offer a toast to the couple. Finally, help the bride change into her going-away outfit.

Bridesmaids

Before the wedding: Offer to do errands for the bride and help address invitations. Pay for attire and attend fittings. Participate in the couple's shower or party.

The wedding day: Be charming in the receiving line and circulate during the reception.

The best man

Before the wedding: Make arrangements for the bachelor dinner and select his gift. Confirm honeymoon travel arrangements. Provide transportation for the groom to the ceremony and from the reception.

The wedding day: Arrive early to help the groom dress and finish packing. Have car packed for the couple's getaway. Sign marriage licence. Hold the clergy's fee and bride's ring. At the reception offer the first toast, dance with the bride and the women in the wedding party, and read telegrams.

Ushers

Before the wedding: Offer the groom assistance, get fitted for the formal wear, help with the bachelor party, and study the reserved seating list.

The wedding day: Escort guests to their seats — left side for the bride, right side for the groom. Dance with the bridesmaids at the reception.

Jewelry considered universal symbol of love for centuries

Say it with jewelry: Today's couples still express their sentiments with jewelry...the universal symbol of love.

When did it all begin? Before written history. Yet some of the traditions and folklore that existed before man could read or write have endured through the centuries.

Symbolic gemstones

There are legendary colors and gemstones for every month and for every year of marriage. There's added enjoyment by knowing some of the folklore behind your precious choice.

A few examples:

The green emerald signifies growing love. In addition, it was said to strengthen the memory and to help its owner become an eloquent speaker. It was also thought to give the power to predict the future and to make people more intelligent and honest.

The amethyst symbolized protection, peace, tranquility, piety, spiritual wisdom, humility, sincerity and contentment. It was also said to protect a person against intoxication, to improve the complexion and to prevent baldness. A dream of amethyst meant the dreamer was safe from harm.

The aquamarine, in its shades of blue, comes from the Greek word for sea water and is therefore the gemstone of sailors, possessing the calming effects of the sea, and aids those who travel by water. It was also thought to establish happy marriages. Should harmony flee, it would help reconcile the partners' differences.

The red ruby signified peace and health. Never make faces at a ruby or ignore one, because it will grow dull if slighted or not worn or seen.

Marriage partners used to put great faith in a sapphire, which signified fidelity because, if its luster dimmed, one knew that his or her spouse had been unfaithful.

The topaz was said to improve dimness of vision and the peridot was used as a remedy for sinus problems.

The ever-popular diamond has a long history of folklore and tradition. It was considered a bearer of victory and an emblem of fearlessness and invincibility; it was said to drive away ghosts if worn on the left arm. It was reputed a protection against poison and a bringer of good fortune. It was even said it could make the wearer invisible!

Don't wait until last minute

"The biggest mistake a bride can make is to wait until the last minute to decide on her wedding day hairdo and then end up with a style radically different from her everyday look," says New York hairstylist Charles Nicholas.

"For instance, if a girl has straight bangs and hair all one length, she shouldn't suddenly have a mass of curls on her wedding day. People won't recognize her. It's more important to be yourself rather than an actress wearing a wedding gown."

The veil is an important factor when choosing a wedding day hairstyle. "The hair should never interrupt the delicate flow of the veil," says Nicholas.

"Also important is the height of the groom. We don't want a hairstyle and headpiece that makes a bride taller than the groom."

To prevent your veil or headpiece from falling out of place, try this trick from Nicholas: make an old-fashioned pineapple with a small lock of hair where you're going to attach the ornament. Cross two hairpins to hold the curl in place. Then tuck the veil or headpiece's supportive comb inside the curl which acts as an anchor.

Bill support your headpiece throughout the day, leaving you free to dance the night away!

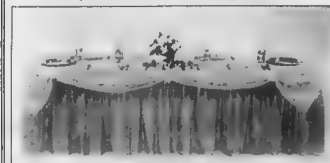

Thank you

The Western Review would like to extend a word of thanks to three couples who've shared their lives with the newspaper and its readers.

Bill and Jean Huska, your 60-year marriage reminds us of a commitment often forgotten in this strange time. Barry and Lois Pankevice, your happiness after 25 years assures young couples that wedding vows are in fact sacred. And to Ed Degen and Millie Jones, whose special day is yet to be, we thank you for the reminder that young love holds no bounds.

You have made our special salute to weddings complete and we wish you the very best.

Wedding flowers — an expression of the giver

From the bride and her attendants, to the church, to the reception, flowers play an important role in shaping the beauty of wedding day activities.

Your florist can help you select flowers that will best express the style, colors and theme of your wedding.

Many different floral combinations can be used to interpret three main styles: traditional (or old-fashioned, classic), contemporary (sophisticated, dramatic) or natural (casual, country or garden style).

There are three basic wedding bouquet shapes, which may be adapted to fit many floral combinations to match wedding style.

The first, and probably the best known, is the "showers or cascade bouquet" which falls gracefully from the point where it is held.

Round bouquets or "poseys," feature rosettes of flowers grouped closely together around a central bloom.

And lastly, there are tied bunches of flowers with the stems left intact, called "loose" or "tied" bouquets.

Flowers for people

Besides your bouquet, you'll want to consider those of the wedding party. Traditionally, bridesmaids and other attendants carry the same shape bouquet as the bride, with similar floral content. The attendants' dresses, however, will influence your color scheme.

It's important to select flowers that complement or contrast, not match, your attendants' colors.

A rose or carnation, accented with a touch of baby's breath, is a customary choice when selecting groom and usher boutonnières.

The groom's should be slightly different — give him a white rose, for example, if the rest of the men are wearing white carnations. You may also consider selecting a flower from your bouquet as the groom's boutonniere.

Mothers of the bride and groom usually prefer the traditional wrist and shoulder corsages and flowers on the purse.

Flowers for the ceremony

Applying the style and colors you've chosen to the ceremonial flowers is simple if you visit your florist prepared.

First, find out if your ceremony location has any restrictions regarding arrangements. Your florist will make decisions accordingly.

At the ceremony, flowers are appropriate for the altar, canopy, pews or rows of chairs, as well as the entranceways. For a special touch, have a flower girl hand out loose flowers to guests as they go into the ceremony.

Flowers for the reception

Regardless of the type of reception you're planning, flowers make a dramatic impact and help set the mood for the event. Flowers can add elegance to a sit-down dinner or romance to a summer garden party.

The head table and guest tables can be decorated with single flowers, loose greens, floral centrepieces or even with blooming plants. Punch bowls and even the cake can also be decorated with flowers in the color scheme you select.

Your florist is a wedding professional who can offer expert advice and suggestions to help you select the flowers that best fit your own personal style.

✓ Your wedding check list

✓ 6 to 12 Months beforehand

- Determine your budget and the kind of wedding (informal, formal, etc.); decide where the ceremony will be.
- Visit your clergy with your fiancé. Select a service and set the date.
- Plan a reception.
- Choose your attendants.
- Draw up your invitation list; have your fiancé draw up his.
- Select your dress, veil, accessories and bridesmaids' dresses. Consult a men's formalwear specialist with your fiancé.
- Select the photographer and florist.
- Plan your wedding reception music.

✓ 4 Months beforehand

- Order your invitations, personal stationery and notepaper.
- Plan your honeymoon.
- Shop for your trousseau.
- Have mothers choose their dresses.
- Visit your doctor for a complete physical examination, set date for blood test and check on a rubella immunization.
- Look for a place to live.
- Shop for home furnishings.

✓ 2 Months beforehand

- Address wedding invitations.
- Choose gifts for your attendants.
- Buy wedding ring; order engraving.
- Make a date with your fiancé to get the marriage licence.
- Plan recording and display of gifts.

✓ 1 Month beforehand

- Have your hair styled as you will wear it at the wedding.
- Attend parties in your honor.
- Have final fittings on your dress and bridesmaids' dresses.
- Arrange for your rehearsal dinner (if you plan to have one).
- Plan accommodations for your out-of-town guests.
- Plan to handle traffic, parking.
- Mail your invitations.
- Have formal wedding portrait taken.
- Plan bridesmaids' luncheon.
- Make a household "check" for home furnishings that are still needed.
- Buy wedding gift for your groom.

✓ 2 Weeks beforehand

- Record each gift as received and write a thank-you note promptly.
- Send your wedding announcement to the newspaper.
- Draw up a seating plan for reception; make cards for bride's table.
- Go over your personal trousseau for last-minute needs.
- If you plan to change your name, arrange to do so on Social Security, driver's licence, credit cards, bank accounts, etc.
- Arrange to move all of your belongings to your new home.

✓ 1 Week beforehand

- Have final consultation with caterer, florist and photographer.
- Give bridesmaids' luncheon.
- Confirm rehearsal plans with clergy and attendants.

Confetti throwing old fertility rite

The throwing of confetti comes to us from an ancient fertility rite.

Confetti is a recent substitute for rice. Rice is a prolific crop, and it was hoped that by throwing rice at the couple, they would also be fertile and bountiful. In some areas, kernels of corn or ears of wheat were used to accomplish the same thing.

Bridal gowns reflect personal preferences

Lavish formal dinner — or intimate brunch?
Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" — or John Denver's "Perhaps Love?"

Traditional gown — or trendy attire?

When it comes to weddings, it's the personal choices that make the day a memorable one.

The options are endless, especially in bridal attire. A bride may choose to wear anything that makes her feel special. Styles today reflect the wide age span of brides and the diversity of their taste.

The bride may be 18 or 38, into ruffles or ultra-sophisticated, attended by one relative or surrounded by an entourage of friends.

She may wear traditional white, flattering ivory — or be just as beautiful in soft pink. The gown may be any length, from calf-grazing to trailing a train that goes to all lengths to impress.

For understated elegance she may choose to be married in a gown of luxurious silk satin, simply embellished with pearls on the bodice and sleeves, and grandly bowed in back above the train.

For all-out glamor she may choose a gown with extravagant dolman sleeves and a slim, slithering skirt with a high-low hemline.

The ingenious bride — or one who wants to look the part — can select a gown with puffed sleeves, tiny waist and swirling skirt with elaborate train.

Whatever style gown the bride chooses, she can be sure she will make a personal statement and cherish the uniqueness of her special day.

Choosing a tuxedo not a tough ordeal

For many men, the grand occasion of their wedding is the first time they've ever worn a tuxedo.

Not to worry—choosing and being fitted for formal wear isn't at all the ordeal you might imagine.

There's nothing quite so spectacular as a formal or semiformal wedding. The right tux will guarantee you'll look your handsome best, the perfect complement to your beautiful bride.

You will probably, like most men, choose to rent rather than buy your tuxedo—as will your groomsmen. Find a specialist who can handle all your needs; the best do far more than rent a tuxedo and accessories. They also offer the advice and assistance that ensures you and your groomsmen the perfect style, fit and comfort.

* Select a specialist that carries nationally known labels. Knockoffs and offbeat imitations abound and, after several rentals, these inferior quality items look rented.

* Keep in mind there's absolutely nothing wrong with selecting an older, more traditional style. Simply make sure the tux is in good condition and doesn't command the same price as something new.

It's best to fit your entire wedding party from one local supplier. If a member of the wedding party is coming from out of town, it is not advised that he bring his formal wear with him. Your local supplier can more efficiently handle any last-minute emergencies. It is relatively simple to match a coat and trousers from different stores. But even on a standard outfit, the shade of the shirt may vary. Using a local supplier takes the pressure off your wedding party and ensures all your formal wear will be precisely what you ordered and of one style and color.

Even traditional choices, however, have many variations that can add a personal touch to basic attire:

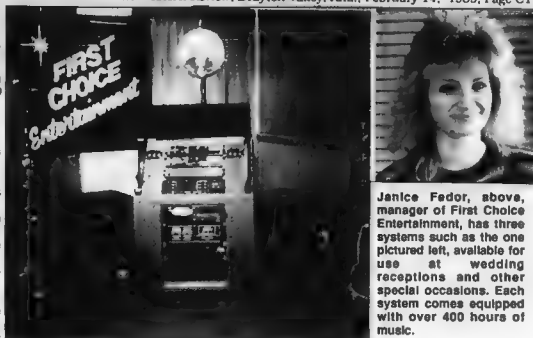

Tuxedo: The variety of tuxedos available for rental include double- and single-breasted styles.

There are a number of touches that can distinguish the lapel, collar and pocket treatments. Tuxedos may have peaked or notched lapels, with flap pockets or flapless, satin-trimmed besom pockets. Shawl collars have made a fashion comeback in recent years and create a classic tuxedo look.

Cutaway: Also referred to as "morning attire" and worn for a formal daytime wedding, this black or charcoal gray tailcoat is worn with coordinating hickory-striped trousers, a pearl gray vest, white wing collar shirt and a striped or checked ascot tie.

Traditionally, the standard length charcoal gray Stroller coat is worn for a semiformal wedding. Recently, however, the cutaway has been worn by the groomsmen or ushers to distinguish the groom from the rest of the wedding party.

Remember: "Wedding Party" means primary participants, not guests.

Janice Fedor, above, manager of First Choice Entertainment, has three systems such as the one pictured left, available for use at wedding receptions and other special occasions. Each system comes equipped with over 400 hours of music.

Bachelor parties existed since time of old Sparta

The custom of celebrating the groom's passage from singlehood into married life, commonly called the bachelor or stag party, is thought to have originated in ancient Sparta.

The bridegroom entertained his friends at a last supper called the "men's mess," which was usually held on the night before the wedding.

Symbolic significance

The bachelor party is, in every sense of the word, meant to be a celebration — a celebration among old friends of a new beginning, a right of passage into married life which is meant to solidify male relationships in much the same way as the shower or bridesmaids' luncheon serves as a bonding process among women.

Your bachelor party is...

— A rite of passage from your past as a single adult to your future as a married man.

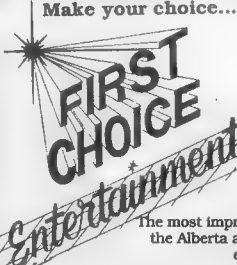

— An opportunity to share with the significant men in your life all the excitement and happiness that accompanies getting married.

— An occasion to relax and unwind after most of the preparatory work has been completed and before the actual ceremony begins.

— An ideal time to distribute thank-you gifts to the best man and ushers.

A time to display your loyalty and affection by toasting the bride in the presence of your friends.

Tom McGee, owner of McGee's Men's Wear, displays some of the items available for men on that big day. He says suits rented for the occasion arrive the Monday before the wedding. Only garments of the finest quality are used. McGee stresses that any last-minute alterations can be completed at the store.

You spill red wine on your dress. Everything imaginable can go wrong with clothes — zippers stick, wrinkles appear, veils tear, buttons fall off. Ask your salon owner beforehand of what fabric your dress is made, and for tips on how to repair it in an emergency. Then, pack a "just-in-case" kit with needle and thread, spot remover, glue, safety pins, tape, a travel steamer. In a pinch, move flowers to hid the spot or tear.

Mayr says Cornerstone has a wide selection of jewelry items available for those seeking to make an upcoming wedding a more than memorable experience.

Sales clerk Dorothy MacKenzie Alonso looks over the many fine fabrics at Mary's House of Fabrics that would turn a wedding gown or bridesmaid's pattern into a piece of art.

Sculpt your look

For your wedding day, choose and apply your makeup with extra care.

Try for the overall effect of a romantic, sculpted look — high cheekbones against softly hollowed cheeks and full, sensuous lips.

Choose a base that is slightly lighter than your skin tone as perspiration and oils will cause it to darken as the wedding day goes on, and always blend into the hairline onto the neck.

Next, use a darker blush for shadowing and a lighter color on your cheeks to bring out and brighten your eyes, the expressive focal point of your face, especially for photography.

Avoid harsh or vivid colors on the wedding day.

A light dusting of loose powder over your entire face will provide an even matte look that will eliminate shininess in photographs.

Lastly, pat your face very lightly with a dampened sponge or cotton ball — your makeup will look more natural and stay fresh longer.

Honeymoon

The honeymoon began, when, in ancient marriages by capture, the groom kept his bride in hiding to prevent searching relatives from finding her.

The word itself comes from the early Teutonic custom of couples drinking an aphrodisiacal honey drink for 30 days, or one cycle of the moon.

The best man forgets the ring. Or, it gets stuck on his finger. Or, it falls off the ring bearer's cushion and rolls out of sight. Generally, the best man should keep the ring in his pocket, not on his finger.

Secure the ring on the ring bearer's pillow with a ribbon — or use a fake just for the effect. If your ring really is temporarily out of commission, borrow a ring from an attendant or parent, and carry on.

Advanced planning needed for disabled

When a wedding includes someone with a disability — whether a groom with a broken arm, a guest with a hearing or sight loss, or an older relative who uses a wheelchair — thoughtful advance planning can ensure that person's full participation and enjoyment. It's a commonplace consideration now, with disabled Canadians numbering in the thousands.

* Allow extra time for clothing. A bride should plan on six months, a groom or usher, three months, for altering a garment or adding special features. A looser neckline, wider pant leg or extra room in the shoulder will enhance movement.

Practical approach
The person being fitted should model the clothing as it will be worn — standing on crutches, sitting in a wheelchair — to determine if the fit is comfortable, the style attractive.

* Plan time for rehearsing. Everyone needs time to get used to new places, unusual clothing. A bride wearing a leg brace should practice walking in a wedding dress; a blind bridesmaid will want to become familiar with the sanctuary aisle; an usher, who will be guiding a guest in a wheelchair should learn how to assist properly.

* Make it possible for disabled guests to participate. Couples should inquire about features that already exist at the ceremony site, such as earphones for people with a hearing loss, removable pews for wheelchair seating.

For the hearing-impaired

Printed pages, added to the wedding program of a person with a hearing loss, can give the complete text of the homily, vows, prayers. If a signing interpreter is used, he or she should stand where those who will benefit can

■ Be sure all sites are accessible. Though nowadays many public places are prepared to aid patrons, check for rest room grab bars, entry ramps, low-level or Braille elevator control buttons.

A wide aisle is important if the bride's father uses a wheelchair and plans to escort her down the aisle. A lower cake table is needed if a bride or groom is cutting the cake from wheelchair height.

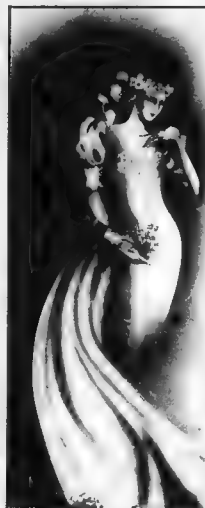

A travel agent can help a honeymooning couple when one is disabled, by making advance inquiries about barrier-free restaurants, transportation, tours.

Be sensitive to individual differences. People with disabilities react individually to situations. One person may love being photographed; another may feel uncomfortable. One bride might decorate her crutches by lacing them with ribbons; another might prefer to stand alone whenever possible.

Nothing more special than traditional toast

Whether your wedding reception will bring five or 500 guests together, there's no moment more special than the traditional wedding toast.

But precisely when you make the toast is really up to you. And the options abound. Four perfect times are suggested:

— The first is just as people come off the reception line.

— Hand each guest a glass once he/she has finished congratulating everyone, and glasses may be raised once the last person is through.

— Second, and generally the most popular time, is after everyone has been seated but before the entree is served.

— A third opportunity to toast is after the main course.

— Fourth, after the wedding cake is served.

Celebrate together

In times of need, may you find comfort in each other. In times of joy, may you celebrate together.

May you enjoy your work as much as your vacations; may you learn from your failures as well as your successes; and may you love each other always with loyalty, trust and joy.

It is my pleasure to announce an exciting merger that has resulted in the new company, (last name) and (last name). To the joint chief executive officers, we say this: It is our hope that your long-range goals will come to fruition, your profit and loss ledgers will stay in the black, and that, as entrepreneurs in the market of love, you will find success.

May you laugh together, learn together, love together — today and for all your tomorrows.

We wish for you a faithful friendship and a steadfast love.

May your life together be meaningful and your love everlasting.

May the home you create be a haven of peace so that you always return eagerly to share your news and your love, with each other.

To the mother of the groom

Look back. He is no stranger,
This tall son

Who stands before you, eyes
Upon his bride,

Remember all the growing
Years that one

Strip act in dressing room leads to team suspension

A stripper in the dressing room has resulted in a three-month suspension for a Drayton Valley commercial/recreation hockey league team.

Thirteen members of the 'Black' team have been suspended by the town.

According to recreation director Paul Nielsen the stripper hadn't started her act. Only the music had been turned up when the RCMP entered the dressing room at the sports centre.

"We're trying to address the problem. Hopefully this will serve notice to others," Nielsen says.

The suspension has also been endorsed by the commercial/recreation hockey league.

It wasn't the first time RCMP had visited the sports centre prior to and during league games.

They had been called by staff to check out reports of liquor in the building.

Oilfield service companies report labor shortage

By Bellinda Atkinson
Local oilfield service companies are faced with a labor shortage despite record-low activity in the oil patch.

Employers say qualified workers are hard to find and harder to keep, even though Alberta's rig activity has declined 41 per cent in the last year.

"It's a lot more difficult to get workers than it was eight months ago," said Wayne Warden, owner of Warden Well Servicing.

Company spokesmen say workers are looking outside the industry for job stability rather than gambling on a further decline in activity and possible unemployment.

"The mill has scooped up a lot of good, serviceable men," said Garry Gohart, owner of Garry's Oilfield Services.

"The only thing they're looking for is security. They're not all that concerned with how much they make," he said.

Pelican Spruce Mills manager Bob Olsen estimates 25 to 50 per cent of his employees have worked in the oilfield.

He guesses job stability is a contributing factor but says this is not the only reason for leaving the oil industry.

"There's a combination of many things. They want stability but many are also not wanting to be outdoors all winter long," he said.

According to reports, the province's oil industry is experiencing the 'bleakest season in a decade.' Labor shortages have affected both service and oil-well drilling.

"If there's only a minimum amount of work to get by on then that makes it hard to keep men around," Bogart said.

Bogart said he has managed to retain 80-per cent of his men by sacrificing profits to offer a higher wage.

"If you're not paying well you are going to have turnover," he said. "Some people say you can save money by paying a cheaper wage but that's not true."

However, many companies that cannot afford the higher wages are forced to watch qualified employees walk out the door.

Schwab said his company pays a guaranteed wage regardless of work but this is a "paltry sum" compared to what can be earned.

"I'm lucky I've advanced," he said. "If drivers want to advance they've got to wait for someone to die or to be killed."

"I'm watching my back as things slow down," he said.

Care bear

Darlene Dahl, 7, and sister Darolyn, 9, (right) are among the many who came out to Sekura Auctions Feb. 18 to support the Behr's annual fund-raising auction. Bruce Nichols, executive director of the association for the developmentally handicapped, estimates $9,700 was raised toward their building fund.

Acid spill causes mess

A delivery truck travelling to Nowco Well Service on Industrial Road spilled acid onto the street last Wednesday.

Assistant manager of Nowco, Hal Meek, said there was no danger from the spill.

"It was more of a mess than anything," Meek confirmed, adding that the acid was neutralized before it left the truck.

The acid was contained in a retaining wall of the truck where soda ash and water were mixed with it before it spilled out of the overflow line.

About 450 litres of the neutralized acid poured on to the street.

Meek said the acid was not harmful to vehicle tires passing over the area.

Nowco scraped the ice and snow off the road and hauled it away Feb. 16.

Highway plans met with mixed reaction

By Frank Ryan

The provincial government's $5-million plans for the Lodgepole Highway met with mixed reaction at a public meeting last Wednesday night.

Sixty people attended an hour-long meeting in the Violet Grove hall.

Joe Schlaut, district transportation engineer with Alberta Transportation was in attendance to explain what the government has planned.

The work to be done this summer includes paving the 18-kilometre section from Lodgepole to the Elk River Road corner.

A climbing lane will start approximately 600 yards west of the Violet Grove Store and proceed over the crest of the hill and two-thirds around the bend.

And, it's the province's plan to patch the wheel ruts covering 10 or 11 kilometres and will start at the junction of highways 22 and 600 and go just beyond Violet Grove.

MLA Shirley Cripps, who wasn't in attendance at the meeting, says the highway between Lodgepole and the Elk River Road corner will include shoulders.

"The existing road is 25-feet wide and the new section will be 31 feet," the MLA told The Western Review.

"I presume it will be the same as the Cynthia Highway," she added.

A lot of concerns were expressed at the meeting over the lack of shoulders on the existing route.

"There's no room for error. There's no place to go," said one lady.

Another lady said she was frightened by the logging trucks on the highway.

Owens meets with Clark

Yellowhead MP Joe Clark and Al Owen, former owner of Pelican Spruce Mills met last week.

Owen, representing Weyerhaeuser Canada, met with Clark in Ottawa last Tuesday and again on Friday in Edmonton.

During their hour-long meeting Tuesday they discussed some issues with the free trade agreement.

On Friday, Owen was one of 30 Albertans who met with Clark to discuss the future of Alberta and the West.

During his visit to Drayton Valley last Saturday to participate in the sod turning ceremony at the Shangri La Lodge, Clark met with MLA Shirley Cripps.

Joe Schlaut, left, explains highway changes to concerned residents.

Other concerns included two bad corners just east of Pembina Packers, the lack of proper school bus signs, the absence of guard rails on a number of corners and the increased truck traffic along the route.

Henry Rondeau, reeve for the municipal district of Brazeau was glad to hear the Lodgepole/Elk River Road section would be wider than the existing highway. "It would be nice to have a little bit more," he stated at the meeting.

Grant Monseur, president of the Drayton Valley Chamber of Commerce suggested restricted load limits and speed.

Dan Davis, who chaired the meeting told the packed hall the increased truck traffic, speeds and width of the highway were the main issues.

Rondeau says he will meet with the minister of transportation after the anticipated provincial election to see what other improvements can be made.

There was also some talk at the Violet Grove meeting about inviting Transportation Minister Al Adair out to a meeting.

Tom Thurber, the new PC candidate in the Drayton Valley constituency, also attended the meeting.

Thurber says he's ready for impending election

By Belinda Atkinson

Progressive Conservative candidate Tom Thurber said last week he'll be ready when Premier Don Getty calls an election.

"I'm prepared, I'll be ready any time," said the recently elected PC candidate for the Drayton Valley constituency.

Thurber admitted he has no inside information but estimates the election will go ahead in "early April." In the meantime, he will select a campaign committee and make final preparations.

While Don Getty has gone under fire recently for wanting to call an election before filling Alberta's empty Senate seat, Thurber said he would not want to dispute the premier's methods.

"I'm totally in favor of an elected Senate but whether this process should be followed, I don't know," Thurber said of a report "hinting" of an election before Senate legislation becomes law.

"I really couldn't comment on that. I don't know the ins and outs of the Senate problem but with senators in their 80's, are they able to do their jobs?"

On local issues, Thurber said he wanted to clarify that his intention to upgrade the Lodgepole road would include the Violet Grove area.

"That really needs upgrading," he said.

Thurber said he could not estimate the cost or whether funding would be available but said the road would be a top priority if elected.

Private school board trustees re-evaluate closure policy

The blizzard that hit Drayton Valley in the early days of February has caused the Catholic School Board to re-think its school closure policy.

At the regular meeting Feb. 16, trustees agreed to look at the closure policy and may change it to read that staff members will be required to show up at school when it is closed, due to inclement weather.

As well, it was decided to only pay hourly employees of St. Anthony's for the Jan. 30 closure and not for the other two days that same week.

Opinions

System responsible for poor turnout?

It's apparent from the numbers that people in this area don't have a high regard for politics.

Attendance at many of the public forums, called to introduce the four candidates vying for the PC nod, were poorly attended.

Tom Thurber, the winner, only attracted a handful in Drayton Valley. Fifteen attended a forum in Warburg, six turned out in Thorsby and three at Buck Lake.

Although 795 turned out for the nomination meeting held in Drayton Valley. It has been estimated, as a result of a nose count, that only 75 of those were from the host town.

The best turnout for a political meeting in recent years, was at the PC nomination three years ago. That night 1,410 were eligible to cast their votes.

Since then, voter turnout for municipal district, federal and Twin Rivers school elections has been horrible.

The people to blame are the eligible voters. But, maybe it's the system.

Town council, the municipal district and the new Twin Rivers school division all hold their monthly meetings during the day. For the average person, it's next to impossible to get away during working hours to sit in on any one of these meetings. In the past, the MLA has held a series of public meetings throughout the constituency, often during the working day.

In an attempt to get the people more involved, maybe town council, the MD, Twin Rivers school board and the MLA could hold public meetings in the evening, at least three or four times a year.

It might not be the answer, but it would at least open the door for more public involvement. Something that is definitely lacking now.

Chamber should push Hwy 22 instead of Howse Pass

There have been a lot of things happening lately.

Here are some of those items and my comments.

RNA program - It will be very unfortunate if this course is lost to Rocky Mountain House. Once you lose something, it's nearly impossible to get back.

Howse Pass - Instead of the local chamber adding their weight to this national issue, why don't we promote Highway 22. The Howse Pass won't do Drayton Valley any good if travellers don't know where 22 is.

Tom Thurber - Congratulations on winning the PC nomination.

Grant Monsour - While it may be disappointing that you lost to Tom Thurber

Frankly Speaking

By Frank Ryan

by seven votes, you are to be commended for your effort.

Snow clearing - It appears that our street was the last one to be cleaned after that January blizzard. Was it something I said?

Supermallboxes - Despite what Canada Post says, many of the boxes around town seem to be missing a leg. By the way, Canada Post says that is the way they were designed.

Lyn Oberle - Thanks for volunteering your time to coach the midget Clippers. One has to wonder where all the coaches are, considering you drove in from Breton most of the season.

Jaime Gilbert - Keep the support rolling in.

Pelican steering committee - This committee is about three years late. Was the committee formed just because there is a municipal election this year?

Norm Moore - It's rather ironic that this Alder Flats area auctioneer nominated Shirley Cripps in '86 and Tom Thurber in '89 for the PC nomination. Appears to be the right man to have on your team.

Drayton Valley residents have 'severe case of apathy'

Dear Editor,
You blew it — Drayton Valley.

On Feb. 10 the Progressive Conservative party held its nomination night to choose the next M.L.A. candidate for its party. Where were you?

This constituency has been represented by the PC party since I can remember coming to this country in 1957. This leaves the assumption you are going to be represented in your cabinet by a PC M.L.A. My hat is off to Tom Thurber of Winfield who won that nomination, as well as the people who came from that area to Drayton Valley to support him all the way from Winfield and surrounding areas.

Tom received, on the third and final ballot, 374 votes, beating our local candidate Grant Monsour by just seven votes. You say our vote won't count. Think about it! We, in this town, have a severe case of apathy. This single word by dictionary means "indifferent, not caring one way or the other."

But what it really means is you won't have a local voice in government. You have (one more time) someone from the farming community of Winfield to represent you for the next four or five years in your provincial government. The village of Winfield, with less than 500 people, had more support than Drayton Valley with its population of 5,000 plus.

Ashamed? You should be! Happy? You shouldn't be!

This young candidate spent mega dollars and time and was willing to take a $7,000-a-year cut in wages to represent you, but you were too busy doing something else to care enough to come out and vote for him.

You have given up your right to complain about a provincial government decision which affects you locally. You had your chance to have a say.

I probably am not going to be popular with this letter to the editor, but then I'm not running for political office so it really doesn't matter.

"If the shoe fits — wear it." Apathy is how Hitler won his nomination and we all know what he started — WWII.

Think about it Drayton Valley, it very well could happen.

If Mr. Thurber doesn't get the candidates out to support the PC nomination, that is what may happen. Don't laugh, it happened in Germany.

Get involved! It's your future Mr. Thurber is trying to protect now. Vote! It is your democratic right — so far.

Alberta vs B.C. in snow

Dear Editor,
Having just moved here to Drayton Valley this past June, I can't help but shake my head at the differences between B.C. and Alberta. The biggest and most obvious is the snow.

You people who've lived here most of your lives are probably used to this weather, but are you used to the huge mounds of snow in the middle of the roads, and in your grocery store parking lot? I've seen bunny hills smaller than some of these.

I do see graders and sand trucks out in the while, and I even had to pull over once to allow this gigantic mechanical monster, with a mouth like Jaw's, gobble up a snow trail in an alley.

Where I used to live, as soon as the snow started sticking to the ground, the sand and salt trucks were out, and the graders were warming up their engines. They had their priorities: the highways and school bus routes, then the roads in town and around the seniors' group homes. City-owned snowplows and blowers cleared the driveways of the low income, handicapped, and senior citizens, at no charge.

Here, you have to pay, and if you don't have your walks clear, you may be fined. You never saw ski hills in the parking lots. The snow was scooped up and carried away and dumped where no one dared to venture.

I like Drayton Valley, and Local Air Cadets have full slate

By Wendy Carruthers
The Drayton Valley Air Cadets are having one of their best years ever.

There are about 70 students in the Air Cadets this term, up from 40 in the last term.

Commanding Officer Lorna Luchyk, who has been with the Air Cadets for 11 years, says the youths have a full range of activities through the September-to-June program.

"They cover flying subjects in theory studies and also learn leadership skills," she says.

The increase in cadets is not a surprise to Luchyk, but is a bonus to the squadron.

There has been a slight increase in the number of girls that join the Air Cadets as well this year.

Not too many youngsters have trouble with the strictness of the Air Cadets, but there are some that do, and they don't stick around.

"They seem to expect it," says Luchyk.

She adds that most kids hear about the conditions by word of mouth before joining. They may also attend a few sessions before signing up so they have a good idea of what to expect.

For some students the Air Cadets has become a way of life. Luchyk said there have been a few students who remain in the cadets from 12-years-old right up until their 19th birthday, when they have to leave because of their age.

Although she doesn't have any firm statistics, Luchyk said the ratio is high for students going into some form of military or law enforcement career.

The cadets offer flying courses, with planes and gliders; they have summer camps on military bases and survival courses.

"It's a fun, busy program," says Luchyk, analyzing the increase in registration.

Drayton Valley Air Cadets in formation.

There is no registration fee and the uniforms are supplied by the Air Cadets, another reason Luchyk feels the program is a success.

As youngsters progress through the ranks they gain invaluable leadership qualities and the respect necessary to put those qualities to good use.

The Air Cadets seems to be a very positive step in involving teens in life — a good life away from the bad influences.

B.C. has Alberta beat for cleaner streets

Alberta for that matter, and plan on staying for quite a while, and there is a question I would really like answered: why isn't there a crisis centre in this town?

According to the yellow pages in the Drayton Valley phone book, the closest centres are in Edson and Hinton, and they are not really crisis centres. One is a pregnancy crisis centre, and the other is an emergency shelter for women.

There are many other crises that are going unaccounted for, such as depression, rape, abuse, loneliness, hunger, suicide, and the list goes on. What about those people? There are people like that in this town, in any town.

I worked in a crisis centre in B.C., and it is my experience that allows me to state, that no matter how small the town is, there is always someone out there crying for help, and that one is followed by another.

Thank you for allowing me to have my say, and I look forward to a response to my question.

Rick Hansen speaks at school convention

Teachers attending the teachers convention on Feb. 9 and 10 "had a very educational time", according to Evergreen principal Chris Kelly.

"This year they felt they got more out of it than in the past," he said.

Kelly said numerous workshops were held, including computer workshops.

A special lecture that Kelly said stood out in his mind was one given by a priest from Saskatchewan.

"His theme was everyone has to have a dream and to aim high," said Kelly.

Kelly said the lecture was inspirational as well as educational.

The priest has had extensive exposure to children and was able to use this experience in translating procedures on handling children.

Another highlight of the North Central Teachers Convention was the opening by "man in motion" Rick Hansen.

Hansen himself wanted to be a physical education teacher until his accident that left him paraplegic at 15.

Hansen says he sees teachers as achievement motivators and guardians of the moral and social fibre of society because of the impact teachers make up young people.

Rick Hansen speaks at teachers convention.

Expanding on his philosophy, Hansen stated, "If you can visualize it, you can achieve it. There is nothing that a man or woman can't achieve."

Hansen issued a challenge to teachers during his opening speech, the challenge to lead the way in changing tomorrow by teaching children to understand that disabled people are people first, and by teaching children to be the best they can be.

"Teachers can make a difference," he concluded. "Just reach your personal best."

Blood donor clinic at Legion hall

A blood donor clinic will be held tomorrow (Wednesday) in Drayton Valley.

The clinic will be held between 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. in the Royal Canadian Legion hall.

The Drayton Valley chamber of commerce confirmed plans Feb. 13 to host three seminars to improve public relations in the local business community.

A Dale Carnegie introductory course Feb. 22 will kick off a 14-week self-improvement series.

According to organizer Alex Blais the weekly sessions are designed to improve confidence, public speaking, and goal attainment.

Edmonton marketing consultant Bill Bagshaw will be the guest speaker April 18 at an all-day seminar entitled Customer Service - The Greatest Corporate Edge.

According to organizer Karen Kirkwood, Bagshaw's work shop is designed to help both upper management and sales personnel deal more effectively with customers.

Mark Blume will be the guest speaker April 26 at a dinner meeting in the Legion hall.

The founder of 90 Work Warehouse Stores across Canada will discuss his success and encourage entrepreneurship, according to organizer Linda Bennett.

"The meeting is basically to promote entrepreneurship, marketing and motivation," said Bennett.

Owners reward their pets for their progress in becoming refined members of the canine community.

Teaching man's best friend not man's easiest task

By Belinda Atkinson
Who says you can't teach an old dog new tricks?

Certainly not Barry Thompson.

For the past three years Thompson has dedicated his spare time to transforming callous canines into contributing members of the community.

His job isn't easy. A big, outspoken brute like Luke isn't all that ecstatic about attending charm school (no offence, big fella).

And then there's Biscuit, the fluttering female of the 10-member gang who'd rather show off her sassy hairdo than learn how to sit properly.

Regardless of their quirks, Thompson takes all the dogs under wing for a 10-week course to redefine their role in the family structure.

No longer will Tyson jump up on Aunt Gertrude, steal Becky's ice cream cone or do that nasty little let's-get-to-know-you sniff.

From now on, Thompson promises, the dogs will be featured entertainment at family gatherings. "Look how well Astro obeys commands!" they'll say. "Sit, Astro, Sit!"

Thompson is a stern instructor. An entire reshaping of a doggy's mind doesn't come easy.

If little Theodore (Teddy) persists in dragging his feet, there will be a yank at the end of his chain.

Starting with simple foundation work — heeling exercises and sitting practice — the dogs are eased into their new lifestyles.

But with a group of 10 hyper dogs all trying to claim Thompson's workroom floor as their own territory, the owners have their work cut out for them.

And then there's the Astro learns the intricacies of sitting properly.

Businesses challenged by Lariettes' coach

"Come on, we dare you," says Lariettes coach Larry Nelson.

Nelson dares businesses to meet or beat his pledge to donate $10 for every goal his girls hockey team can score against local teachers Feb. 23 at an exhibition game.

Pledging on behalf of Nelson's Welding Inspection, Nelson is determined to raise funds for Jaime Gilbert's treatment to correct a rare brain disorder.

How determined? Nelson has skillfully given Jaime's sister Roxanne the position as back-up goalie for the opposing team.

But Nelson says given the size and strength of adult teachers, the competition will be fair.

The only problem now, according to organizer Tim Melanchuk, is selecting which teachers will play.

Melanchuk said volunteers from Evergreen alone, Jaime's school until her collapse Dec. 9, are more than enough to make up a full roster.

Champs head for city

Four Drayton Valley school students have qualified for the Knights of Columbus basketball free-throw regional finals in Edmonton.

Stephan Mallett, who attends St. Anthony's, placed first in the 10-year-old boys class at the district finals held recently in Edson.

Michael Barteski, a student at Evergreen, won the 11-year-old boys title.

Two St. Anthony students, Jennifer Edwards and Roxanne Schiller, who placed second, have also qualified for the regional free-throw. Edwards was runner-up in the 12-year-old girls division and Schiller came second in the 13-year-old girls category.

Jason Nelson, Janel Nail and Curtis Boos, all from St. A., placed third at the district championships along with Shari Gilbert of Evergreen. If any of the first or second place finishers can't make the trip to the regionals, they will be eligible to fill the vacancy.

Two years ago Drayton Valley was represented in the provincial free-throw championship by Sandi Smith.

absent-minded reporter who is stupid enough to leave her legs unguarded in this fiasco. I'll send my cleaning bill.

The dogs slowly work their way from the sit exercise to an automatic sit, where the owner will signal a sitting position by pausing.

Then there are the sit-stay lessons, the downs and the heel.

Owners are told to punish or praise, depending on the dog's reaction and to everyone's amazement the exercises seem to work.

Even old Luke stops washing his owner's face when asked very politely.

By the seventh week, provided there aren't any dropouts or casualties, Thompson begins examinations.

If the dogs can complete all tests and refrain from killing one another, they will graduate.

With this doggy certificate and cap bestowed upon their shaggy brows, they will always be ranked highly among four-legged beasts and be welcome at family outings.

Luke, the outspoken brute

Rajo's a bit confused.

Goalie outstanding in B final

Maureen Bannard was outstanding in goal as the Lariettes downed the Whitecourt Hot Shots 1-0 in the 'B' final at the Sanguo girls' hockey tournament held on the weekend.

Kerry Baumann got the Lariettes' lone goal.

In other games the Lariettes blanked the Mayerthorpe Rebels 4-0 with Mandy Nelson, Helen Christess, Kelly and Kerry Baumann scoring for the "on Valley squad.

In their tournament opener the Lariettes dropped a 6-3 decision to Oxford, England. Rachelle Bills, Many Nelson and Kerry Baumann notched the goals.

The Lariettes host Mayerthorpe in a 7:15 p.m. game this Sunday at the sports centre.

Braidnor Bullets victorious at atom toumey

Braidnor Bullets won the 'D' final at the Evansburg atom hockey toumey on the weekend.

Jordan Edwards scored twice as the Bullets downed the Leduc Raiders 6-5 in the final that was decided in overtime. Leigh Melnychuk, Shawn Leslie, David Lyon and Michael Thomas had singles for the Drayton Valley squad.

In other games the Bullets dropped a 7-6 double overtime loss to Sunshine Ford and lost 6-3 to Stony Plain in their first game.

Mites host tournament

The future stars of the local hockey program, the mighty mites, held a six-team toumey at the sports centre on Saturday.

In the playoff round Edson downed Mack and Mann 11-6 as Michael Babcock netted three for the losers. Ryan Henry added a pair and Gerth McKay had the single.

Two teams who had gone through the round-robin with two wins met in another playoff game. In that Devon edged Evansburg 6-4. Ryan MacMillan had two of the Evansburg goals with Ryan Woloszyn and Kenton Gernschieid adding singles.

And, in the final playoff game Mark Woyanowich scored five goals as Strike downed Blocks 10-6. Ryan Sheeler and Vawn Getzinger had two goals each for Strike with Clinton Brisebois getting the other.

Steven Yurchak had five goals for Blocks and Brent Schiller added one.

Boat show biggest ever

Boats, boats and more boats.

One of the largest selection of boats ever shown in Northern Alberta will be displayed at the 21st Annual Edmonton Boat and Sportsmen's Show.

The show, at the Northlands Agricomm, will run from March 5 through 12.

The sportsmen's show, the biggest of its kind on the Prairies, will showcase "what's new" in the popular areas of leisure, recreation and outdoor living. In addition to boats and marine products, there will be camping trailers, motorhomes, all-terrain vehicles, fishing and hunting equipment, etc.

There will be the usual complement of family-oriented entertainment and educational features.

The Edmonton show will be open to the public from 5 p.m. to 10 p.m. on the first two evenings; from noon to 10 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, and from noon to 6 p.m. on the final day, March 12.

Wes Montgomery decides on shot.

Koch captures local men's spiel

Jim Koch used the Drayton Valley men's bonspiel to get ready for the seniors' provincials.

Koch, who will be in Medicine Hat tomorrow (Wednesday) for the provincial seniors' curling, downed Wes Montgomery 6-1 in the championship game.

Koch and Montgomery, both out of Edmonton, only played five ends in their six-end match. The game was abbreviated because Montgomery had to get back to the city.

Koch, who chalked up five straight wins at the spiel and displayed some excellent shotmaking was joined in the winner's circle by Kieth Kaufman, Ron Mudryk and Ron Reed.

Meanwhile, Mike Townley of Calgary won the 'B' event with a 7-4 win over Dana Pettigrew.

Townley, who is the local golf pro in the summer, was accompanied by Tim Hamilton, Alan Rogers and Mike Board.

A draw for two in the sixth and a 5-3 lead was one of Townley's key shots in the game.

The 'C' event final only went four ends as Bruce Clemmer and his Wild Card rink of Dave Sluchinski, Ray Shapka and Earl Nixon defeated Mike Dunnigan of Commercial Bearing 8-2.

Clemmer counted a five-ender in the third en route to the win.

Playoff format changed

A new playoff structure for the 1989 season for the mosquito, beaver and bantam categories has been announced by Baseball Alberta.

The sub-zone, zone and inter-zone playoffs have been eliminated and replaced with a three-week round-robin format. The top four teams plus a host will advance to the provincial tournaments from the round-robin.

Every team entered is guaranteed three weeks of provincial playoffs, instead of possibly being eliminated the first or second week of playoffs. This will increase playoff games for all teams by at least 65-per-cent.

This new structure will ensure athletes three weeks of competitive play which will promote skills, development, competition and fun. It will also ensure the participation of the best four teams in each provincial tournament.

Baseball Alberta also announces a three-tier registration system in 1989, instead of a two-tier system, to provide more balanced competition.

The tiers are as follows: A-one to 5,000 population; AA-5,001 to 20,000 population; and AAA-20,001 and greater population.

Fuel Tenders

Bulk fuel dealers are invited to submit tenders for the supply of the following products as required during the period of April 1, 1989 to March 31, 1990.

1. Regular Gas (Leaded)
Approximately 50,000 litres to be provided from a keyed Bulk Sales Station located within the Town of Drayton Valley corporate limits.
2. Clear Diesel
Approximately 20,000 litres to be provided from a keyed Bulk Sales Station located within the Town of Drayton Valley corporate limits.

Please supply unit prices per litre.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted. Please submit sealed tenders to the Town Office at 5120 - 52 Street by 12:00 noon, March 3, 1989, clearly marked "FUEL TENDER".

Johnson wins Clippers' scoring

Len Johnson won the midjet Clippers scoring race during the regular season with 49 points.

This included 23 goals and 26 assists. Johnson started the season on defence but was moved up front for the last 10 league games.

Jason Kipling, who also played forward and defence, was just four points back with 23 goals and 22 assists.

Third place belongs to Paul Poley with 18 goals and 22

Len Johnson
helpers for 40 points.
Mike Enyedy had 16 goals and the same number of assists for 32 points. Chris Hutchinson also finished the season with 32 points based on 14 goals and 18 assists.

Cory Dusterhoft hit the 30-point mark with 13 goals and 17 assists.

Daylen Pfannmueller notched 11 goals and 17 assists for a 28-point year while Kevin Bergquist, Warren Schnieder and Ryan Ganton all had 25 points. Bergquist led the trio with 11 goals followed by Schnieder with 10 and Ganton had eight.

Adrian Aganis 23, Serge LaCoste 22, Jason Woods 19, David Hill 17, Darcy Saar 15 and goaltenders Len Adler five and Steven Foster one, rounded out the Clippers total points during the regular season.

Besides playoffs, the Clippers are entered in tournaments at Ponoka and Rocky Mountain House and will hold their own tourney March 17-19.

Ice Review scheduled for two showings

Last week's Ice Review story (page 10) incorrectly stated one show would be held March 4 from 2 p.m. - 7 p.m. There are actually two shows—one at 2 p.m. and one at 7 p.m. Each show will last about two hours.

As well, the entire Northern Lites Precision Team will be appearing, not only team member Patty Pankewicz.

Congratulations!

Jaime Gilbert, middle, visits friends at the Elks Club's Valentine's dance.

Impersonator jailed

A 28-year-old British Columbia man was sentenced Feb. 16 to three months in jail after pleading guilty to two charges of impersonation.

Silas John Ask, of Creston, had been using a false name and identification.

Kids dance for Jaime's good health

What could local children do to help raise $1,410 for Jaime Gilbert's treatment in the United States?

It's simple. Dance. Four hundred and seventy children did just that Feb. 10 at the Elks Club's annual Valentine's Day dance.

Cherie Gwin organized the event after hearing about Jaime's fight against Arterio Venous Malformation, a rare brain disorder, and the Elks Club came to her aid with the facility and a promise to pledge $3 per child in attendance.

Gwin, who admitted she's never attempted such an event before, said she was astounded by the community's support.

Even the Elks, who hold the annual Valentine's dance, were surprised, having anticipated only 300 children.

"Oh, man, we were pouring pop until it was coming out of our ears," laughed Gwin.

Gwin attributed the event's success to First Choice Entertainment, which donated the music, and eight mothers who volunteered to help out.

"I think it was a really big success," Gwin said.

Catholic school taxes change hands

Parents with students under Catholic education can now direct their taxes to support St. Anthony's school.

The Rural Catholic School Board will be holding elections in October to elect three members as representatives on the separate school board.

"We want to give people a voice in the education of their child," says Bev Duperron, official trustee of RCSB.

Duperron said that previously, children attending St. Anthony's, who lived outside of town limits had their portion of school taxes directed to the public school system.

Once the rural board is set up, parents will be able to specify whether their tax dollars will support the public or separate system — or both.

The rural board covers basically all of the MD. Duperron says, although all students within their area attend St. Anthony's.

Right now the board is still in the organizational stages, preparing to join with the separate school board. Duperron says anyone with concerns may contact her for information.

Timely tips for saving energy

You're probably aware of, and maybe even use, timers to control the lights in your home. It's great security when you're away for an evening, a weekend or on holidays. But did you know timers can save you money and make you more comfortable, especially during the cold winter months?

Indoor Savings

If your home is unoccupied during the day, use a timer on the thermostat to turn the heat down during the day, and up before you're due home. Use the same principle at night...a cool house for sleeping, but a warm house by the time your feet hit the floor in the morning.

Outdoor Savings

As a block heater only needs to be turned on three to four hours before starting the car, install a timer instead of getting up in the middle of the night. Plug in the block heater when you arrive home...and preset it to come on the next morning.

Another option is to use a power saver cord. This extension cord with a built-in thermostat supplies power to the block heater only when the engine temperature falls below a certain point. When the engine warms, power is switched off.

Automatic timers... inexpensive, easy to install and energy saving.

Consortium awarded 'largest individual project'

By John Eamon
A $300,000 plus, one-of-a-kind computer learning course has been approved for Whitecourt.

The program has been awarded to, and will be run by, the Pembina Educational Consortium (PEC).

It's to start April 1 and run for 52 weeks.

It's the largest individual project the consortium has ever been awarded," said Joe MacLellan, executive director of Pembina.

"This is a pilot project and has never been done anywhere in the province," he added.

Alberta Career Development and Employment is picking up the over $300,000 tab, he said.

The program will target "disadvantaged and chronically unemployed" people, allowing them to "participate in the economic development related to forestry," MacLellan said.

"We've known for some time there were people coming to us for academic upgrading, but they were just too low (academically) for the classes we had.

"For a few years now, we were just unable to set up something for these people."

The program will also benefit those with full-time jobs who wish to upgrade technical skills.

MacLellan said the program could run at night, training students in disciplines such as hydraulics and variable frequency drives.

A "sophisticated" computer system with 10 terminals will be set up, likely in a portable.

Instructor to student ratios will be "optimal," MacLellan said, and the computer will pace student's learning.

For disadvantaged and chronically unemployed students, literacy and math skills will be emphasized.

MacLellan estimated "at least" 50 to 75 students will register.

The financing was granted by the province last week.

In an unrelated story, PEC is considering teaming up with the Whitecourt separate and public school boards in their joint high-tech vocational and technical school.

"We certainly are interested in that," MacLellan said. "There is very serious consideration being given" to the idea.

MacLellan said PEC hasn't been invited to participate.

"We haven't sat down with them yet...we anticipate that will happen."

"It's a major program — it won't happen overnight."

Both school boards have indicated they will seek a third partner in the venture.

MacLellan said it makes good sense for PEC to join.

With the union, educational opportunities in the area wouldn't be duplicated, and better use could be made of "scarcer and scarcer tax dollars," he explained.

Government hands out three grants

Three area groups have received funding through the Community Recreation/Cultural grant program.

The Drayton Valley Minor Hockey Association has received a grant for $10,063 which will go toward the new sports centre.

The Easyford Community Centre Society was given $9,785 to help finish various capital projects at their community hall.

The third grant in the amount of $27,050 goes to the Rocky Rapids Community League toward the construction of a hockey rink and shelter.

New Farm Employment Program starts April 1st

It's good news for farmers and workers alike. Effective April 1st, 1989, the Government of Alberta will be offering a $4 million Farm Employment Fund.

This new fund will help create hundreds of jobs while giving farmers an extra hand during busy times.

Apply now before hiring

- Funding is on a first-come, first-serve basis until all funds are used up.
- Applications are being accepted from April 1, 1989 until November 30, 1989.
- Farmers are eligible to be reimbursed $2.50 per hour for a new job that pays $5.00 per hour or better. Each employer can be reimbursed a maximum of 704 hours or $1,760.00.

Call in today!

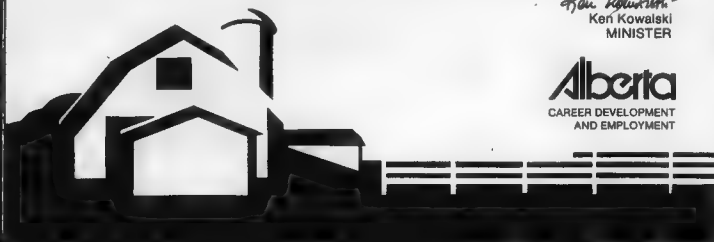

Applications and additional information are available through Alberta Career Development and Employment offices throughout the province.

Call Toll-free by dialing "0" and ask for Zenith 22078 (Edmonton calling area call 427-4740).

"The Farm Employment Program is designed to assist the farm community to meet pressing employment needs, particularly during peak work periods, to create jobs for Alberta workers, while keeping program paperwork to a minimum."

Little brother 'balances' life

By Wendy Carruthers
Sharing your time with someone who needs you can be gratifying.

"It gives me a balance in my life," says Les Sigal, Drayton Valley Big Brother.

Sigal has voluntarily had a little brother for almost a year and believes the experience has helped him and his ward.

Sigal and his wife don't have children of their own, and he deliberated over becoming a big brother for a while before deciding to take it on.

Sigal was worried about the emotional involvement of a little brother and the fact he may leave Drayton any time.

"That stopped me from getting started," he said.

But when he decided to "take it as it comes," he was glad he made that choice.

Sigal says he spends about four hours a week with Tyler, 7. They go swimming, bike riding, and he said he got his little brother involved with cross-country skiing.

"He may never have had the chance to get involved with that (skiing) otherwise," Sigal said. Tyler's father is still in the picture, living in another town.

He doesn't feel like he is replacing him at all though, he is just being an older friend who wants to spend time with him.

"He's opened up quite a bit (since the pair got together)," Sigal says.

He hopes to keep the friendship going even after the two separate later on.

"If we can keep the contact open...if not, well..." he comments.

Entertaining a young boy can be a challenge and not everyone has the patience to follow through.

"For me, it helps to keep things in perspective," says Sigal, who was seeing Tyler that night.

The Big Brother/Sister organization in Drayton Valley has grown a little since its conception.

The board has expanded to eight members and the screening and matching committee now has four trained members.

There are also three young applicants to the program who will need a friend soon.

The young girl that has applied now will not have to wait long for a big sister as there are two waiting for a special friendship.

The two boys waiting however, will have to have patience while other big brothers are sought.

Les Sigal (right) and Tyler make Halloween pumpkins.

Big Brothers/Sisters has opened up an office in Drayton Valley, #1 5219 53 Ave., 542-5909.

Martina Wollin, executive director, is in the office most Wednesdays. She invites all interested parties to call for information on helping out a youngster — and themselves.

County to apply for sewage system

By Joan Elmont

The Hamlet of Buck Lake may yet get a sewer service.

At a meeting at the Buck Lake Hall Feb. 9, representatives from the county of Wetaskiwin discussed the matter with about 20 residents of the hamlet.

A unanimous decision by those present allows the county to make application for a grant and possible other debenture financing to assist the residents' share of the cost.

Another meeting will be held in about two to three months.

Information on final costs and location should be available then.

Has anyone any ideas on how we can make the junction of Highways 13 and 22 safer? There have been several hits and even more misses (luckily) since that fateful Halloween day when the 'stop' signs were changed around. I talked with one lady who said, 'I've gone through there at least four times! We've travelled that road straight through for 40 years...and we just don't think!'

For some weird reason that intersection worries me

Cool kid...

School closures during the "cold war" didn't keep this warm-blooded tike inside. Minus-thirty temperatures just meant dressing a little warmer.

The rumble bumps are nearly worn away...maybe they should be replaced as a reminder. Should there be an overhead flashing light?

Would that get wiped off with the first logging truck to pass by? A four-way stop would not be feasible.

Leduc officials near completion of annexation agreement

By Marilyn Tungland and Paul Flegal

Officials with the city and county of Leduc are one step away from completing a comprehensive annexation agreement.

After months of negotiations, both parties accepted in principle, revenue-sharing and cost-sharing agreements jointly formulated as an alternative to annexation of county land by the city. Representatives have yet to settle joint-planning issues concerning development in the region.

City administrators previously attempted to secure 7,232 hectares (18,081 acres) of county land — including the Nisku Business Park and the Edmonton International Airport — in a massive annexation bid designed to improve the residential-to-industrial tax ratio in Leduc. Following extensive hearings, Local Authorities Board officials awarded the city a 99-ha (245 acre) parcel of land along Highway 2 in June, including the Edmonton International Truck Stop. City and county officials were instructed at the time to negotiate a revenue-sharing agreement on their own and take it to the minister of Alberta Municipal Affairs for approval.

The revenue-sharing agreement gives the city 30-per-cent of the $1.3 million in revenue generated annually by the airport, about $400,000 per year of the total grant in lieu of taxes provided by the federal government.

A separate cost-sharing agreement will take a minimum of $200,000 per year from county coffers, a per-capita fee based on the estimated 2,300 county residents who use city-owned facilities each year. It will be spent specifically to defray cultural, recreational and library costs in the city of Leduc.

In 1988, the city of Leduc received $25,000 in county funds for providing services — the same amount paid to other urban municipalities in the county.

The combined cost of about $600,000 per year to the county will be provided to the city in semi-annual installments.

Camrose theatre group to perform at FMHS

The Entourage touring company from Camrose Lutheran College will be performing at the Frank Maddock high theatre this Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

The company has prepared three one-act plays that can be performed in repertory.

The company is made up of seven senior drama students from the college who are presently enrolled in a class that is specifically designed to give students performance training.

The seven members include Darren Pleishacker of Drayton Valley and Brian Stern of Thorshy.

The three one-act offerings include The Ringer Ned story (a hit from last year's Fringe Festival), Cecile and an adaption of Mark Twain's The Diary of Adam and Eve.

Winter is the busiest time for Drayton Valley schools

By Frank Ryan

The five schools in Drayton Valley are busy, both day and night.

During the day 2,000 students attend Eldorado, Evergreen, H.W. Pickup, Frank Maddock high and St. Anthony's.

It's not that different at night, as activities are held in the school gyms and classrooms.

For the most part, the town, who handles all the bookings for the schools, has been able to handle the requests.

Two exceptions are the boxers and gymnasts.

Paul Nielsen, the town's recreation director, says both of them are specialized groups. And for that reason they need facilities where equipment can be left up and there's ample storage.

Because the schools don't offer that luxury, the gymnasts use the band building, located behind H.W. junior high, the first four days of the week. The boxers have their own gym space downtown.

Despite continuous talk of limited space in town, there is space available to rent at St. Anthony's.

And, Nielsen says, the rumor making the rounds last year that the county of Parkland was considering closing the schools at 5 p.m. was just that...talk.

Renting space out in the schools during the week is the least of Nielsen's headaches. His real problems come on the weekend when he is often faced with paying double and triple overtime.

The winters are by far the busiest time for school after-hour activities.

If you were ever wondering why all those vehicles were parked at Drayton Valley schools after hours, here's a sample of some of the activities:

Frank Maddock high

Monday: ladies basketball, 9-11
Tuesday: mixed volleyball, 9-11
Wednesday: men's basketball, 9-11
Thursday: Air Cadets, 7-9; ladies volleyball, 9-11

H.W. junior high

Monday: school function
Tuesday: tae kwon do, 7-8:30; floor hockey, 8:30-10
Wednesday: school function
Thursday: tae kwon do, 7-8:30

St. Anthony's

Monday: open
Tuesday: Nicorette Trucking
Wednesday: Special Olympics, 8-9
Thursday: open

Evergreen

Monday & Wednesday: kick boxing, 8-9
Tuesday & Thursday: judo 7-9

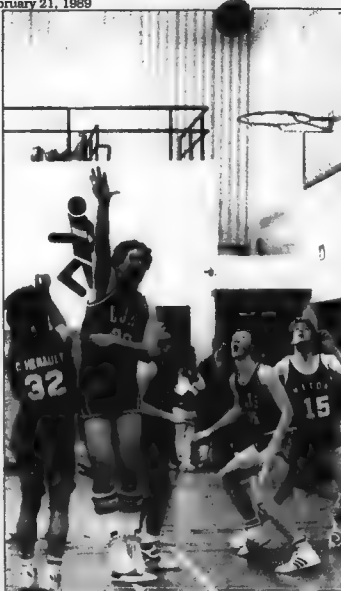

Eldorado

Monday: hospital volleyball, 7-8:30; town volleyball, 8:30-10
Tuesday: Duster volleyball, 7-9; AGT volleyball, 9-10
Wednesday: Junior Forest Wardens, 7-9
Thursday: town volleyball, 8:30-10

Another big user of school facilities after hours is the Powerhouse Further Education Council.

For example, they have four courses booked for Frank Maddock high this week.

If you would like to rent gym space, call the recreation department at 542-5327.

Men's basketball is held Wednesday evenings at FMBHS.

Joe Hoshowski defeated Bruce Clemmer in an extra end to win the Drayton Valley men's bonspiel.

'We have to solve internal challenge'

External Affairs Minister and Yellowhead MP Joe Clark took a major step towards reinforcing cooperation between Alberta business and the federal government by holding a day-long meeting in Edmonton Feb. 17.

The meeting, attended by Clark, senior external affairs officials and Alberta business leaders, discussed how Alberta business can help shape federal trade and economic strategies to ensure full advantage is taken of emerging international economic opportunities.

"This is an immense country, and communication across it is difficult," says Clark. "Yet we have to solve these internal challenges if we are going to take full advantage of the economic opportunities that await us in the world. There is no better way to start than by bringing together key people whose cooperation is essential to Canada's success."

Hoofing it

Mike Anderson, the municipal district's newly appointed special constable is without wheels.

Anderson says tenders have been sent out for a vehicle. However, he's expecting to be grounded for another six to eight weeks.

While he cools his heels in the MD office, Anderson is busy setting up programs.

New system combines safety, efficiency.

Dig without damage

Ceda-Reactor Ltd. has designed a tool for safely excavating in areas where buried pipelines and utility lines may present a hazard to mechanical digging. The Ceda-Tech excavating and locating system utilizes high pressure water and a vacuuming system to dig without damaging underground lines.

The invention is good news for industry and for the public. In many urban, rural, and industrial sites, there are lines buried underground that cause problems for conventional mechanical excavating equipment. If a backhoe or drill happens to damage a pipeline or electrical cable, the results can be disastrous. Electrocutations, explosions, gas leaks and oil spills may result in irreparable damage and loss of life.

Developed by Ceda's tech services engineering group, the new system combines efficiency and safety. At the head of the unit, where the actual digging takes place, a rotating water jet erodes the soil and rocks enough to allow a vacuum system to remove materials. The pressure of the jet is sufficient to loosen even frozen soil, and is controllable to avoid damaging underground lines.

Wheat prices expected to rise

It may be time for Alberta farmers to start planting wheat again from the current international market situation.

Three analysts who discussed market outlook at the recent Alberta Canola Growers Association convention in Edmonton all say wheat prices will rise this year.

"I'm bullish on wheat. If you can plant wheat, plant it," Don Bousquet, general manager of the Winnipeg-based Farm Market Network told the delegates. Bousquet even predicted international wheat prices to go as high as $7 to $8 per bushel.

Charles Pearson, Alberta Agriculture market analyst, says the price increases are a result of tight world wheat supplies. He says he expects an improvement of $50 to $60 per tonne over last year's wheat prices.

The third panelist, Dan Hiller, of Richardson Greenshields, echoed fellow panelists with his own prediction an initial Canadian Wheat Board wheat price of $5, or more, per bushel.

All of the analysts agreed canola prospects aren't as bright in 1989 as the canola prices of last summer, but each had a slightly different view on the outlook. Hiller says the crop carryover of over 1.2 million tonnes will mean a cutback of 25 to 30 per cent in the acres of canola that will be seeded. Pearson agrees the carryover will decrease canola seeded acreage to about 6.5 to 7.0 million acres, and that the carryover itself, will increase if there are no new buyers in the market or domestic canola crushers remain shut down.

Pearson adds he expects local canola markets will be in the $360 tonne range over the spring, but that price will depend on the South American oilseed crop. Brazil and Argentina have experienced some drought conditions during their growing season. His advice is to utilize the future markets to lock in prices for 1989-90.

The Town of Drayton Valley DEVELOPMENT APPEAL BOARD VACANCY

The Town of Drayton Valley is currently seeking applications from interested persons to fill a vacancy for a volunteer member-at-large on the Development Appeal Board.

Members of this board are required to attend meetings as requested which will be called from time to time. The term of office for this position expires December 31, 1990.

Applications for membership may be obtained at the Town Office. All applications should be submitted on or before February 24, 1989. All interested citizens are encouraged to submit their applications to:

What's coming in the future?

Not too many years ago, appliances that kept food cold without ice, pressed clothes without elaborate heating of irons, or cooked a chicken in less than 45 minutes were beyond belief. But things just keep getting better. Here are some examples.

A revolutionary bread machine from Japan will soon be hitting the Canadian market. This machine automatically mixes, kneads, rises, bakes and cools bread...all in one machine. You add the ingredients...the machine does the rest. The bread machine makes a wide variety of breads, from rye to raisin, sweet to sourdough, in about four hours.

If you do a lot of canning, how about a microwave oven food preserver? This device cans fruits, jams, jellies or pickles, one jar at a time in the microwave oven in just six to eight minutes.

A three-door refrigerator will be able to keep all your perishable foods at the right temperature. The unit will have four distinct temperature zones in three vertical chambers. On top will be the freezer section to maintain a -25 C temperature for frozen foods. The middle section will cool to 0 C for fresh fish and meats. The bottom...the regular refrigerator will contain a dual zone: a section at 5 C for drinks, milk, cheese and butter, and an enclosed vegetable/fruit bin at 8 to 11 C.

If you can't decide what to buy...a convection oven, a microwave oven, a toaster oven, and/or a regular range...what about an all-in-one cooking unit? This unit does everything—conventional, microwave and convection cooking—all in the same cavity.

A revolutionary concept that won't be available for several years is the single wiring system. Instead of a wire for each service...such as for your cable television, telephone, stereo and other major appliances...one wire will service all applications from a common outlet. Any device could be plugged into any outlet. For example, a telephone could be used from any outlet, not just one installed by the phone company. In addition, power would go to the outlet only when needed, thus eliminating the danger of shocks. The system would also "read" if an appliance was defective or had a frayed cord, and not send power to that outlet.

Consumer's Corner

By Samia Vallewand

Heavy paper may cause weight errors

Question: are there guidelines regarding extra weight on scales? Do we pay for the paper under our smoked turkey?

According to Consumer and Corporate Affairs Canada, any product sold by weight must be sold on the weight of the product alone. That is exclusive of the wrapping or containing materials.

A small sheet of waxed paper on a scale is normally not a problem. However, the use of heavy wrapping paper is frowned upon as it may cause errors beyond allowable tolerances. The product should be weighed first and then wrapped.

If plastic containers are used, their weight should be taken into account. Most electronic scales used in the sale of retail foods can be calibrated to subtract this weight. When you suspect that you have been given a short measure, contact the nearest district office of weights and measures.

Looks okay

An Alberta Motor Vehicle employee does a walk-around vehicle check at a temporary truck inspection station. The inspection station, set up just west of Drayton Valley on Highway 22 Wednesday, had AMV crews doing weight, equipment safety, load and mechanical checks on trucks passing through the area. The crew set up a portable weigh scale for trucks as well as doing safety checks. AMV wants to ensure not only the safety of the trucks on the highway but also the durability of the highway surface because of overloaded trucks.

IMPULSE BUY?

Come February, a lot of people scramble to get an RRSP before the deadline date. They may not be doing themselves any favours by impulse buying.

It's important to choose the proper type of RRSP to meet your long term needs and save taxes.

If you'd like to talk about retirement planning, or financial planning in general, I can help.

January building permits lowest in five years

Building permits for the year are off to a slow start in Drayton Valley.

The town only reports two projects last month at a total cost of $100,000.

This is the lowest January total in five years.

Last year started off with $125,500 in permits after $922,000 in 1987. There was also a slow-down in 1986 as permits for the first month of the year reached $211,000 after hitting $662,000 in 1985.

The Town of Drayton Valley RECREATION BOARD VACANCY

The Town of Drayton Valley is currently seeking applications from interested persons to fill a vacancy for a volunteer member-at-large on the Recreation Board.

Members of this board are required to attend one regular meeting per month, as well as special meetings which may be called from time to time. The term of office for this position expires December 31, 1991.

Applications for membership may be obtained at the Town Office. All applications should be submitted on or before February 24, 1989. All interested citizens are encouraged to submit their applications to:

Robin Wenbourne
Municipal Secretary
P.O. Box 837
Drayton Valley, Alberta
T0E 0M0

PUBLIC NOTICE

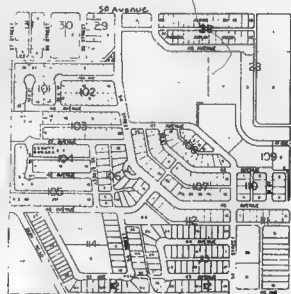

The Town of Drayton Valley is currently in the process of developing a PELICAN STEERING COMMITTEE in order to provide formal communications about mill activities primarily with the people in the community, the Mill and the Town.

The Town has a responsibility to ensure the project meets environmental and safety regulations during the mill's operation. The socio-economic impact of development must be monitored to ensure minimum social disruption and maximum regional benefits.

The Pelican Steering Committee will provide this monitoring function and will address problems with a view to developing solutions that are acceptable to all parties involved. That monitoring function can be accommodated through Steering Committee meetings.

Although the objective is to resolve issues by consensus, the Pelican Steering Committee shall be comprised of up to 5 members, three of which will be members-at-large. If you are a resident of the Hilcrest area and wish to become a member of the Pelican Steering Committee, please pick up an application form from the Town Office. Please return the completed form no later than February 24, 1989 to:

Robin Wenbourne
Municipal Secretary

Producers urged to promote canola

The canola industry has to push the profile of their healthy product a Canbra Foods company executive told the annual Alberta Canola Growers Association convention in Edmonton.

"We have not done a good job as an industry in educating our customers," Mike Pulliam told the delegates endorsed a resolution requesting Alberta Agriculture's marketing division work with the federal government, the Canola Council of Canada and the Western Crushers Association to "develop a procedure to enhance and promote the value of canola oil." Pulliam also told the delegates the Canada-United States trade agreement was a bright light in a currently tough canola market situation.

He said the agreement won't change the situation overnight, but will eventually have a positive impact on the canola industry. As well as providing access to the American market, the agreement could provide a framework for access to other markets. Pulliam called for accelerated tariff removal for more immediate access to offset the loss of Western Grain Transportation Act advantages from the trade agreement.

Superodeo coming March 29

The Northlands Superodeo will be held March 29 to April 1.

The first two performances on Wednesday and Thursday will begin at 3:30 p.m. The Friday and Saturday shows get underway at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are available at the Northlands Coliseum box office and all BASS outlets.

We often wonder which way to go

By Wes Herbert
DV United Church

Valentine's Day, then St. Patrick's Day — with each day crammed to overflowing and we wonder which way to turn.

A little girl who had recently moved to a new city, became lost in a holiday crowd. A policeman found her crying on the street. She told him her name but did not know where she lived. Since her father had been in the city such a short time, his name was not in the telephone book or the city directory.

The policeman was baffled

Seniors' supper well attended

By Joan Elmont

A home and school association meeting will be held at the Alder Flats school Feb. 21 at 7:30 p.m.

Both the Alder Flats and Buck Lake schools will be closed Monday, Feb. 27. Teachers will be attending a Native education seminar.

A very successful seventeenth Annual Oilmans' bospital concluded at the Alder Flats curling rink.

Winners of the first event were the Wildcard rink with the Hodgson rink in second place. Third place went to Seely's Auto and fourth to the Rainbow Riggers.

In the second event the Tri Enertech rink beat out the Wellhouse team with the A&K rink and ICG in third and fourth places, respectively.

Great West Chemicals took precedence over the AMO rink in the third event to put Bob Dale's rink in third place and Harold's Steam in fourth.

On Feb. 13, the seniors held their Valentine supper and party with about 60 people thoroughly enjoying the entertainment by the Forshes Farmers singers.

Travis Moody won the heart-shaped box of chocolates which was drawn during the kindergarten's but as he talked with the little girl she said, "If I could find the church, I would know my way home." He inquired about the appearance of the church, knew at once which one she meant and took her there. She stood on the steps, pointed down the street and said, "This is the way." Soon she was home.

Her parents had taken her to Sunday school the first week in the community and she was not lost when she was at the church.

This is what the church does, the community of believers, looking unto Jesus who guides, empowers and directs.

There will be a seminar on selecting foodstuffs, feeding different classes of horses and selecting recreation horses held at the conference room, provincial building, in Rimby.

Part one, "Getting things in order", Tuesday Feb. 21, at 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Part two, "Making it easier to deal with", explains the necessity of having a will, choosing an executor to carry out your wishes, and making funeral arrangements. It may sound dismal but very necessary.

Stress management can be used to prevent burn-out

Burn-out is increasingly recognized as a serious problem, one which affects many people, particularly professionals employed in human services. Fines and Aronson define burn-out as being "...a state of mind...accompanied by an array of symptoms that include a general malaise: emotional, physical, and psychological fatigue, feelings of helplessness, hopelessness, and a lack of enthusiasm about work and even about life in general."

The professional who burns out is unable to deal successfully with the overwhelming emotional stresses of the job, and this failure to cope can be manifested in a number of ways, ranging from impaired performance and absenteeism to various types of personal problems (such as alcohol and drug abuse, marital conflict, and mental illness). People who burn out often quit their jobs or even change professions, while some seek psychiatric treatment for what they believe to be their personal failings.

The term "burn-out" has been applied to many different situations. A student who has been writing a term paper for three hours may feel "burned-out" with writing but have plenty of energy to do something else. Individuals who abuse their spouse or children may attempt to explain their actions by claiming they are under considerable stress and "just burned-out". People who become apathetic and cynical about a frustrating job may claim they are "burned-out". A person in an unhappy romantic relationship may feel "burned-out".

Interagency presents...

In order to better understand the nature of burn-out, it is useful to conceptualize it as one reaction to high levels of stress. The advantage to this conceptualization is it suggests stress management strategies can be used to prevent burn-out or to treat burn-out if it does occur.

Stress can be defined as the emotional and physiological reaction to stressors. A stressor is a demand situation or circumstance which upsets a person's equilibrium and causes the stress response. There is an infinite number of possible stressors: crowding; noise; death of a friend; excessive cold; loss of a job; toxic substances; arguments and so on.

Burn-out is one reaction to high stress. Burn-out appears to be caused primarily by what people tell themselves about events or situations. Since burn-out is reaction to high stress, it follows that strategies to reduce stress will help to prevent and treat burn-out.

Let's talk about Your Future

It's people with quality training who have the edge in the job market. And when it comes to quality training, it's the Northern Alberta Institute of Technology (NAIT) that has the edge.

Applications are now being accepted for the fall of 1989.

- more than 60 one- and two-year programs in the career fields of engineering technology, business and computers, health and medical sciences, resource technologies, and applied arts.
- a practical, hands-on approach to training that is geared to employer needs.
- a learning environment that features small classes, superior instruction, modern facilities, and a varied range of student services and activities.

All NAIT programs have enrolment quotas - early application is recommended.

You can learn about NAIT's programs and services in a variety of ways: calendars, intensive seminars, Open House (March 10 and 11), appointments with counsellors, visits to programs, and others. For additional information, write or visit the Registrar's Office (NAIT, 11752 - 106 Street, Edmonton, Alberta T5G 2R1) or phone.

In Memoriam

SWISKI LUGHB
In loving memory of a dear husband, loving father and Dido, delivered into God's hands Feb. 24, 1988.

God looked around His garden
And found an empty space,
He put His arms around you
And lifted you to rest.
God's garden must be beautiful
For He only takes the best.

He knew you were in pain,
He knew you would never get well
Upon this earth again.
He saw the road was getting rough
The hills hard to climb
So He closed your weary eyes
And whispered "peace be Thine."

Treasure him Lord
In Your garden of rest
For here on earth
He was one of the best.
Dear loved and sadly missed by his wife Hannah and family.

BOTTERFIELD Justin
February 21, 1988
In loving memory of my dear son, Justin Botterfield.

My Boy, the joy had just begun,
But suddenly you're in the dust.
And, stunned, I lonely wander on,
Without you, in automation.

From Mom.

Education minister not impressed by Parkland County board's case

By Rich Gosson

Recent formation of the Twin Rivers school division west of the county of Parkland is going to directly affect taxpayers who support the public school system in urban centres like Spruce Grove and Stony Plain.

Just how much the county's revised assessment profile will shift the tax burden from rural to urban municipalities, however, has yet to be determined.

Alberta Education Minister Jim Dinning met with members of the county of Parkland board of education and senior staff last week in Duffield to discuss a request by the county for transitional grants from the province to protect local taxpayers from "unreasonable annual tax increases".

To say Dinning was unimpressed by the county's case would be an understatement.

He shocked board and staff representatives by taking them to task for the manner in which they've communicated with the public about possible tax increases this year, and put them on the spot by asking why they couldn't have planned further ahead and anticipated the effect of formation of the new school division on their own jurisdiction.

The minister was reacting to the presentation of an "interim report" prepared by Walter Heppler, the county school system's assistant superintendent in charge of business services.

The report dealt with a review underway to determine the specific impact on county school finances of the formation of the Twin Rivers school division in September of last year.

One of Dinning's concerns about Heppler's presentation centered around the fact that 1988 was an unusual year for the county of Parkland public school system.

The system's tax requisition from local municipalities in 1988 was actually about eight per cent lower than it had been in the previous year.

Municipalities were advised not to pass on the reduction to taxpayers, however, because school officials already realized there would be a loss of revenue, and consequently a tax increase, this year. They suggested the municipalities "bank" last year's savings to smooth out the roller coaster effect of recent and projected tax requisitions from a substantial tax increase this year.

Local municipalities that didn't set aside the extra revenue in 1988 could be in for a rude shock this year, but that's not something the provincial government or Alberta Education has any control over, Dinning pointed out.

Constituents in his Calgary home riding would love to receive the kind of tax reduction the county of Parkland school system was able to pass on to its supporting municipalities last year, he said.

Given the unusual nature of the 1988 financial picture, county officials are misleading taxpayers with information that compares 1989 projected revenues with 1988, Dinning said.

He was obviously perturbed by reports of Heppler's statement at an earlier board of education meeting indicating there could be as much as a 30-per cent increase in the school portion of municipal taxes this year.

"One alternative is to pass on a 30-per cent increase to the public," Heppler was quoted as saying.

As Heppler stated in his interim report, the figures he's been working with so far don't take the provincial government's recently announced grant increases to schools into account.

The county is "in a bind" financially and creation of the Twin Rivers school division has had a negative financial impact, the minister admitted.

Cavalcade coming

Between 60 and 70 recreation vehicles will visit Drayton Valley during the May long weekend.

The cavalcade is being organized by the Camrose-based Battle River Tourist Association.

Natalie Gibson, chairwoman of the chamber's tourist committee, has been busy arranging a parking site and entertainment for the overnight stay May 27.

Eighteen communities were represented at the Battle River annual meeting last Thursday at Warburg.

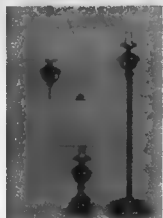

Tourist association manager Sylvia Clemens introduced a new visitor guide and golf brochure.

No injuries

The driver of this Dowell Schlumberger truck escaped with only minor injuries early Feb. 23 when freezing precipitation over much of the area between Edson and Red Deer made roads treacherous. Damage is unknown. Two additional trucks were forced into a ditch in the vicinity of Lodgepole on the same morning. RCMP officers say little damage was done and no injuries resulted.

Liberals and NDP to nominate candidates

Dr. Lila Fahlman

Two nomination meetings are planned this week in preparation for the March 20 provincial election.

Three candidates will be vying for the Liberal banner at a nomination meeting tomorrow (Wednesday) night in the Breton high school.

Registrations will open at 7 p.m. followed by the meeting at 8 p.m.

The three candidates are Phil Gibeau of Mulhurst, Dr. Lila Fahlman from the Seba Beach area and Garth "Bear" Werschler of Alder Flats.

The NDP will hold their nomination night on Thursday night at the Warburg Legion Hall.

Registrations will open at 7 p.m. followed an hour later by the nomination meeting.

Lynne Martin of Lindale and Lawrence Dublenko of Thorby are seeking the NDP nomination.

Tom Thurber, a Winfield-area farmer was selected earlier in the month as the Progressive Conservative candidate in the Drayton Valley constituency.

Accident claims local woman's life

By Belinda Atkinson

A Drayton Valley woman and a British Columbia man fell from the balcony of an Edmonton hotel Feb. 23, the woman dying instantly.

Fawn Severeid, 23, and a 29-year-old man who has not been identified fell from the fifth story of the Riviera Hotel approximately 3:45 a.m.

According to inspector Harrington, of the Edmonton police force, the mother of one died on impact and the man died three hours later in a city hospital.

Homicide detectives are investigating but now believe the deaths were accidental, according to reports.

Harrington said the two appeared to be in the hotel room alone and no evidence of foul play was found.

Severeid leaves behind a daughter, Heather, 1, who is now an orphan.

Her husband, Stephen Herald, 38, and his stepson, Donald Kuehl, 20, died in a car crash Christmas Eve near Thorby.

RCMP combat rash of oil thefts in land, air search

By Belinda Atkinson

A rash of oil industry thefts resulting in hundreds of thousands of dollars lost in equipment and supplies has left local RCMP officers stumped.

Since the beginning of 1987, 60 thefts have been reported within a 12-mile radius of Cynthia but only 10 cases have been solved.

RCMP Const. Tim Vatamaniuk says thefts range from cases of oil to major equipment such as tractors but are almost always specialized to the oil industry.

"They need these types of fluids to run the equipment," he said.

Vatamaniuk says the majority of cases involve tools such as large crescent wrenches that are costly and, like the fluids, seldom used outside the industry.

Although most thieves take the same equipment and the jobs are carried out in the same style, Vatamaniuk says few clues remain to indicate repeat offenders are responsible.

"We managed to connect four to one individual," he said, adding this was the only instance of an obvious ring of thefts.

If officers could re-locate items once stolen some clues

The meeting will be held today (Tuesday).

Members of the Twin Rivers school board visited the four public schools in Drayton Valley last Wednesday.

RCMP Cpl. Tim Vatamaniuk was taking therapy last week for an badly sprained ankle he injured while playing floor hockey.

Ruth Cooper is the new manager of the farmer's market.

She replaces Lynn Merschel who retired at the end of the 1988 season.

The farmer's market resumes March 15.

Barry McQueen is the new president of the Kinsmen club.

He replaces Derek Callius who has been transferred to Grande Prairie by the Royal Bank.

Most hotels and motels in Drayton Valley were full last Tuesday.

A check around town revealed 26 gravel trucks parked at or near the hotel/motels.

Canvassers are desperately needed for the March 1 to 15 Red Cross campaign.

If you are interested call Peggy Tyler.

Blood donors beat Red Cross projection

A blood donor clinic netted 210 units of blood for this region.

The projection made for this donor clinic was 170 units, and Red Cross officials are very pleased with the turnout.

Four certificates for 35 donations were handed out. A 50-donations certificate was given and two people who registered were giving their 42nd donation. There were also 18 first-time donors.

There are 99 rural hospitals from Red Deer to Inuvik, N.W.T. in this region that rely on blood donor clinics such as these for the precious supply of blood.

Jerry Philipson, manager of (Alberta) blood donor recruiting for the Canadian Red Cross, said a good supply of blood is on hand.

"This morning (Feb. 21) we had 1,854 units in the bank."

A unit is the amount taken from each blood donor. Now they have the extra blood from Drayton Valley donors.

Philipson's region was not hit by the same crisis as the Edmonton hospitals earlier this year, but "O negative and B negative is in demand."

This year has been an exception so far with the amount of blood being sent to hospitals in January and February.

Drayton Valley resident Ethel Mankow donates blood to Red Cross.

"There could be a million different reasons for that," says Philipson.

Blood is stored by the Red Cross for a maximum of 35 days after it has been checked, before it is discarded.

Philipson says if a region's blood is not used it is sent to areas where it can be.

There is also a long list of deficiencies that must be taken into consideration before blood donors are accepted.

Waiting times range from seven days right to six months for donating blood after taking antibodies or having major surgery.

Philipson said anyone who wants to donate blood can find out from the staff at a blood donor clinic if they are eligible.

Only 14 people who showed up were not able to donate their blood at last week's clinic.

RCMP search skies for oil culprits might unfold, but Vatamaniuk admits the items seem to disappear.

"We don't know where it's going. That's the unfortunate part," he says. "If we knew then at least that would be something."

As a result, the RCMP have combined efforts with fish and wildlife officers to stage major land and air searches across the dense forests and hundreds of roads that encompass the area's oil plants and rigs.

One such search took place Feb. 21, the third since last fall.

Two RCMP cruisers and one fish and wildlife truck combed the web of roads surrounding Cynthia while four officers determined movement from a Twin Otter above.

Scouting by night, when oil thefts continually take place, the officers were able to spot all vehicles below.

Any movement on the dozens of roads seldom used by non-oil or forest industry vehicles was considered suspicious and immediately checked by the ground crews.

Officers had questioned approximately 12 drivers and were half-way into the three-and-a-half-hour search when a vehicle was seen heading toward a remote lease road.

The officers on the ground were notified and told to respond immediately when the driver began backing up, going forward and flicking his lights on and off.

The incident turned out to be a truckload of hunters, as had been the case in most vehicles stopped that night.

But Vatamaniuk said even if no thefts were uncovered, word would circulate that officers are actively involved in patrolling the area both from the air and ground.

And, he added, the ground and air search will continue sporadically throughout the coming months.

Students not prepared for cold weather

A survey taken during a recent cold snap by the principal at H.W. junior high school has been completed.

Horse enthusiasts help Jaime

A shopping $2,694 was raised Feb. 17 at a horse auction for Jaime Gilbert, according to organizer Valinda Johnson.

"It wasn't at all what I expected," said the local mother who last week estimated $1,500 could be raised for the girl's treatment to correct a rare brain malformation.

Johnson said some horse services went lower than anticipated and turnout was down from regular horse auctions, but the event was still successful due to the last-minute addition of some items.

A total of 16 stallion services were auctioned, nine miscellaneous items and a sleigh ride.

Johnson, who was drawn to Jaime's plight when she discovered the sick girl was in her daughter's class, said she wouldn't attempt another large scale fund-raising effort but was glad she could do something to help.

Principal Colin Cavanagh took the survey Feb. 1 and 2.

On those two days, only 95 out of a possible 375 students attended classes due to extreme cold and snow.

Terrifying statistics

The survey revealed that 38 students were running shoes to school, 29 didn't wear any mitts, 19 walked to school and only four rode on a school bus.

Seventy-one of those surveyed were driven to school and 35 students had parents at home that could be contacted in case of emergency.

Cavanagh says the most terrifying statistics showed that 19 students had walked to school and the majority of those were runners and had no mitts on.

"We were extremely lucky that a student didn't suffer from severe frostbite," the principal stated in a newsletter to parents last week.

The school did report one case of a student walking to school who suffered frostbite on her ears.

Drayton Valley MLA Shirley Cripps, left, and Joe Clark, centre, turn sod for lodge.

Lodge renovations officially underway

The sod has been turned for the addition and renovations to the Shangri-La Lodge.

Construction on the 38-unit addition is expected to get underway shortly.

The project estimated at $2.5 million will be financed under the provincial Senior Citizens' Lodge program and the federal/provincial public non-profit housing program.

Joe Clark, Minister of External Affairs and Yellowhead MP along with Shirley Cripps, the retiring

MLA for the Drayton Valley constituency participated in the official sod turning.

Now that the project is officially underway, the MLA is hoping some of the pressure will be off.

"Mabel and the crew in the lodge can stop giving me hell now," Cripps told those gathered at the sod turning ceremony.

"This is the homiest lodge I've ever been in. You have to be commended for this."

Clark praised those involved in the project.

He also took time to pay tribute to the MLA. "She's done a first class job for Drayton Valley."

Deputy Mayor Dave Lundberg extended the town's appreciation to both levels of government.

Henry Rondeau, reeve for the MD, praised the MLA for her hard work in seeing the project become a reality.

Jeannette Vatter, chairperson for the board of management at the lodge also thanked government for their assistance.

Book borrowers' extra time is running out — librarian

Time is running out for municipal library borrowers who have overdue books.

In fact, this is the last day (Tuesday) overdue books will be accepted with the threat of a fine.

Librarian Lois Peterson says there are a number of outstanding books she'd like to see returned as soon as possible.

A lot of members took out the books while the library was moving, and still haven't returned them.

In the past the library's amnesty month has resulted in a number of books being returned.

A couple of years ago, a book was returned during amnesty month that would have otherwise resulted in hundreds of dollars in fines.

She says books often get mixed up with others in the home, slip under the car seat or borrowers just simply forget they have a library book.

Due to the number of overdue books, Peterson is asking people to do a pre-spring cleaning.

Immunization clinic dates

The Alberta West Central Health Unit has announced the dates for a number of child/adult immunization clinics in the area.

Sessions will be held at the health unit office in Drayton Valley on March 1, 8, 15, 22 and 29. Hours are 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The clinic will be offered at the health unit office in Evansburg on March 9 from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

And, at the Wildwood school from 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. on March 23.

Fun spiel goes this weekend

A fun spiel will be held at the Drayton Valley curling rink this Sunday.

It's the third annual Typers invitational spiel.

Each team will play a six-end game, break for lunch and play another six-end game.

Names will be drawn from a hat so curlers are asked to indicate which position they would like to play.

The focus of the fun spiel is not competition. Prizes will be awarded on a point system.

Opinions

Help may be on the way

A lot of attention has been focused on the Lodgepole Highway.

The provincial government has announced plans to spend $5 million.

This will include paving the 18-kilometre section from Lodgepole to the Elk River Road corner and putting in a climbing lane just west of the Violet Grove Store.

Industry has been after this for years.

Now that the province has answered their wishes, it's time to consider the corners of the people who live along the route.

They want shoulders on the existing highway from Drayton Valley to Lodgepole. There's also a couple of bad corners that could be fixed and a turning lane or two would please them.

While the residents realize this will take money and maybe even years of planning, they would like something done about the large trucks and increased speeds.

Some help in that area may be on the way.

On the very day that 60 people met in the Violet Grove Hall to discuss the highway and its problems, a major check stop was held. It was manned by Motor Transport and RCMP. They were checking weights and truck safety.

The only really problem here, is that RCMP don't have the manpower to patrol the highway 24-hours-a-day.

Their presence, whenever possible, will do a lot to help the traffic concerns.

This is where the new MD might help. They might consider asking the RCMP for another member...one assigned specifically to handle the truck and traffic problems on the Lodgepole Highway.

There's lots to keep him busy now, and it will only get worse when the entire highway is paved.

Snowy walks, cluttered yards — aren't they the same?

Because of the hundreds of calls I received (over last week's comments) I thought I'd go out on a limb again.

Here are some items and comments.

Jim Blm - This guy is one of those die-hard Oiler fans who hasn't much to say this season. Every time he hassles me, I just show him the Smythe division standings.

Unshovelled walks - Why is it that the town's bylaw enforcement officer doesn't appear to get after the offender who refuses to shovel their snowy walks? Is it not the same situation as a cluttered yard?

Paper drive - Instead of the usual bottle drive, why doesn't a local group collect paper? They could turn it over to the Lions who would undoubtedly sell it on their behalf. Just a thought.

Golf brochure - The Battle River Tourist Association has come out with a new golf brochure featuring 15 of the courses within their boundaries.

If you play at least 10 of the courses, you will be eligible for a number of cash prizes. Make sure you get a brochure that contains all the details.

Four of the courses in this area...Drayton

Valley, Birchwood Village Greens, Breton and Fairways West (Alder Flats) are included.

Kathy Pratt - For the past two years this lady has arranged and organized the Tuesday night (9 p.m. to 11 p.m.) coed volleyball.

On behalf of everyone who has played in this recreation league...thanks Kathy.

Dressing room stripper - We've heard of a lot of strange happenings in an arena, but never a stripper.

If you missed the front page story last week, a recreational team has been suspended three months for having a stripper in the dressing room.

As the story goes, just as she was starting her routine, the RCMP crashed the party.

Ski hill needs volunteer help

Drayton Valley is very fortunate to have a well developed ski hill minutes from town. For the first time in five years we even have excellent snow and weather conditions. What we appear to be missing is skiers and volunteers.

The hill is utilized mostly by students but is run strictly by volunteers. It's an excellent place to spend an evening or weekend with family and friends. The hill which was developed and is still maintained by volunteers is comparable to Rabbit Hill or Lake Eden which are privately owned and more expensive to use.

My concern is that the hill is run by very few volunteers, some of whom were involved with the development of the hill at least 20 years ago. We are all busy with jobs, children and community activities, and Drayton Valley is a young town requiring many volunteers. However, if more skiers and volunteers are not actively involved in the club I can foresee the hill closing due to a lack of involvement and interest.

I am challenging Drayton Valley and area residents to come out to the hill and ski! Appreciate the volunteers that do open the hill for your children to ski on and join them in their efforts when you can afford the time.

There is a volunteer concession so you can lunch at the hill. Season tickets are reasonably priced and free lessons are available on some weekends. If more people were actively involved the club could offer more activities such as a racing team, weekend fun races, programs for beginners, etc.

I would like to thank the dedicated volunteers who have kept the hill open this year despite the lack of response from skiers and volunteers. This includes the ski patrol which is a terrific volunteer organization. I would also like to thank all those who were contacted by phone and agreed to volunteer. If everyone interested in skiing helped out a volunteer would only have to work once or twice per season. Anyone 15 and over can volunteer. Volunteers are required to sell lift tickets, work a shift in the rental shop, help loading the T-bar, or help in the kitchen.

Please, skiers, don't wait until we have no ski hill to become involved.

Get tough on pollution

Has anyone taken a look at the condition of the snow in Drayton Valley lately?

Or, how often do you clean the dashboards of your vehicles or shake your laundry that has been hung outside? Black mild dust and wood splinters cost everything. We are blind to think that our children are breathing fresh country air or that some are eating fresh white snow.

Is it a coincidence that three friends of mine have had their young children referred to allergists this week alone? One friend was told that the best thing she could do for her baby is to move away from Drayton Valley and the mill dust. As an asthmatic myself, I know the strangling and frightening hold of an asthma attack.

For what price have the politicians of Drayton Valley sold the future health of our children by agreeing to have the mill built so close to town?

Are we to be another Love Canal? Environment Canada informs me that the burners are currently under investigations and that there is no legislation prohibiting industrial development within town boundaries.

At the least, we deserve confirmation that everything that can be done to arrest the emission of wastes from filtering our homes, vehicles and lungs is being done.

Get tough now — call Environment Canada Emergency (1-800-222-6514) or better yet, write to the director of pollution control, Mr. L. Schultz, Alberta Environment, 9820-106 St., Edmonton, AB T6K 2J6.

Lodgepole road needs more than patching up

On Feb. 15, a group of concerned citizens met at the Violet Grove Hall to discuss the hazardous road conditions of the Lodgepole Highway.

The issues discussed were:

The width of the highway (7.8 meters) is not adequate to accommodate the width of the loads being hauled on this road. The width allowed for logging trucks is 3.2 meters and 4.45 meters for oilfield loads.

There are no shoulders, so no place to make an emergency stop or a scheduled stop, i.e., to change a tire, to check loads or most importantly, for the schoolbus to pick up its passengers. As it is now we stop in a traffic lane.

Road patching is not the answer. Of the 66 people that attended this meeting we travel this road approximately 1122 times per week. We represent 160 vehicles a day — showing we use Drayton Valley as our base point for work, banking, services and repairs, grocery shopping, recreation, and most importantly, schools.

We are therefore hoping we will receive the support of the town of Drayton Valley, the MD of Brazeau and our new MLA in our requests to have the road widened sufficiently to make it safe for us to use.

Waiting list for Satanic Verses

By Belinda Atkinson
The Satanic Verses will be available at the local library but librarian Lois Peterson says readers will have to wait in line.

"Four people have reserved the book," she says, adding only one copy of the highly controversial work of fiction may be available.

"We only anticipate the need for one copy but we do get multiple copies in the event we have a long waiting list," she said.

Peterson said the book went into print last fall but little interest was shown locally until Iranian spiritual leader

Ayatollah Khomeini issued a death sentence against author Salman Rushdie and offered $6.2 million (Cdn.) to his killer.

Moslem extremists have vowed to fulfill his order, by suicide if necessary, and have threatened at least one Canadian bookstore, but Peterson is not concerned about bringing the book to Drayton Valley.

"I'd prefer to keep a low profile on this," she admitted. "I think we live in a reasonable community where people are moderate and have open minds."

Peterson said the biggest threat is to the state of democracy and freedom of expression.

"This is something that has taken the international literary world by surprise," she said. "The ramifications are so far reaching. After all, this is a novel, a work of fiction."

Peterson commented on the coincidence that death squads were en route to Britain in search of the Indian-born British author during Canada's national freedom-to-read week.

"Canada is so fortunate to live in a free and open society," she said.

An anti-abortionist wants abstinence

A well-known anti-abortionist and founder of an Ontario-based counselling service will speak in Drayton Valley March 6.

Straight Talk counsellor Beverly Hadland will begin her one-day tour in local schools with a plea to students to abstain from sexual relations.

Entitled Hang on to your Hormones, Hadland suggests chastity to students, not only as an effective birth control method but as a way of eliminating unnecessary problems in a young person's life.

A sit-down tea will conclude the tour at 8 p.m. in the Legion hall where Hadland will discuss her past, having had two abortions, and the emotional trauma she experienced.

Hadland explains the various reasons women seek abortions — lack of finances, youth, embarrassment — and provides alternatives to what she describes as a life-long mental burden.

Tickets are available in advance sale only and can be purchased at the local Respect for Life office.

Career day March 1

Frank Maddock high school will be hosting an education and career day on March 1.

About 14 different education institutions and businesses will be on hand to present information on careers in their field.

All Grade 9 students in Drayton Valley and area schools have been invited to participate in career day, which is open to the general public as well.

FMHS counsellor Jim Wolff, one of the organizers of career day, says the information available through displays and lectures can prove valuable to anyone.

There will be one-hour lectures held at various times during the day, with a 20-minute question-and-answer period following each session.

Wolff says he has tried to include many different industries in the lectures.

There will be representatives from the oilfield, armed forces, small business and of course post-secondary institutions.

Lectures will be going on throughout the day, which will be during school hours - 8:50 a.m. to 3:15 p.m.

Career information will be discussed on everything from correctional services, agriculture, apprenticeships and money management to professional photography and entrepreneurial skills.

This information will be useful not only to students but also anyone considering a career or career change.

Upgrading education through post-secondary schools will be discussed as well.

There will be no classes for FMHS students on this day.

Speech therapy grant

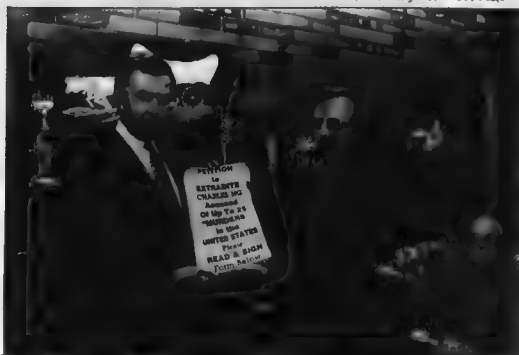

An announcement by the government last October of new funds for speech therapy is good news for Drayton Valley and area schools.

West central Alberta Catholic School superintendent Valerie Keates said the extra funding will mean almost twice the time for speech therapy.

"We have to form an advisory committee to provide advice on how to present it (speech therapy programs)," Keates says.

There is still a need for additional help from speech aides to carry out the programs, she says.

Still, the funding will mean more help from the health unit in Edson, where speech therapists come from for this area.

Joe Clark, left, receives petition from Don Regenwetter.

Ng petition given to Clark

A 7,000-name petition protesting Charles Ng's stay in Canada is now in the hands of External Affairs Minister Joe Clark.

The petition was presented to the Yellowhead MP by organizer Don Regenwetter during a recent visit by Clark.

"We're very concerned about Ng staying in Canada and using our system," Regenwetter told Clark.

Clark agreed to turn the petition over to Justice Minister Doug Lewis.

"There's a lot of concern Canada is going to become a haven for other criminals," Regenwetter added.

Clark said he had to be very careful, as he didn't want to taint the case.

Regenwetter was also very concerned the Canadian system would allow Ng to stay here for another four years.

Clark replied that he wasn't sure how long the process is.

The Yellowhead MP, who was also the interim Justice Minister when the petition was originally organized in Drayton Valley, was impressed with the size of the local submission.

No one injured

The driver of this logging truck avoided hitting a tanker early Feb. 23 by driving his own rig into a ditch on Hwy. 62. No one was injured and little damage was done. A winch was used to pull both trucks out.

Clothesline can substitute for chains

By Belinda Atkinson

Freezing precipitation causing glare ice on highways can make spring a treacherous season to drive unless extreme caution is used.

To avoid costly and possibly tragic accidents, Spruce Grove Driving School instructor Ann Hutchinson suggests a number of precautions.

She says the easiest way to prevent losing control on ice other than avoiding driving altogether — is to install chains on tires.

"Chains are a definite plus but most people don't have them or want to spend the money," she admits.

Instead, Hutchinson suggests wrapping a belt, clothesline, rope or similar material around tires to gain traction.

If drivers should find themselves stuck in snow, the instructor says similar improvisational items can be used.

"If you get stuck, you can put a floor mat under your tires. Rope, twigs, dirt or sand can also be used," she says, adding even a copy of The Western Review will work.

A trick commonly used is putting sand bags in the trunk to act as extra weight, for better traction.

It may be obvious to some, she says, but placing sand bags in the trunk of a front-wheel drive vehicle will raise the front-end slightly and could cause problems on icy roads.

While driving, Hutchinson recommends avoiding the brakes completely.

If you must stop, she stresses, slow down in advance of an intersection using the lower gears on the vehicle.

While standard shift automobiles usually give a driver more control, she says the first and second gears on automatic transmissions will suffice to avoid accidents.

Though ice and snow are usually blamed for car accidents, Hutchinson says many could have been avoided if drivers had allowed extra time for vehicles entering and exiting intersections.

"Give yourself (triple the amount of time) to get through an intersection and always make sure you're alert," she said.

"Some people get half-way to work before they realize it's icy. You have to be alert."

Man gets three years for sexual assault

A Drayton Valley man pleaded guilty Feb. 23 to sexually assaulting two local girls in December of last year.

The 31-year-old man, who can not be identified to protect the victims, will serve two 18-month jail sentences concurrently for assaulting and sexually assaulting the minors.

A 48-year-old man pleaded guilty Feb. 23 to one charge of fraud.

Allan Haase, of Drayton Valley, was sentenced to one month in jail.

A 32-year-old woman pleaded guilty Feb. 23 to driving with a blood alcohol level over .08.

Patricia Gould, of Drayton Valley, was sentenced to 14 days in jail and received a three-year licence suspension.

ERCB okays licence

A Drayton Valley firm hopes to build a sweet and sour water disposal and cleaning facility near Edson.

Baumann Resources Ltd. has acquired a well licence for the project from the ERCB.

However, the project is being held up pending approval from the landowner.

The ERCB hopes to have that answer this week.

Baumann told a recent public meeting in Edson there is a definite need for the facility because the only other plant offering similar services is Bridges Energy Resources, and they apparently can't handle the amount of waste fluids for the area.

Mandatory neck guard use needs CSA approval

By Belinda Atkinson
Michael Cameron's severe injury under the blade of a hockey player's skate and resulting death should not be repeated in Drayton Valley.

This comes from Drayton Valley Hockey Association president Lanny Schultz whose organization has enforced mandatory neck guards among 17 member teams for the past two years.

Schultz says players are not permitted on the ice unless wearing neck guards but this rule is optional for Alberta's 215 amateur teams and will likely remain so.

Howard Wurban, operations manager for Alberta Amateur Hockey Association, says the Canadian Standards

Association (CSA) would have to approve neck guards before AABA would make them mandatory across the province.

When asked if his organization has considered lobbying for CSA approval to guard against a repeat of the Frank accident Feb. 9, Wurban said, "You don't force CSA to get anything approved."

However, Edmonton's CSA manager Lloyd Morton says his organization cannot approve a product unless need is demonstrated through public request.

"Unless someone asks us, we cannot start testing a product," Morton explained.

Wurban said he was not aware CSA could only act on public initiative and said he could not comment further.

Al Bailey, public relations manager for CSA in Toronto, said discussions have taken place in the past to approve neck guards but no actions have been taken because Bureau Normalisation Quebec (BNQ), the French version of CSA, had decided to test the equipment.

"Quebec is in the early stages of drafting a standard and has been working on it for six or eight months," Bailey said.

He said repeating the exact tests would be unnecessary and costly when BNQ approval would also apply to the western provinces.

However, Donald Maltais, BNQ's man responsible for certification, said while discussions have taken place, the organization decided not to go ahead with testing based on a lack of demand.

"We plan to do it but we will wait until someone requests it," he said.

Rick Meston of Rick's Sporting Goods displays various neck guards that won't be mandatory to the province's amateur players unless someone requests CSA testing.

Girls head for Jr Olympics

By Wendy Carruthers
Some people who love to ski take every opportunity to get away for a day or weekend to the mountains.

For two young girls however, their love of the slopes runs deeper than that.

Tanya Sprague and Carrie Champagne are the two brave 11 year-olds who will be competing in the Junior Olympics March 4, 5 in Jasper.

Both girls attend St. Anthony's school and are nervous and excited about the upcoming heat.

Sprague and Champagne have been on a training program for the last eight weeks.

Every Sunday they travel to Jasper to polish their slalom skills and try to increase their race times.

Sprague has recorded 28.25 seconds as her fastest time. Champagne is at 26.70 seconds.

Sprague has only been skiing for four years, but has progressed quickly to compete in the Jr. Olympics. Champagne's five years of skiing has given her the confidence to try her skills against others of the same age.

Neither of the girls seem to have a mentor that drove them to compete. Both said they joined the 12-member team because "it looked fun".

Overconfidence is not a virtue of any sports competitor and these two don't possess it either.

They don't know the girls they will be competing against, nor their fastest times. This may be an advantage to them.

Both of the girls are in the

Jr. Olympics for the first time and don't hold out much hope of winning, but they are looking forward to next year already.

One real advantage they have in the races will be in Jasper, where they practice. They do know the other athletes practice on different ski slopes. This may turn out to be the upper hand they need to win—or place.

Either way they may be returning with a medal to their credit.

"Concentrate, and put all your effort into it," the girls say is the coach's motto.

Their last training session Sunday may determine how they fare in this weekend's event.

Right now they are hoping for the weather to be on their side.

"Not too cold, not snowing—just right," they say.

No skiers is new problem for Ski Hill operators

The Drayton Valley Ski Club has a new problem.

For several years the local club was plagued by the lack of snow and only a handful of volunteers.

This season it's been a shortage of skiers.

And that has president Dale Rendflesh and others worried.

The club, that went out and purchased its own snow-making equipment last year, even closed down early one night due to a lack of skiers.

Only 23 people turned out on a recent Saturday, when snow conditions were the best they've been in years.

Rendflesh admits he doesn't have the answers.

According to Rendflesh, the executive has looked at extending the hours of operation, but he's concerned about volunteer help that is needed to make the hill operational.

"How much can they give?"

Despite excellent snow conditions all year, the club only sold 10 family, 30 student and 10 adult memberships this year.

Some of the volunteers say the current situation has them worried.

Berni Abendroth, one of the volunteers who has been working at the hill this winter, calls it a crisis situation.

"It's the best snow we've had in five years. And, it's sure not expensive," she says.

But for some unknown reason, the skiers are not coming out.

It's a problem the executive will continue to wrestle with.

Goalie wins, team loses

It's not very often a goalie gets rave reviews in a 9-2 loss.

But that was the case last Wednesday night as the midget Clippers dropped a 9-2 home ice decision to the visiting Hinton Devils.

It was the opening game in their two-game total-goal playoff series.

Clippers netminder Len Adler was simply outstanding, especially in the second period, as he kept the score close.

Unfortunately, the Clippers were unable to score.

They trailed 5-2 after the opening period despite scoring the first goal. It was 6-2 after 40 minutes.

Warren Schneider and Daylen Pfannmueller scored for the Clippers who played most of the game without the services of Jason Kipling.

Kipling was initially injured during the first period when he accidentally bit his tongue after taking a solid check. He returned for the second period but was eventually forced to the sidelines.

About 200 fans took in the hard-hitting game which was completed in two hours.

Rangers down Rocky 7-4 in weekend action

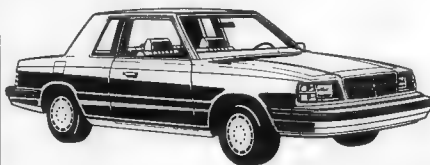

The Pile Base Rangers downed Rocky Mountain House 7-4 on the weekend to claim first place in their league standings.

It was the Rangers' first win of the season against their archrivals from Rocky.

Bryson Kuzek led the charge with three goals followed by Greg Thompson with a pair. Glen Hutchinson and Trent Williams had singles. Travis Brigley collected three assists.

The ladies' bonspiel came down to the last few rocks.

Edmonton rink victors

The Drayton Valley ladies bonspiel last weekend had some tense moments as some of the final games came down to the last rock.

Winners of the first event were from Edmonton. Nola Oester rink with Helen Marsden, Leone Eaton and Agnes Bannister. Oester's rink also won the visitor aggregate.

In the second event Wanda Blair's rink took the prize with Paulette Bolland, Donna-Mae McQuisig and Anne Thompson.

The third event winners were Marilyn Lakusta, Debbie Anderson, Brenda Leeson and Debbie Madsen.

The fourth event winners also took the local aggregate place. Cindy Vowk's rink with Linda Jamieson, Julie Bergen and Shirley Ciurysek.

Lariettes tie Mojos

Three different players scored as the Lariettes played to a 3-3 tie with the Mayerthorpe Mojos on the weekend in girls' hockey action.

Kerry, Coreen and Nicki Baumann had the Drayton Valley goals.

Breton Oilmen's bonspiel a success

The 18th annual Oilman's bonspiel was played in Breton last weekend with the finals coming down to three events.

The bonspiel turned out to be a huge success thanks to participants and sponsors.

Skate-a-thon this weekend

The Kinsmen Club will hold a skate-a-thon this Sunday at the Drayton Sports Centre.

Participants will take to the ice to raise funds between noon and 5 p.m.

Skaters are asked to get pledges on a per-minute basis or total pledge.

Clubs will get 40 per cent of the money they raised. A club must have five skaters on a team to qualify.

Every skater must have a pledge card with pledges.

Pledge cards are available at Nordan Homes and Home Hardware. They have also been distributed to schools, clubs and organizations in town.

Proceeds from the skate-a-thon, the first ever sponsored by the Kinsmen, will go toward community projects.

Winner of the first event was Harold's Steam and Vacuum Service from Breton — Doug Zingle, Brian Hansen, Harold Hansen and John Rovinsky.

The ANK group from Nisku took the second event with Allen Ankerstein, Miles Melin, Mr. Lazzo and Jeff Fiveland.

The Breton team of Fred Meade Construction won the third event with Fred Meade, Jim Roos, Jeff Meade and Cliff Meade.

Stettler takes all in basketball

Home advantage didn't help Frank Maddock's boys' basketball team during the FMHS invitational basketball tournament last weekend.

Drayton Valley was beaten out of second place by Evansburg by a whopping 63-37 loss.

Stettler took first place in the tournament squeaking by Grand Centre with one point in the final game.

The score was never far apart, and during the last 10 minutes each basket was matched by an opposing one.

A three-point basket by Ryan Stef of Grande Centre in the final few seconds of the game could not save the day as the clock ran out on a 66-65 score favoring Stettler.

Third place went to Leduc's Christ the King high school who defeated Breton 63-60.

Brochure features golf courses

The Battle River Tourist Association has developed a new golf brochure.

Sixteen of the 35 golf courses within the boundaries of the association are included.

The format of the brochure is based after Travel Alberta's 'Stamp Around' campaign.

Golfers are urged to play at least 10 of the courses, getting the brochure stamped each time.

After this has been done, the stamped brochure can be forwarded to the Battle River Association. Golfers who send in their brochures will be eligible for $800 in prize money and prizes.

Some of the golf courses in the promotion include Drayton Valley, Birchwood Village Greens (Lindale), Breton, Fairways West (Alder Flats), Black Bull (near Ma-Me-O Beach) and Devon.

Brochures will be available at participating golf courses and visitor information centres throughout the Battle River Tourist area.

Alberta Sport Council sponsors essay contest

Since coaches play such a valuable role in guiding the youth of our nation, 1989 has been proclaimed as Year of the Coach. And one of the major programs being implemented to thank these talented men and women for their outstanding contributions to sport is a Year of the Coach essay contest.

This contest, along with other programs to recognize the role of coaches in our society, is being implemented by the Alberta Sports Council.

"It is our desire to have school students in Alberta participate in a Year of the Coach essay contest by writing a composition on the topic: 'Why a coach is someone I look up to,'" explains Terry Archer, who is in charge of co-ordinating the Year of the Coach programs for the Alberta Sports Council.

Information about this Year of the Coach essay contest, including guidelines, timelines, procedures and posters, has been forwarded to superintendents of schools throughout the province. This material is now being distributed to the appropriate teachers in each school jurisdiction.

Winfield Rec Centre hosting Alzheimer's disease seminar

By Joan Elmont
Sunday, Feb. 19 saw the conclusion of the Buck Lake mixed curling bonspiel.

In the first event, the Wayne Brzus rink defeated the Melin rink to put Stuart Hare's team in third place and the Norman Moore team in fourth.

Len Hammond and his players won over the Liz Long rink to place the George McLeod team in third position. Fourth place went to the Anderson rink.

The Brooks team won the third event, with the Doug Brzus team placing second. Third place went to the Jeff Fiveland foursome and the Hernburg team took fourth place.

A seminar dealing with Alzheimer's disease is to be hosted by the Wetoka Health Unit March 17 and 18 at the Rec Centre in Winfield. The 'mini-seminar' on Friday goes from 7 to 9 p.m. and the Saturday program from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. A small donation on Friday will be collected for coffee and doughnuts and the Saturday seminar will include lunch.

Doreen Mumbe will be dealing with early signs and symptoms of Alzheimer's, how the disease progresses, the emotional and behavior problems and how to cope with them.

Her assistant, Fran Patterson, will discuss recreation and exercise for the Alzheimer's patient.

As the population age increases so will the incidence of the disease. Now is the time to find out more about it.

The week of March 6 to 10 has been designated Palliative Care Week.

Displays with explanations of a new program organized by the Wetoka Health Unit will be set up in Rimbey, Ponoka and Wetaskiwin.

The new program will be known as the Wetaskiwin-Ponoka District Palliative Care Council.

Successful palliative care means coordinated community effort to allow the dying to make choices about where and how they would like to live out their remaining days.

It also includes bereavement visits and follow-up after death.

The council will be comprised of the health program, community groups, volunteers, clergy, church groups, nursing homes, home-making services, the client's family and social workers.

If you would like to volunteer your services to help make the program work the Wetoka Health Unit would greatly appreciate your offer.

Oil Notes

Canadian 88 Resources Inc. wants to buy a controlling share of Excel Energy Inc., a move that could cost more than $4 million.

Canadian 88 Resources Inc., owned by Red Deer clothier Franklin Daines, already has 10.17 per cent of the outstanding common voting shares issued by Excel and is considering offering $1.75 per share to gain control.

Parkland Industries of Red Deer reports gross sales for the first half of fiscal 1989 are up $56.5 million compared to $53.3 million for the same period the previous year.

Eight-ender

Lariettes squash local teachers

The Lariettes knew what had to be done. Big, bulky teachers towered over the young girls team but they were fighting for a cause.

The result: the Lariettes squashed the giants Feb. 23 with a 9-5 win to raise at least $879 for Jaime Gilbert's treatment to correct a rare brain malformation.

There were fights and plenty of action, according to Larry Nelson, the proud coach, but the girls were relentless.

Murray (The Crusher) Arnold took four penalties and had to be subdued at one point by brave referees Brent (Cowboy) Plotts and David (The Hill Brothers Bean Buyer) Hill.

Chris (The Leprechaun) Kelly sparked the teachers team with a daring assist. Cheerleaders also kept the teachers' morale high, though male spectators said morale would have been higher if their skirts had been. "After all, it's a warm arena," Nelson explained.

The Crusher, his brother, John (The Assassin) Arnold, and Dave (The Destroyer) Elwood attempted to break the obvious defeat at the last minute with an all out brawl but little could save the fading brutes.

The "biggest crowd that's ever been in the Drayton Sports Centre" responded with $859 in donations and referees kicked in their $20 fee.

Nelson, who pledged $10 per goal, said he won't know exactly how much was raised until local businesses step forward to accept the challenge to meet or beat his donation. Pledges can be dropped off at The Western Review or the Bank of Montreal in Drayton Valley.

Pile Base Rangers get second in U.S.

Seven games in three days is a lot for any hockey team. But it was all part of a 'once in a lifetime' trip to Denver, Colorado for the Drayton Valley Pile Base pee wee Rangers.

Only three of the 18 players had ever been on a plane before, so the two-hour flight from Calgary to Denver was something most of them will never forget.

On the ice, the Rangers had little trouble with the opposition, losing just once.

Robin Smashuk collected three goals with Travis Brigley and Trent Williams adding two each, as the Rangers downed Denver University 10-0 in their first outing.

Their next victims were Hyland, a suburb of Denver, who lost 7-1 to the lone Canadian team in the tourney. Dwight Kuzek and Ian Cathrea had two goals each in the win.

The Rangers goaltending team of Cory Davidson and Erron Steele had a great trip as they registered four shutouts. Brigley scored twice in a 4-0 win over Omaha. Kuzek had four in a big 9-0 victory over Littleton and Trevor DePatie had two in a 6-0 win over Littleton #3.

The Rangers' perfect 5-0 record in the preliminary round moved them into the final and a re-match with Omaha.

The U.S. team handed their Canadian visitors a 4-2 setback. Greg Thompson and Brigley had the Ranger goals.

It was the coach's opinion that Omaha was the best team they had played in the tournament.

If six games wasn't enough for the Canadian team, they downed the Littleton Red Tops 4-2 in exhibition action.

Scott Riske, Clayton Lindsay, Cody Woods and Williams had the Ranger goals.

Coach Andy Davidson was very impressed with the hospitality in Denver.

Besides his own problems at customs, assistant coach Rob Suitor said the team went to Denver expecting to get beat. Because of their early success in the preliminary round, Suitor feels the boys were under a lot of pressure heading into the final.

According to Ranger manager Dwight Kuzek, the Denver team are very interested in making a return trip to Drayton Valley.

The trip also saw a lot of pin trading (Drayton Valley Minor Hockey Association pins) and friendships started.

Thirty-seven people in all made the trip.

The weather in Denver was very nice. Coach Davidson reports some of the driving ranges open...but he didn't have time to swing any clubs.

Due to the size of the dressing rooms, players had to change in shifts.

Ranger cheerleaders were Gisele Williams, left, Amanda Smashuk and Paulette Davidson.

Squash can't replace pumpkin's texture

Consumer's Corner

In recent years it has become harder to buy pure canned pumpkin. Labels with the word "pumpkin" in large type also list "squash" in small type. Since squash has neither the flavor nor the solid texture of pure pumpkin, why is this substitution?

The standards for canned pumpkin have permitted the product to contain up to 40 per cent squash, by weight since the late 1940's. When squash began to be used, corn starch was discontinued.

Perhaps part of the confusion has occurred because the differences between pumpkins and squashes have become increasingly subtle. Strictly speaking, the name "pumpkin" has applied to one of the squash varieties. One type known as a winter or fall squash in Canada, is accepted as a pumpkin in Europe.

Thus "pumpkin" has become the accepted name for a canned mixture of pumpkin and squash. As well, it's been found that this blend actually produces a smoother, more palatable canned product.

Museums brighten winter

Instead of embracing the cold this winter, take in one of the many indoor museums, interpretive centres, and gardens that are located all across Alberta. It's the perfect way to spend a winter's day, not to mention a great educational and enlightening experience.

For more information on these centres and museums, contact Travel Alberta toll free at 1-800-222-6501.

Set in the scenic North Saskatchewan River valley, the Muttart Conservatory celebrates to an indoor utopia. Offering one of the most breathtaking views of the Edmonton skyline, this is a perfect escape from the cold. The Conservatory consists of four pyramid-shaped structures, three of which display permanent floral arrangements, each depicting a different type of climate — arid, temperate and tropical. The fourth pyramid is a showcase that changes displays every few months.

The Provincial Museum of Alberta in Edmonton depicts life one hundred, one million, and even one billion years ago. Four major galleries reflect Alberta's natural heritage and history, with specific displays of paleontology, zoology, and artifacts of Alberta's native people, fur traders, and settlers.

The museum also features exhibits and events, usually of an international flavor throughout the year.

The Tyrrell Museum of Paleontology is a much talked about and world renowned museum set in the heart of Alberta's badlands. The museum's theme "A Celebration of Life", will let you explore the origin of life on earth from the very beginnings, and follow the evolutionary processes which began more than 3,000 million years ago.

The museum illustrates everything from ancient gardens and coral reefs to dynamic dinosaurs and prehistoric sea monsters. Most of the dinosaurs displayed at the museum have been found in Alberta.

An indoor science garden, the paleoconservatory, will feature living descendants and close relatives of plants that grew 350 to 15 million years ago.

The museum communicates the earth's history through dynamic displays, vivid murals, science games, guided tours, computers, films and videos. In the wintertime it is open 6 days a week from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

At the Banff Natural History Museum in the town of Banff, you can learn how trees, plants and flowers manage to adapt to the harsh extremities of mountain living. Film and slide presentations examine the biological and geological factors shaping the Rocky Mountains.

The Whyte Museum and Art Gallery, also in Banff, displays works of art from international, national and regional artists. The permanent collection of works by Peter Whyte and his wife should not be missed, as they portray the mountains surrounding Banff in all their splendor.

There is also a collection of rare books and historic photos from the early days in Banff at the Whyte Museum.

Smith and Butler save production

A charming old tale of passion on the open sea would have been a bad excerpt from The Love Boat if not for two cast members.

Janet Smith and Derril Butler, Alberta Opera Touring Association's shining stars, demonstrated a gift for song not shared by their fellow thespians.

Appropriately, the two held leading roles in Gilbert and Sullivan's classic H.M.S. Pinafore as Josephine, the daughter who found love beneath her social class, and her father, Captain Corcoran, who was swept away by a sparkle in a peddler's eyes.

Their ability to act was certainly recognizable, but it was their mastery of song that separated them from their younger, less skilled counterparts.

They left Drayton Valley breathless with appreciation — and rightfully so — but the magic disappeared the moment another's voice reverberated off H.W. Pickup walls.

June Hunt, for example, opened the play with a shaky rendition of I'm Called Little Buttercup. Her voice warmed as the play progressed but never generated the heat demonstrated by the two main characters.

When sailors combined voices with Sir Joseph's sisters, cousins and aunts, who had accompanied the English nobleman on his mission to claim Josephine as his wife, their choir was also lackluster.

Despite an overall unbalanced performance, AOTA still put forward a genuine effort and were rewarded with a standing ovation.

Meetings important for 4-H

By Harley Read
Regional 4-H Winter
Assistant

Meetings make the world go round! Sometimes that may seem very true. In order to run the 4-H program effectively, volunteer 4-H leaders and member make up a framework of councils who help administer the program. Representatives from each club sit on a district council that makes decisions affecting each club in that district. Therefore, these district council meetings should be well attended, right? Well, sadly this is not the case. Many clubs have not made efficient use of their district council, some virtually ignoring the meetings!

District councils have been set up for several reasons. First, to provide incentive and opportunities below the club level (i.e. public speaking). As well, they provide recreational, educational and travel programs. Also, a chance is made available for clubs to share ideas and get to know other 4-Hers.

You can utilize district council programs by planning your input so that your club's needs can be met. As a club representative you need to attend council meetings to be in a position to not only affect the planning of council programs but also so you can plan your club program to take advantage of them. The 4-H community needs to take some responsibility for council programs if they are to be valid, useful and successful. Upcoming council meetings this spring provide an opportunity to evaluate the winter's programs and make plans for next year. I urge each leader to be prepared to have input on what their district council should be doing next year in the way of recreational programs, workshops, promotional campaigns, fund-raising, and exchanges. Make the council work for you! If all clubs share the load, and meetings are run efficiently, it will happen!

Did you know

To stay alert, to stay alive, when lightning strikes:

When outdoors:

Don't work on fences, telephone or power lines, etc.
Don't use metal objects, like fishing rods and golf clubs.
Don't handle flammable material.

Stop tractor work. Dismount and move away.
Get out of the water and off small boats.

Automobiles offer excellent lightning protection, but they are unsafe places when a tornado or severe thunderstorm approaches, with strong winds, due to the possibility of destruction by wind blown debris.

Seek shelter from lightning in a building; otherwise, in a cave, ditch, or ravine. Do not seek shelter under trees.

If you have metal on your clothing such as golf spikes, belt buckles, get rid of this clothing — you may be grounded and strongly attract the lightning electrical charge.

Avoid wire fences, metal clotheslines, and metal

Miami Vice performance boat appearing at Edmonton show

You've seen it on the award-winning Miami Vice television series and now you can see it at the Edmonton Boat and Sportsmen's Show.

It's the high powered $200,000 offshore performance boat used by star Don Johnson in the action-packed television thriller.

This eye-catching 38-foot-long craft will be on display at the Boat and Sportsmen's Show, March 8-12 at the Northlands Coliseum.

"It's one of the original three boats acquired for the Miami Vice series," said racing expert Bill Jennings, who is bringing the boat to Edmonton. He will be on hand at the show to answer questions and conduct tours of the boat.

With twin 370-horsepower MerCruiser engines, the Miami Vice boat can attain a speed of more than 65 miles per hour. (A racing version of the same boat is capable of going 110 miles an hour.)

Don Johnson has become so fascinated with the boat that he recently signed to drive with Wellcraft/MerCruiser and is already a successful competitor on the offshore racing circuit.

The Miami Vice boat will be displayed in Hall B in the AgriCom. The Boat and Sportsmen's Show will open to the public from 5 p.m. to 10 p.m. on Wednesday and Thursday, March 8 and 9; from noon to 10 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, March 10 and 11, and from noon to 6 p.m. on Sunday, March 12.

Street improvement program gets $75 million

Alberta Transportation and Utilities Minister Al "Boomer" Adair has announced a $75 million Streets Improvement Program for Alberta towns, villages and summer villages.

The new six-year program, beginning April 1, is designed to assist Alberta's 280 eligible municipalities with the continuing development of safe and efficient transportation systems.

"This new program represents a 50-per cent increase over the current Streets Assistance Program," said Adair. The Government of Alberta will fund 75 per cent of the cost of approved construction projects and 50 per cent of approved engineering costs, the same cost-sharing percentage as the previous program. The program is being announced now to provide these municipalities with the necessary lead time to advance engineering design and engage in long-term, cost-effective planning. The program contains a new element called the

Transportation Minister Al Adair

Community Safe Streets Program which will assist towns, villages and summer villages in providing safety-related facilities such as traffic control devices, pedestrian signals and lighting improvements. The goal of this new initiative is to provide a special incentive to make streets safer for Alberta's rural communities.

Adair said: "The work resulting from this program will be performed by the private sector and is expected to provide approximately 700 jobs per year. The increased funding will allow the majority of Alberta towns, villages and summer villages to complete the paving of their major street systems. In other words, by providing jobs and safer streets, the program will benefit thousands of Albertans."

The minister added: "By improving the quality of life in our rural communities, families will stay together and our young people will find opportunities at home, thereby strengthening rural Alberta."

Clippers lose in Ponoka tourney

The Drayton Valley Midget Clippers had "a bad start to a bad weekend" said coach Glenn Johnson.

After travelling to Ponoka for an 8 a.m. game in a weekend tournament, their opposition, Wabamun, didn't have a goalie nor enough players to make a game.

A scrimmage was played with the Clippers winning 14-0 which put them into the 'A' division.

The next game, played at 9 p.m. that night, resulted in an 8-5 loss to Killam. Jason Kipling scored two goals for the Clippers and one goal each was taken by Lenard Johnson, Adrian Angus and Jason Woods.

They played a good game which was tied 5-5 up until the last 10 minutes of the third period when Killam took over.

In their third and final game Sunday they played in the 'C' division against Olds.

The Clippers took a few goals against in the first but came back to tie going into the second period from a two-goal deficit.

The score mid-way through the second reached 6-5 for Olds, where it stayed for the final half of the game.

Daylon Pfannmuller recorded two goals and Lenard Johnson, Serge Lacoste and Cory Dusterhoft each came away with one goal.

Paving tenders called

The Alberta government will call tenders for a major paving project in the Alder Flats area, Minister of Transportation Al Adair announced last Friday.

The project involves the final paving on Highway 22 from the junction of Highway 53 for 28.7 kilometres to south of the junction on Highway 13, east of Alder Flats.

Market report

On offer for Wednesday, Feb. 22, were 482 head of cattle and calves, and 89 head of other livestock.

Good stock steer calves were $105 to $125 per 100, topping at $130 per 100.

Good stock heifer calves were $90 to $110, with some higher.

Good 600 to 900 lb steers were $85 to $105 per 100, with some higher.

Good 500 to 900 lb heifers were $80 to $102 per 100, with some higher.

Good butcher cows were $50 to $54 per 100, with young cows to $65 per 100.

Older stock cows were $600 to $800 per head.

Light feeder hogs were $15 to $25 per head.

MD will fix roads

The municipal district plans to spend between $700,000 and $750,000 this summer on seven road projects.

Five of the projects are new construction. The other two are re-construction.

Most of the road projects will provide better access for families living in the area.

Some stripping and preparation work will be done this winter. The remaining part of the work is scheduled to start in April.

Richard Tatro, director of public works for the MD says

Game down to penalty shots

There was lots of action at the Drayton Valley arena last weekend where the Drayton Valley Commercial Oilmen's Hockey Tournament faced off in the year-end finals.

The 'A' division came down to penalty shots with Rocky they will utilize all their own equipment plus hire out what they don't have.

On the subject of local contractors, Tatro says he hasn't heard from as many as he thought.

"Usually people make the assumption that when you are new, there will be work," Tatro says.

Tatro welcomes all contractors in the area to contact him. "I'd like to keep a list of available equipment in case of an emergency," he added.

Penny parade

Students of Eldorado elementary school spent an hour Feb. 24 lining up 61,653 pennies ($616.53) they had brought to school as a fund-raising project for Jaime Gilbert. Susan Walsh and a few other parents organized the event.

Producers get stabilization funds

Yellowhead MP Joe Clark says the federal and provincial governments and national producer associations have reached agreement on key amendments to the national tripartite plans for beef cattle, hogs and sheep.

The National Tripartite Price Stabilization Program, established in 1986, guarantees participating producers income stabilization payments on a quarterly basis when the North American market price is lower than the set price. Producers and both levels of government contribute equally to the fund.

More than $22 million will be paid to about 7,000 slaughter and feeder cattle producers for the fourth quarter of 1988. Slaughter cattle are eligible for a per head payment of $87.92. The amount is determined by the difference between the support price of $85.99 per hundredweight and the national average market price of $78.46 per hundredweight multiplied by an average slaughter weight of 1,168 pounds. Out-of-pocket costs of production have increased by more than $3 per hundredweight since the second quarter of 1988. This was largely due to feed cost increases of 27 per cent.

Feeder cattle producers are eligible for a per head payment of $38.56. This is based on the difference between the support price of $92.27 per hundredweight and the national average market price of $87.44 per hundredweight multiplied by an average weight of 795 pounds. This is the second quarterly tripartite payment to feeder cattle producers.

Clark says the new amendments reflect a milestone in federal-provincial-industry cooperation which will help level the playing field for red meat producers across the country.

Pressurized gases alarm firefighters

Two pressurized bottles containing highly flammable substances caught fire Feb. 22 but were extinguished prior to an explosion.

Fire Chief Sheldon Fuson said a five-man crew responded to a call from a workshop southwest of town when bottles containing oxygen and acetylene were knocked over and escaping fumes ignited.

Fuson said there was a potential for serious damage and possible injury but the crew was able to minimize loss to only $200.

Oil Notes

Encor Energy Corp., a former subsidiary of TransCanada PipeLines Ltd., has sold its six per cent share of the Caroline natural gas field for $70 million.

Atcor Ltd. takes over half of Encor's former interest while Numac Oil and Gas Ltd. picks up 48 per cent. A two per cent minority interest in the project goes to Gibson Petroleum Co.

Believe it or not, but the Petroleum Resources Communication Foundation claims that Albertans enjoy the cheapest gas in Canada.

However, prices are expected to climb higher after Imperial Oil takes over Texaco.

They played at Rocky Mountain House against MD extremely active in area

The Municipal District of Brzeau has been extremely busy since its inception in July of last year.

Figures presented at the last council meeting showed the MD had spent $1,838,148 on public works, recreation/parks, furniture, office equipment and building improvements.

Public works accounted for the biggest expense, totalling $1,334,048. This included $630,400 for three graders and $231,075 for a D7 Crawler tractor.

The new Drayton-Sports Centre received $312,105 from the MD that all but ate up the recreation/parks costs to date.

The bill for office equipment was $88,268. This includes $42,949 for computer hardware and $23,365 for a telephone system upgrade.

The furniture tab of $46,743 included $20,391 to cover the cost of executive offices' furniture and $11,834 to buy furniture for the director's office.

The amount spent on office renovations was $55,281.

Alder Flats

teams from Hanna, Caroline and Spruce View.

Congratulations to Audrey and Eric Watson who celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary Feb. 26 with about 40 family and friends at the Alder Flats Legion hall.

Alder Flats seniors whiled away a few happy hours in Drayton Valley Feb. 17. An enjoyable lunch was followed by some friendly games of floor curling and carpet bowling. Those not so energetic simply sat and visited.

Seven members visited Rocky Mountain House Feb. 20 and their team returned home with second-place crystal vases won in a floor curling tourney.

Twenty-three calls were received by the Alder Flats/Buck Lake Fire Department last year.

Of those calls, 21 were fires (mainly grass), one was a false alarm, three vehicle fires and a fault in the school alarm system.

At their annual general meeting, Feb. 15, John Cooney retained his job of fire chief, Gordon Borle as deputy chief and several new directors were insured.

The department would like to increase the present strength from 18 to 26 and would be delighted to receive calls from any would-be firemen (or ladies).

Students' Union plans ski trip

By Mae Tryon
Welcome home to some local people who have been vacationing in California — Charlie, Judy, Tracy and Bryan Martin and Earl, Esther, Trevor and Bobby Lawson. They report a wonderful six days in Disneyland and area. They also toured Hollywood and MGM studios and enjoyed a one-day tour of Tijuana, Mexico.

Richard, Delene, Tina and Tressa Van Ember and Olga Van Ember were in Disneyland at the same time. They all report that California recorded the coldest temperatures in 100 years.

The community extends its sympathy to the Lachance family on the recent death of Emy Lachance of Lindale.

Get well wishes to Linda Floden and Clara Parish.

Tricia Martin who attends Lakeland College, and Red

Berrymoor

Deer College student Donna Tryon were recent visitors to the area.

The Lindale school basketball teams have been very busy lately. The girls have won one and lost two games. The boys have won two and lost two. They are preparing for the March 11 tourney to be held at St. Anthony's. Good luck to both teams.

The Lindale Students' Union has organized some ski trips to Rabbit Hill for March 3, 10 and 17. The bus leaves at 2:15 p.m. and arrives back at the school about 9:30 p.m. For more information phone the Lindale school.

The next meeting of the Lindale School Association will be held March 7, 7 p.m. at the school library.

Donald and Isobel Martin recently visited friends in Calgary.

St Anthony students raise $600 for Jaime Gilbert's treatment

Students and teachers at St. Anthony's school raised almost $600 for Jaime Gilbert.

In a basketball tournament between various levels of teachers and students Feb. 20, $589 was gathered through donations.

Principal Ron Williams expects the figure to be a little higher once all pledges have been honored.

TO PLACE YOUR CLASSIFIED AD

Tips on how to run an effective Classified Ad:

* Be specific.

Yes, put in your asking price. Mention the facts that pertain to the item. The more useful information you give the reader, the more serious buyers you'll talk to...and the less you'll be annoyed by people calling to ask you the questions you should have answered in your ad.

* Stay away from abbreviations.

Unless they're universally known, abbreviations of words or phrases can be confusing, or worse, misconstrued. Talk to our classified ad-visor when composing your ad to be sure the abbreviations you use are acceptable.

* Specify hours with your phone number.

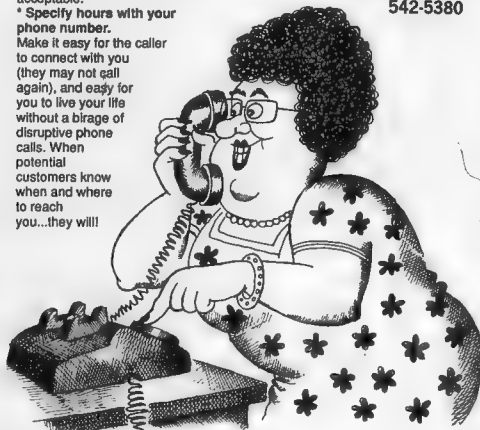

Make it easy for the caller to connect with you (they may not call again), and easy for you to live your life without a bludge of disruptive phone calls. When potential customers know when and where to reach you...they will!

* Place your ad in the right spot.

Depending upon what you have to sell, it may do to 'target' your ad toward a certain buyer. Say you have a car that's old, oversized and ugly, but still runs well. You could place it under 'Autos', but think about what else it can do. Try placing it under the column Recreation Vehicles and try selling it as a good car to pull vacation vehicles. (Today's smaller cars aren't built for this type of work). You might end up selling it faster for the price you want!

Collecting fever

By Wendy Carruthers
People don't usually start out collecting things, it just seems to happen.

You buy some kind of souvenir, then on your next trip you see another similar item...then your family and friends see that you have two.

It starts that way, with almost every collection and Willard Bogart's collection is no different.

"You start and you just keep adding on," says Bogart.

Now his unusual bottle collection numbers well past 700.

There are beer bottles of every size and description lining his huge lounge.

A Red Labie lager from a Red Deer brewery, worth $25; unlabeled bottles with the names imprinted right on the glass.

There isn't even space for all of his collection in one room. His basement has more shelves lining the walls, and another room in the back of his house is filled.

His collection doesn't stop at beer bottles though. There are liquor bottles from almost every corner of the globe.

From Hawaii there is a small liqueur bottle in the shape of a pineapple, genuine tequila from Mexico and, one of Bogart's favorites, a white stallion bottle.

The start of his massive collection began after he bought an entire gathering from another Alberta collector. This added to the few he had and started the irreversible cycle.

Bogart has only been collecting bottles for 10 years now. By his own admission he still has many he would like to acquire.

He doesn't quite have all the provinces of Canada, nor all the beer producing countries in the world.

One look at the walls full of bottles would convince you he had though.

One of his most expensive acquisitions is not a bottle, but a wine decanter, of sorts.

A huge ceramic crock, made to look like a wine barrel, including a tap cost Bogart $105. He got it at an auction, where he says another similar decanter sold for $700.

A collector sent an agent to the auction for that, but, Bogart said, he wouldn't go as far as paying that much.

Flea markets, garage sales, auctions, and other collectors are where Bogart makes most of his finds. Some are also gifts and still others are purchased on travels.

It seems collecting is in Bogart's blood — he also has a small collection of metal belt buckles displayed in the lounge, and horses in a sitting room.

His wife, Alice, seems to have caught the collecting fever as well.

She has a collection of over 100 teaspoons from different parts of the globe. The beginnings of an elephant collection sits on a display table buried among the bottles.

It is not clear whose they are but there is also a collection of platters lining the top shelf of the cupboards in the kitchen.

Collections can be a gratifying experience.

Although Willard is nonchalant about all his bottles, he fiercely wants the missing ones.

Alice remembers too when a couple of glass shelves holding the bottles collapsed and they lost quite a few items.

Since then, heavy wooden shelving holds up the bottles.

Nobody can guess what the Bogarts will start collecting next, or how long it will take to satisfy Willard that he has all he can get.

One has to wonder why he doesn't seem to have the Labatts' 1988 Winter Olympic edition or the Royal brew commemorating Prince Charles and Princess Diana's wedding.

The collection extends to Avon bottles.

Due to extreme cold temperatures and plenty of snow this winter, the owners of this tree house near Buck Lake have undoubtedly put off any plans to sleep under the stars.

IMPULSE BUY?

Come February, a lot of people scramble to get an RRSP before the deadline date. They may not be doing themselves any favours by impulse buying.

It's important to choose the proper type of RRSP to meet your long term needs and save taxes.

If you'd like to talk about retirement planning, or financial planning in general, I can help.

Agriculture funding approved

The Alberta government has announced additional funding of $13.4 million for a number of major agricultural programs.

The programs involved are the Alberta Farm Fuel Distribution Allowance, the Alberta Crow Benefit Offset Program, the Alberta Farm Water Assistance Program and the Alberta Hail and Crop Insurance Corporation.

Premier Getty stated, "These initiatives have been of vital importance to our farmers and ranchers in reducing their input costs and in protecting them from disastrous losses in the face of poor weather. We are committed to strengthening the economy of rural Alberta through the continued funding of these programs."

Provincial Treasurer Dick Johnston stated that $4.55 million would be added to the

Peter Elzinga

Farm Fuel Distribution Allowance budget to cover greater than fuel purchases by farmers.

Agriculture Minister Peter Elzinga said that an additional $2 million would go toward the Crow Benefit Offset Program, which pays farmers $13 per tonne on feed grain used within the province. The minister also noted that an extra $3million would be spent on the Farm Water Supplies Assistant Program to meet the demands of an outstanding farmer response to the initiative. The program provided grants to farmers to assist the construction of stockwatering dams and dugouts.

Associate Agriculture Minister Shirley Gripps stated that a total of $3.85 million would be added to the budget of the Alberta Hail and Crop Insurance Corporation to cover the unanticipated increased cost of administration related to the 1988 drought, increased enrolment in the individual coverage option program and increased participation in the high-risk subsidy plan.

Challenging year for library

Did you know...

That, during the eleven months of operation in 1988, your library...registered 1,597 memberships of which 559 were adults, 253 were students, 785 joined as family members? Of these members, 66 per cent were residents of Drayton Valley and 34 per cent were from the surrounding rural areas.

It generated $5,100 in membership revenues and received $1,575 in fines from late returns?

Members borrowed a total of 55,442 items which averages 10.5 loans for every man, woman and child residing in the town? 6,696 audiotapes were signed out and patrons borrowed 3,170 magazines. In-library use of materials accounted for 1,897 items.

Your library handled 11,122 inter-library loan and resource sharing transactions.

It processed 924 books and tapes on site.

It has increased its book stock to 14,793 titles at adult, junior and children's levels.

The library audiotape collection now includes 1,222 titles, adult books on tape (for general use) and has 66

Major paving scheduled

The government of Alberta will call for tenders for a major paving project in the Pigeon Lake area, Minister of Transportation and Utilities Al "Bomber" Adair and Drayton Valley MLA Shirley Cripps have announced.

The project involves pavement overlay on Secondary Road 771 from the junction of Highway 13 north for 9.3 kilometres to the junction of the access road to Pigeon Lake Provincial Park.

"I'm pleased to see this route being rehabilitated," said Cripps. "All traffic will benefit from the smoother, more comfortable surface resulting from this project. I recognize the importance of maintaining structural strength and therefore endorse the rehabilitation program to preserve the paved road network in the province."

Adair added, "This project is scheduled for completion during the upcoming construction season and will be combined with a similar paving project on Highway 13 in the Ma-Me-O Beach area. The Government of Alberta, through its Pavement Rehabilitation Program, is working hard to keep the province's paved surfaces in top shape."

Reform Party plans strategy

The next federal election may be four years away, but Yellowhead Reform Party members have already started to plan strategy, gauging from the tone of their recent annual meeting in Edson.

Only a short time was spent reviewing the past federal election's results, in which the Reform Party gathered 28 per cent of the popular vote; almost entirely at the expense of incumbent Tory MP, Joe Clark, whose vote declined substantially.

Reform Party of Canada leader, and Yellowhead candidate, Preston Manning, feels that had the election not been fought on the sole issue of free trade, the Reform Party had a reasonable chance of defeating Clark. Now, the Party must work hard to ensure that its message is spread loud and often in Yellowhead over the next four years.

Much of the annual meeting was spent discussing the pros and cons to Manning's idea of a Constituents' Assembly. But when all was said and done, it was unanimously decided to hold a Constituents' Assembly in Barrhead, on the April 8 weekend. Whether it will run for one or two days has been left up to the executive, but the concept earned a sound endorsement. If a provincial election is held in March or April as some constituents expect, the assembly will be deferred to May or June.

Manning says that by far the greatest concern of Yellowhead voters has to do with what they view as, "lack of representation," from MP Clark.

Therefore, he is proposing the concept of a Constituents' Assembly. He described it as a mini-parliament, which would meet once or twice a year in various constituency locales, with the purpose of giving the MP some direction on constituents' views before calling of Parliament. It would also establish a list of the 10 most important local problems, which constituents want their MP to address.

"Joe doesn't like this concept because it shows the contrast between his views and the views of the people in his riding," says Manning. "There are a lot of issues in which he has contrasting views from those in his riding."

A number of area mothers attended the Winter Games at the Entwistle school, Wednesday, Feb. 8.

A large number of people attended funeral services at the Entwistle hall Friday, Feb. 10, for Cliff Black. Sympathy thoughts are with Rod and Donna and family.

Ralph and Violet Telford of Edmonton attended the funeral of their brother-in-law and visited friends and relatives.

Stella Petrie of Dawson Creek, B.C. also came for her brother-in-law's funeral and stayed with her sister, Laura Tuffy for a few days.

Ollie Town of Brooks and some of his family also came to pay their respects and visited. All went to visit their mother, Vida Town, at the lodge in Drayton Valley.

Terrilyn Wolosyn hosted a sleep-over party for young friends Feb. 10, in honor of her sixth birthday.

Bernie and Olive Town attended the Progressive Conservative nomination forum held at the Rec Plex, where Tom Thurber of Winfield came out the winner.

Agnes Spuehler and her granddaughter Tanya, along with Debbie Town and her daughter Sandra travelled to Westlock on Friday, Feb. 10, for figure skating competitions.

News items are welcome—please phone me at 727-2312.

Don't be like Charlie Brown

By Sister Camille Campbell
Pastoral Assistant
St. Anthony's Parish

I have never given up the comic strip Peanuts. Charlie Brown, a born loser, gets himself into situations that are typical to most of us.

One of the characters of this comic strip is a red-haired girl for whom Charlie spends a great deal of time trying to figure out a way to meet. Charlie knows that this meeting will never take place. Why? He is afraid of rejection and failure. Charlie is weighed down with a huge negative self-image. Because of this he lacks the courage to take the first step across the schoolyard and the encounter with the girl of his life will never take place.

The word encounter means "to go out and to meet". We must go out of ourselves and to meet the other — whether the other is another person or God. This is rather difficult for some people to do. So difficult that some people will go through their life with acquaintances but no deep relationships.

As well, some people may be experts in the study of scripture or theology and have no personal love for God. For these people the problem of relationships remains a problem. They get no closer to people or to God than Charlie Brown does to the red-haired girl.

Some people, I'll be bold enough to write, perhaps most people, divide their life into compartments of work, play, sleep and travel. If religion gets a share, it's a very small percentage.

The greatest happiness in our life involves other people. There's a meeting or an encounter with other people or God. This meeting or encounter with God or others is called religion. Looking at religion as an encounter is the most natural experience in the world.

As long as we see religion as a system, something to be studied, you may learn a lot about God, but in all probability you won't fall in love with God. You'll be like Charlie Brown — on the fringe. You must take that step and go out of yourself and encounter God and others.

When we fall in love, we want to know all — about the other — when we fall in love with God, the law is the same. We need religion, it helps us to relate to a personal God, to know and love the One who knows and loves us first.

There are a thousand different ways to make friends but they all follow the same pattern. Two people meet each other, let down their defenses and begin to build a relationship. That's how we meet friends and that's how we meet God. He's there waiting for us to notice and respond. God is not forceful when it comes to love — we make the first step to open ourselves up to this loving God. How do we do this? We chat with God — in other words, we pray.

The next question is: How do we pray? God is not a complicated God. We complicate God. It's easy to pray. Be yourself. Use your own words, or simpler still, use no words at all. Just think together with God about your life — that's praying.

The above are just some of the ways to pray. Choose a way that suits you. Above all, take the risk, begin and don't be like Charlie Brown and take refuge in daydreams.

Hearing Tests Set For Drayton Valley

Electronic hearing tests will be conducted at the Beltone Service Centre in the Drayton Valley Medical Clinic, 5205 - 50 Street, on Thursday, March 9, 1989, from 10:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

Anyone who has trouble hearing is welcome to have the tests. Many people with hearing problems don't need hearing aids, but only a modern hearing test like the one now being offered by Beltone can really tell for sure. Mrs. Marie Alexander, Hearing Aid Practitioner, will be conducting the tests.

Early detection is important! Obtain the satisfaction and peace of mind that comes with knowing you've taken a big step forward on the road to better hearing.

SERVICE AND REPAIRS FOR ALL MAKES OF HEARING AIDS WITH OVER 3,300 BELTONE HEARING AID CENTRES ACROSS CANADA AND THE U.S.I.

If you can't make it in, call us at BELTONE/ANDERSON HEARING AID SERVICE LTD., 10608 - 124 Street, Edmonton. Toll Free 1-800-282-3912 or 488-5893 when in Edmonton. Serving the hard of hearing in this area for over 20 years.

Help for unplanned pregnancies

Probably the most stressful situation in which a woman can find herself is that of an unplanned pregnancy.

Forced with what is likely to be the most difficult decision of her life, she is typically frightened, uninformed, often without resources — and alone.

A boyfriend or husband may feel unprepared for fatherhood. There may be no money. A baby might interfere with a promising education or career. Giving a baby up for adoption may seem unbearably painful.

So, often abortion seems to be the only way to end the crisis — this suggestion and pressure may come from parents, a boyfriend, counsellor or a doctor. She has to make a choice during a time when the hormonal changes in her body make her feel ambivalent, vulnerable and emotionally stressed. (These feelings occur even in planned pregnancies.)

If she decides to keep her baby, there are agencies such as Birthright (488-0681) and the Pregnancy Counselling Centre (424-2525) which will offer her support, both emotional and financial, during the pregnancy and Interagency presents... after, friendship and confidentiality.

If she decides to give her baby up for adoption, she can help choose the adoptive parents (Private Adoptions 482-1685, 464-7214), and be kept informed of the baby's growth and welfare.

Adoptive parents are well-screened and there are thousands waiting for a baby. She has the consolation of giving her baby the gift of life, and the adoptive couple, the gift of intense joy.

If she decides to have an abortion, she will not be informed as to the status of her developing fetus, the true nature of the abortion, or the many physical and psychological complications of abortion. In fact, the procedure destroys health and life, both that of the mother and that of her baby.

What a woman with an unexpected pregnancy does not need are accusations, lectures, or simplistic advice to "solve your problem and get on with life." What she needs is compassion and practical help, perhaps extending for weeks, months or even years.

Let's talk about Your Future

It's people with quality training who have the edge in the job market. And when it comes to quality training, it's the Northern Alberta Institute of Technology (NAIT) that has the edge.

Applications are now being accepted for the fall of 1989.

- more than 60 one- and two-year programs in the career fields of engineering technology, business and computers, health and medical sciences, resource technologies, and applied arts.
- a practical, hands-on approach to training that is geared to employer needs.
- a learning environment that features small classes, superior instruction, modern facilities, and a varied range of student services and activities.

All NAIT programs have enrolment quotas — early application is recommended.

You can learn about NAIT's programs and services in a variety of ways: calendars, information seminars, Open House (March 10 and 11), appointments with counsellors, visits to programs, and others. For additional information, write or visit the Registrar's Office (NAIT, 11782 - 108 Street, Edmonton, Alberta T5G 2R1) or phone

Real image never portrayed in beer commercials

By Belinda Atkinson

Some people reach bottom before they realize there is a problem in their lives.

Susan (not her real name) reached that point 16 months ago when she was diagnosed with jaundice and told she'd be dead within three months unless she stopped drinking.

"I was drinking as soon as I got up in the morning," she admitted. "I quit eating, just as long as I had booze."

The once independent mother of three had become a pitiful sight. She lost 30 to 40 pounds, her liver temporarily seized, she lost her driver's licence, was close to losing her daughter and didn't even remember the trip to the hospital.

Susan spent the first seven days in the hospital vomiting.

"I had the dry heaves sometimes for hours on end," she said.

To picture a woman stripped of dignity is not pretty. To imagine her no longer able to understand what is going on or control body functions is sad.

But these are the real images of an alcoholic in the advanced stages near death; the images never portrayed in beer commercials or talked about at parties.

"I had to make up my mind that I was going to do something about it. I was an alcoholic and even now if I took a drink I'd probably go back to where I was."

Susan has not touched alcohol since her hospital stay. She went through an extensive rehabilitation program, avoids drinking establishments and no longer associates with old drinking buddies.

Unfortunately, she knows one drink could erase 16 months of hard work and possibly destroy her life.

"Even now if I got upset, the first thing that pops into my mind is a drink," she says. "But that just piles on the problem more."

Right now, Susan is holding her own. She has a responsible job, is dating a non-drinker and says she feels "100 per cent better" than she has in many years.

Part of her success, she says, is the attitude that one cannot dwell on the past.

"I've apologized for what I thought I've done wrong but I can't undo it," she reasons.

"You just have to put it behind you."

Susan's last association with alcohol began when she was 12 or 13 years old.

"It was available so I drank it," she said.

Coming from a small community where there were few recreational facilities, Susan said dances and get-togethers always involved alcohol.

"You just have to put it behind you."

However, she never progressed beyond social drinking until she and her husband of nine years separated and she took a job as a bartender.

"I started drinking while I was working and after work and on days off," she said.

"I just hung around with the group that hung around in the bar."

During that time, Susan met and moved in with a man who eventually began to beat her. The mixture of alcohol and family violence escalated to the point where she knew she had to get away.

"I brought a carload of clothes and kids and moved in with my mother," she said.

With a small home, active children and Susan's drinking, the arrangement didn't work out. She found a home of her own, a job and a semi-stable life until her two eldest children moved out of the house.

"They were all grown up. I just had a daughter at home and I figured...well, I'll just start drinking."

At one point, Susan remembers drinking until she passed out and then pouring another when she woke up.

It was then that the RCMP stepped in and Susan began receiving help.

Alberta Alcohol and Drug Abuse Commission counsellor Allan Aubry has seen Susan go from an invalid to a happy individual.

He hopes she will remain sober but says many reformed alcoholics return to the bottle.

Aubry says alcoholism strikes many in Drayton Valley because of the nature of the town's industry.

"There are a lot of transients and temporary residents and not a lot of support," he explains.

"People work long hours and they're out at camps with nothing to do. That lifestyle — oil and logging — tends to promote alcoholism."

If drinking is getting in the way of your work or personal life, Aubry says you may not be an alcoholic but you need help.

If you have any questions contact AADAC at 542-5569.

Are you an alcoholic?

To test yourself, answer the following questions as honestly as you can.

7. Are you extremely sensitive to other people's opinions, particularly as they may relate to your personal life?		☐	☐	7. Are you still convinced that you can "run your own ship" in life, without outside help, advice?		☐	☐
8. Do you drink because you are shy with other people?		☐	☐	8. Have you lost faith?		☐	☐
9. Do you at times have feelings that people are watching you, following you, or talking about you?		☐	☐	9. Are you dishonest with yourself?		☐	☐
10. Would you rather drink alone?		☐	☐	10. Have you lost self-respect?		☐	☐

If you have answered YES to a majority of questions in any section, you ARE an alcoholic.

Delicious decisions every day?

By Chris Kreiser
"What shall I make for supper tonight?"

Every day it's the same question. You'd think it would get easier — but quite the contrary.

I took having to make supper for granted until Oprah Winfrey commented on one of her shows that she couldn't imagine having to make supper 365 times a year.

Do I really do it that many times? And are there really some women who don't?

More than 300 meals a year...some days it feels like more. What an imagination! Such creativity.

Of course, after hearing Oprah I couldn't decide what to make that night so I asked Rebecca what we should have (creativity to the wind, I'm grasping at straws at this point).

Her eyes lit up with anticipation: "Do I get to decide?"

For a brief moment I visualize a few of her suggestions — just thinking of her favorite foods is scary enough...Cheeze Whiz and jam toast, pancakes smothered in Cheeze Whiz and syrup, or potatoes and ketchup... What have I done! Tactfully I explained, "Well, mommy would like to hear your suggestions, but I'll decide for sure."

Coffee with Chris

Not to be deterred she countered earnestly with, "Please, mommy, don't cook peas." I laughed. "Okay, you've got a deal. No peas."

The decision has to be made. Usually I decide at 5 p.m. (Working under pressure and deadlines adds excitement.)

Hey, wait a minute. Pizza doesn't have peas.

Make that 364 times a year I make supper.

BRTA presents new visitors' guide

Bringing new dollars into the communities through area promotion is a main objective of the Battle River Tourist Association (BRTA).

Association members were advised at a recent meeting of BRTA held in Warburg, that in total over 60 days will be spent during the next few months promoting Battle River Country at trade and sportsmen's shows in Alberta and Saskatchewan. Members were exceptionally pleased with the new 52-page Battle River Country Visitors' Guide just off the press.

The brochure which is a totally new concept and size, incorporates information on area events, museums, fishing, golfing, camping and information on every municipality in Battle River Country. Another brand new publication is a golfing brochure which details a golf tour in Battle River Country. Golfers participating in the tour can qualify to win substantial cash prizes.

The third new publication is a lure brochure which tells the story of Battle River Country through full-colored photographs on one side and a fun-filled animated area Zone 5 map on the reverse. In total the association will have some 110,000 brochures for free distribution. The three brochures, distributed at trade shows, in tourist information centres throughout Alberta and in numerous other ways are major selling tools for the Battle River Country area known as Tourist Zone 5.

Another brand new promotional item is a 15-foot static display, complete with some 50 colorful photographs. The new display will be used at numerous trade shows; at conferences and other functions throughout Alberta. The Battle River Tourist Association uses, in conjunction with the static display, an action-packed nine-minute video depicting beautiful Battle River Country and the many things there are to see and do.

Anyone wishing a copy of the new publications is invited to stop by the Association office located at 6036-48 Avenue, Camrose, or write to Box 1515, Camrose, Alberta, T4V 1X4.

Guest editorial

Why now?

Now that the Getty government has called a provincial election, one has to wonder why. That government is far from the end of its term, and there are no pressing issues that need a mandate from the people. Notwithstanding the constant ministerial hubbub, the PCs seem to be following a course one would expect them to. A mandate for election of a Senate seat? The so-called Triple E Senate was born in the West. An impending sales tax scrap? Every Albertan down to the lowly gopher doesn't want a sales tax. How about a federal-provincial battle over rising interest rates? Surely there are many Albertans willing to put the lid on Toronto's economy to the detriment of their own economy. Another bogus reason.

Hundreds of millions of government-guaranteed dollars for the forest industry are out; they never bothered to ask the people about that one, and likely a great many Albertans support the diversification that money will bring.

The family-drug program issue has cropped up as a reason, but no right-thinking Albertan could deny drugs are a problem that needs attention.

If the Thries have a reason for an election, they should tell the citizens who are going to have to suffer through the circus.

Braun portable hair dryer found unsafe

Braun Canada Ltd., and Canadian Standards Association are warning owners of hand-held, portable hair dryers marked "Silencia Pro-1600" on the side of the dryer and "Type 4591" on the back of the handle to stop using them immediately because they pose a potential fire hazard. Testing by Braun and CSA revealed that if the hair dryer's heat switch is left in the low setting and the fan switch is positioned between "0" and "1", it is possible that one heating element on without the fan operating. If the hair dryer is left in the nozzle-down position, the unit may overheat and catch fire.

In the interest of safety, Braun Canada Ltd. is voluntarily recalling the hair dryers and is requesting owners to return the Braun "Silencia Pro-1600, Type 4591" hair dryer to the following address for replacement: Braun

Consumer Exchange, P. O. Box 5049, Paris, Ontario, N3L 3W5.

A replacement hair dryer will be sent by mail to the return address provided. For further information, contact: manager, Customer Service, Braun Canada Ltd., (416) 670-9234.

Tolerance a two-sided coin

By Glen Lonie
DV Alliance Church
 With the recent publicity surrounding the Salman Rushdie affair, we as Canadians are reminded of the blessing that is ours to live in a tolerant society.

It is the Canadian way to compromise and negotiate rather than fight. Tolerance means we respect others and even "love our enemies." Thank God we have that Christian heritage.

However, tolerance is a coin that has two sides. The downside of tolerance is indiscrimination — or the ability to accurately perceive differences.

My concern is that in certain areas we have become tolerant to the point of being unwilling or unable to make critical evaluations. Nowhere is this more serious than in the area of our religious life.

For example, it is popular to say: "I accept all religions." (Christianity, Hinduism, Buddhism, Islam, etc.) Yet such a statement is really only a subtle way of saying: "I do not accept or understand any religious system."

Religion is not a matter of preference, as if one were selecting a flavor of ice cream. It is fundamentally a matter of truth. Truth is based on facts and facts are very uncompromising things.

Another frequently heard statement is: "It does not matter what you believe as long as you are sincere." What nonsense!

It reminds me of the account of the man who shot and killed what he thought to be a burglar in his house one night. Tragically, the "burglar" was his own son who had been sleep-walking. The man was sincere alright — He was sincerely wrong!

That fact is it does matter what we believe. Whether we believe in God, whether we accept Jesus Christ as our Lord and Saviour — these are matters that have profound personal and eternal implications.

In many ways the Christian faith is profoundly intolerable. Now that does not mean a Christian should act in a rude or unkind way. In fact, he should act just the opposite. But it does mean he must not give unqualified acceptance of any or all ideas.

Family violence 'joke' in poor taste

The Alberta Press Council has censured a Drumheller weekly newspaper for its handling of a "joke" on family violence.

The issue arose in November 1988, when the publisher of The Drumheller Mail wrote: "Did you know that November is Family Violence Prevention Month, so don't beat up on your old lady in November — wait for December or January."

More than a month after the complaints arose, Drumheller Mail executives conceded, in letters forwarded to the Press Council, that the offending comment "should not have appeared" in print, and "may have been in bad taste." But no similar acknowledgement has been published in The Drumheller Mail.

The Press Council found that The Drumheller Mail could and should have resolved the issue with a prompt and gracious acknowledgement of error.

The so-called joke prompted 10 written complaints, some of which were printed the next week. The Drumheller Mail defended the comment by saying it was part of a "fun column, written in jest," which "has made more people happy than upset."

The Alberta Press Council faulted the newspaper on three levels: for allowing the offensive comment into print in the first place; for its unprofessional approach in dealing with the complaints; and for its unfortunate portrayal of the scope and nature of family violence.

The Press Council judged the initial commentary offensive, inappropriate and devoid of humor.

PC election mandate is 'what people want'

By Belinda Atkinson
Conservative candidate Thomas Thurber is confident his party's election mandate is what the people want.

"People I've spoken with have had a very positive response," he said last week while campaigning.

Premier Getty has gone under fire in recent weeks for what opposition parties call an "issueless campaign" in order to escape repercussions from the Code Enquiry and impending federal sales tax.

Thurber said there may be truth to these claims but admitted he is not in the position to say for sure.

"Being a new person on the block, I'm not privy to cabinet thinking," he said.

Thurber said Getty's programs will provide lasting benefits. Funding such as the $400 million allotted to seniors and $4,000 government-insured loans to first-time home buyers are investments into the province's future, he said.

"We'll certainly get our share and I'll try and make sure of that," he said of the money promised to keep seniors out of institutions.

Thurber also said Getty's extensive road paving plan will help area farmers by creating a more stable infrastructure.

While $1.4 to $2.05 billion

Tom Thurber
PC candidate will be needed over the next 10 years to pave all of the province's secondary roads (8,303 km unpaved), Thurber is confident upgrading to the Drayton Valley to Lodgepole highway will not be sacrificed.

As promised earlier in the campaign, Thurber said the Lodgepole road is his top priority if elected M.L.A. He said upgrading should begin in a year's time if all goes smoothly.

"It's going to take some lobbying work on the part of the various councils. I can't do this alone," he admitted. "It takes coordination and cooperation."

Thurber also hopes to diversify the constituency's farming industry with spinoff operations such as slaughter houses and processing plants.

He said he will continue to look into these areas.

NDP in 'opportune time'

By Sue Kenyon

Lynne Martin candidate for NDP says this is her second time running as candidate for the party and she feels more confident about this election than the last time she ran.

"This is a real opportune time for the NDP, no one can predict who will win," she says.

Martin says she feels more strongly about women's issues and rural and small town issues than any other.

"I am interested in pay equity and day care and I want to become involved in improving life for women," she said in an interview.

She feels that rural and small town Albertans are being cheated, that they are not getting the services they are paying for.

"They simply are not getting fair service. There is no crisis line, no shelter for battered women and yet, they are still paying taxes for them," she says.

Martin ran for the NDP in the 1982 election. Among the things she says are different about this time around is that she feels she has matured a lot. She also says the public seems more interested in this campaign than in 1982.

Martin says that since she has been campaigning she has heard a lot of concerns from the public on environmental issues and why the election was called in the first place.

Traditionally Drayton Valley has not been a stronghold for the NDP party but she hopes to change that during this election. Martin (Cont'd on page 2)

'Bear' wants to be involved

By Frank Ryan

Garth 'Bear' Werschler didn't have any intention of running for office in the March 20 provincial election.

"I've never run for anything. My life was always too busy," he says.

When he went to a Tom Thurber meeting in Drayton Valley, he says he wasn't looking to run. "I just wanted to get involved," the Alder Flats area resident admits.

"I got nothing out of him. I came away empty. I thought that nothing will change, it will be the same," Werschler recalls.

The next day he called Phil Gibeau, who has carried the Liberal banner in past years. They met, and Werschler decided to take some memberships and see what he could do.

Werschler's job was compounded by the fact that a Liberal membership had (Cont'd on page 2)

Cripps cleaning out

By Wendy Carruthers
MLA Shirley Cripps is busy cleaning out 10 years of files and issues from her office at the Legislature Building in Edmonton.

"I've forgotten some of the issues that I worked on," she says.

With the early election call on March 20, Cripps will not have the time to complete some of the issues she was working on.

She did say that most of the paperwork for projects has been completed and she has faith in the next Drayton Valley representative to see them through.

Cripps is unhappy that she won't see the completion of the Shangri-La Lodge renovations as an MLA.

"We've been working on that for years," she said. "I'm glad to see construction started, (before her term of office is up)."

Cripps said she would have liked the Buck Lake park project to be given the final okay before vacating her office, but feels the major part of the paperwork is done.

"I'm happy that the new MD and the Twin Rivers school board is set up."

Now Cripps says she will relax for the spring. She will be out of her office as soon as the premier appoints a new cabinet.

May and June have always seen Cripps in Edmonton, working hard for the constituency.

"This May and June I'm going to enjoy," she said. "Alberta is the place to be in spring."

Cripps also stressed the importance of voting in the provincial election.

"The biggest problem of democracy is apathy," Cripps said, urging all eligible voters to the polls.

"People come to this country to have the right to vote," she said, emphasizing the importance of using that vote.

never been sold in the Buck Lake/Alder Flats area.

"It was tough sledding at first. But, in five days I sold 82 memberships."

"That told me to run," he says with a smile.

After campaigning for two weeks, Werschler says, "People have been just fantastic. I've had unbelievable reception."

The native of Virden, Manitoba who later lived in Calgary before moving to the Alder Flats area eight years ago, says he is selling 'effective opposition'.

Prior to making the decision to seek the Liberal nomination and now contest the vacant seat in the Drayton Valley/Devon constituency, Werschler has spent many busy years in the entertainment business.

Twenty-five to be exact.

Hal-A-Va Enterprises, his own company, subcontract entertainment through Brimstone Productions.

Werschler handled all the live production for the athletes, coaches and officials in the Olympic Village at last year's Calgary Olympics.

He has also done every one of Anne Murray's productions in Western Canada in the past 18 years.

After 20 years in Calgary Werschler decided it was time to fulfill a dream.

"I always had a dream of living in the country," he admits.

He sent out over 100 letters to chambers seeking information. After a long search, Bear, his wife Betty and two children decided on the Alder Flats area.

"We found the place by accident. My wife fell in love with the house and I fell in love with the land."

"I'm a fighter. A real down-to-earth guy. I'm proud of what I'm doing," says the 40-year-old Liberal hopeful.

Advance polls

If you're not going to be around to vote in next Monday's provincial election...don't worry.

Advance polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. this Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Provincial Building in Drayton Valley, the Whitfield Rec Centre in Riverview School in Devon and the Thorby Rec Complex.

The polls will be open from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on March 20. A complete list of the polling stations were listed in the Feb. 28 paper.

For further information call the returning officer at 542-5607 or 542-5696.

Apprenticing electrician strong on women says she gets most of her support from Calmar and in 1986, the NDP won two polls in Devon.

Martin lives in Lindale with her husband and she is apprenticing to be an electrician but says if she should win the election, those plans would be put on hold.

"Being MLA is a full-time job so I plan to put my other plans on hold for a while," she says.

Martin has been a member of the NDP party since she was 14. Her mother was very political and she says she basically grew up with the party.

As for her future goals, she says simply, "I'd like to be MLA for the Drayton Valley constituency."

Belt-tightening?

The PC candidate seems to be starting his own cost-cutting by utilizing the federal election PC signs.

Truck collision fatality

A Calgary man was killed in a two-vehicle accident near Cynthia last Friday night.

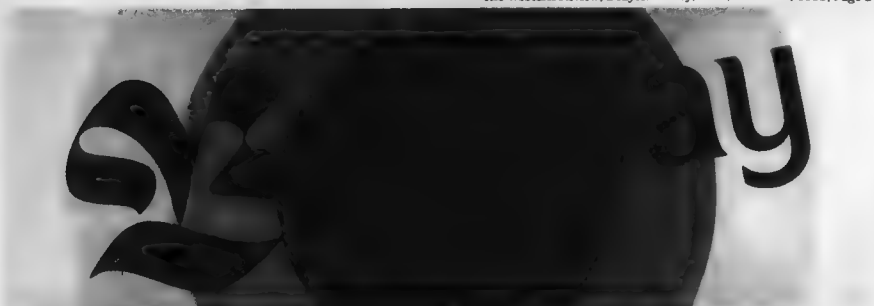

Wes John Poole, 30, was killed when his truck collided with a loaded logging truck 13 km north and seven km west of Cynthia.

Both vehicles were driving in opposite directions and rounding a curve in the road at the time of the accident.

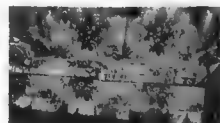

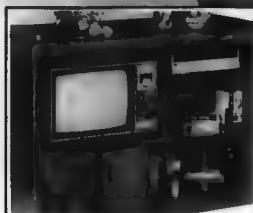

The road was snow covered and icy at the time. Poole was employed with Alvin's Oilfield Supply Co. of Calgary.

The driver of the logging truck, a 62-year-old Edson man, was not injured.

The Drayton Valley RCMP are continuing their investigation.

Opinions

Decisions left to rural voters on March 20

Albertans will trudge off to the polls next Monday in another provincial election.

Like so many elections, there doesn't seem to be any real issues this time around:

That alone won't help the turnout.

Besides that, local voters haven't exactly been turning out in droves for any sort of election.

To compound matters, Drayton Valley and Devon, the two biggest centres in the constituency, aren't directly represented by any of the candidates.

That leaves the decision making up to the rural voters.

With PC candidate Tom Thurber coming out of the Winfield area, Liberal hopeful Grant Werschler representing Alder Flats and Lynne Martin, the NDP candidate originating from the Lindale area...we might well be looking at the best rural turnout in years.

To make matters even worse, if that's possible, is the fact no organized election forum has been held.

As a result the three candidates haven't had the exposure they often get and as a result, the voters are not aware of their stand on local and area issues.

Despite all the doom and gloom that this provincial election has generated...get out and vote on March 20.

Another success story

Another very successful ice show has been held. And, for their countless hours of preparation, the Drayton Valley Figure Skating Club are to be commended.

It's always nice to see the arena filled for this annual event.

Thankfully, not everyone goes home at 5 o'clock

Car problems are a headache at the best of times.

Especially in the winter, when we're having another one of our cold days and all the mechanics had gone home for the day.

That was the scene a couple of weeks ago for one of our employees.

It wasn't until 5:30 p.m. or thereabouts, that some major problems with her car were discovered.

The first call for help went out to the Alberta Motor Association rep in town. A couple of frustrating calls later resulted in no AMA tow truck in town. However, their Edmonton office said they'd send a tow truck out from the city.

Frantically, phone calls were made to numerous service stations in town who might have a mechanic on duty. No luck.

Frankly Speaking

By Frank Ryan

They had all gone home.

With time running out, a call was made to a local automotive outlet to see if they just happened to stock a block heater. They didn't.

At 5:56 p.m. a call was made to Brian's Automotive Specialists (the local Bumper to Bumper outlet).

At last — success. They had the necessary parts.

With seconds to spare before they closed at 6 p.m., the frustrated motorist had the parts.

The next job was to get them installed.

Later that evening (about 8 p.m.) that task started. It turned out the damages were not as bad as first feared.

As a result, a couple of necessary parts were missing.

Thanks to Brian's Automotive, the otherwise stranded motorist was told, that if they needed anything else, just to bang on the front door and they would be glad to help.

As we understand it, situations like this are all too frequent in Drayton Valley.

This sounds like a problem the chamber should be investigating.

Fire fighters enjoy extra space

By Belinda Atkinson
Volunteer firefighters now have space to change into their gear without removing any trucks from the fire hall, says local Fire Chief Sheldon Fuson.

After 20 years of going without most amenities, such as a shower (sacrificed seven years ago for extra storage space), Fuson says he's ecstatic to be in the new administrative building.

"Before, we had to utilize every inch of space. The training films were up in the window sill," he said, comparing the 3,000-square-foot fire hall to the new, 9,000-square-foot wing of the administrative building.

"The guys think it's great." Aside from luxuries such as two showers, lockers and two washrooms, Sheldon says the added space will allow them to reduce response time.

"Whenever the rescue truck was needed, we were slightly delayed because we had to get it from the Shell station," he said.

If firefighters needed the backup pumper, he said they had to first get a key and then pick up the truck from the Public Works building.

All four trucks are now stored in the building and Fuson says there's still extra space for storage, changing, training and equipment.

"There's even room to accommodate a rural water tanker should one ever be acquired," he said.

Fuson said the addition of automatic doors will also reduce response time.

"Before, we'd have to open the doors manually and then someone would hop off the truck and close them before we could go to the fire," he said.

A second floor will be used to store equipment such as water packs which are primarily used for brush fires in spring and summer.

Before the move, Fuson said all firefighting equipment was carried to calls throughout the year.

And instead of repairing hoses and various apparatus on the training room table, Fuson says the 22 volunteers will now be able to use two workroom areas specifically designed for this purpose.

"This room will have sinks. Before we washed equipment in the bathroom sink or a pail," he said.

Since the ceiling is much higher, Fuson says firefighters will also be able to recoil hoses indoors.

"(The ceiling) wasn't high enough to allow the guys on top (of the trucks) before," he said.

Outside, the 30-car parking lot will act as a perfect area

The new fire hall has "more than enough" space.

for training manoeuvres, according to the chief.

Before the move, he said driving practice would often tie up traffic and the first seven or eight men to a call would take the only parking spaces.

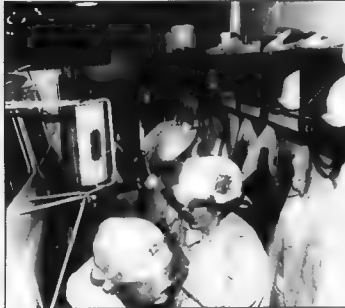

"The others would have to drive around and try and find a space to park," he said.

Fuson eventually hopes to recruit five or six new men. He has a few applications now but says he'd like to wait until he's settled in the building and train all new crew members together.

Overall, Fuson says the new facility brings up to par the quality of most modern fire halls in existence.

"We were about 20 years behind the times whereas this facility puts us right up with the times," he says.

Firefighters had to remove this truck before changing in the old hall.

Special needs students should be integrated in class

By Sue Kenyon
One of the strongest suggestions from members of the Edmonton Regional Office presenting their review of services for special needs students is that those students should be integrated into normal classroom settings rather than be taken out for special instruction.

Merle Ursuliak and Carl Simonson, education consultants of the Edmonton Regional office were in Drayton Valley last week to present their findings of their special education review. They presented it to the Twin Rivers school board and to a number of parents and teachers attending the meeting.

Since the Twin Rivers school division took over last September there has been concern that special education services would be reduced. For this reason the review was done and is made up of 109 questionnaires completed by parents, 44 parent interviews as well as interviews with school principals, special education teachers, and teachers' aides.

Integration of special needs students into the normal classroom setting was a strong suggestion from Simonson and Ursuliak.

Ursuliak said the board should adopt a philosophy for special education needs which would be the direction of all classes and programs in the school.

"Integration to the greatest extent possible (or mainstreaming) is encouraged. However, it is acknowledged that some children will need a more protected and segregated environment," Ursuliak read from the report.

The report also suggests hiring a full-time speech therapist, a full-time psychologist, and a part-time reading clinician.

The county of Leduc has hired one psychologist for 3,800 students, in Parkland they have two for 10,000 students. It would appear there is enough work here for one full-time psychologist," Simonson said.

A speech therapist is needed due to a higher-than-normal incidence of children with speech problems. Drayton Valley was served by two therapists, one working seven-tenths of the time from Parkland and another working two-tenths of the time from Leduc.

The steering committee sees now a need for these services in the school district to be continued. Simonson told the board that some jurisdictions negotiate with the health unit to share therapists. He said there is some discrepancy as a therapist hired through the health unit works on a 12-month contract whereas one hired through the school board works on a nine-month contract.

There were some concerns from parents the special education programs were not meeting the curriculum needs, Ursuliak said. For this reason, the report also suggests developing a system of evaluation of special education programs.

Another major concern from parents when asked, was transportation for special needs students. This concern has grown as there will be a child using a wheelchair who will be attending school here in September of this year. Other concerns voiced by parents involving transportation is the possible bullying that goes on between students, especially involving special needs students.

"I don't think it is fair to assume that bus drivers know how to handle this problem. We are suggesting that drivers go through some kind of orientation," Ursuliak said.

Local PC candidate involved in lawsuit

By Belinda Atkinson

A Breton doctor launched a defamation suit against Conservative candidate Tom Thurber Jan. 13 for a letter he claims caused personal and professional suffering.

The Drayton Valley constituency candidate "questioned the professional competence, ethics and practices" of Dr. Sukhdev S. Gill in a letter, according to a statement of claim filed with the Edmonton Court of Queen's Bench.

The doctor is seeking $20,000 in damages, punitive or exemplary damages and legal costs to compensate for the letter dated Oct. 30, 1987.

Thurber, then chairman of the Breton Hospital Board, claims in a sworn affidavit Dec. 20 the letter was intended to be confidential and was dealt with in an in-camera meeting.

According to a community newspaper, Thurber referred to the defamation suit as "scandalous, frivolous and vexatious," in a notice of motion filed to stop the suit.

New industrial park in Poplar Ridge

The municipal district has cleared the way for a new industrial park in Poplar Ridge.

Last Thursday council gave its blessing to the park being planned by Bohdan Urchysyn.

It will be built southwest of the mobile home park, which Urchysyn also owns.

A final decision on the proposal is expected to be reached at an MD meeting on March 20.

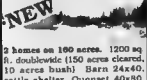

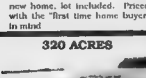

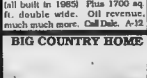

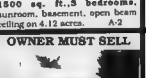

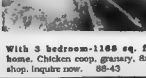

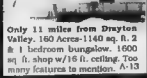

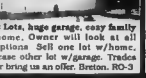

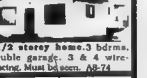

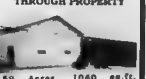

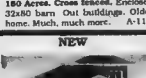

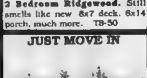

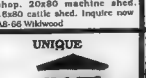

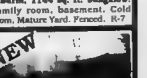

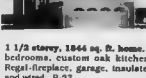

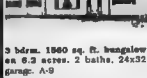

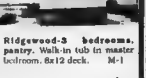

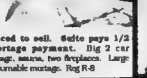

Multi-million dollar project for Red Deer

The city of Red Deer is excited about the multi-million dollar expansion of Union Carbide's Prentiss plant because it's likely to trigger a boom for housing and the service industry. However, it could result in a shortage of rental accommodation.

Union Carbide is expanding its ethylene glycol plant about 20 km northeast of Red Deer to increase production from 230,000 to 360,000 tonnes a year.

Local hotels and motels don't need more competition

Most local hotels and motels are forced to turn potential guests away during high season but the situation does not warrant another facility, say spokesmen.

"If I thought there was a need for another hotel I would be doing something about it," said Black Gold owner Gaudhar Schmidt.

During the winter months when truckers are hauling and crushing gravel for roads and oil and seismic activity is at its peak, Schmidt says hotels have a hard time keeping up.

"We've got a full house most of the time," he says, adding his establishment has a better-than-average occupancy rate.

Bookasoris theme

The Drayton Valley Municipal Library is running a full children's program which ends in March but Lois Peterson says they are planning another one for April and May.

A summer program being planned now will have the theme, "Be a Bookasoris".

Peterson says this children's program will be open to all library members.

The program taking place now, that is full with 15 members, will be beginning again in April.

Westwinds manager Jim Bloemen says Drayton Valley could utilize 30 to 40 more rooms during the winter high season but reasons an additional facility is unnecessary when averaging the entire year.

"If we were in a town where there were a lot of conventions during high season then we might need another, but right now when we're at capacity (the number of rooms available) is just about right," he said.

The manager of the Drayton Valley Hotel says high season can be deceiving and an additional hotel or motel would not be needed.

"The situation is very good, very competitive," Roy Rogers says. "You have your real good hotels right on down to your working class."

Disaster funds

Yellowhead MP Joe Clark was pleased to learn Drayton Valley received funding under the Regional Response Improvement program for a communications system to help coordinate appropriate agencies and warn people in the event of a disaster.

Emergency Preparedness Canada funded 50 per cent of the project cost of $6,321 and the province funded 25 per cent.

Disaster services coordinator Manny Deol says the regional communication systems will be installed immediately and will link Drayton Valley with Breton, Lodgepole, Tomahawk, Entwistle, the new MD of Brazeau and ID 14.

Deol gave an example of how the new system will work if a tornado warning comes into effect in the future: A loud siren will alert citizens to turn on their radios for instructions while upgraded radio communications between emergency teams will coordinate response efforts.

Rogers worked as a hotel consultant for the past 20 years and says overbuilding, which is the case in Rocky Mountain House, creates a bad situation for every establishment.

While it may seem necessary for another hotel during the winter, Rogers says Drayton Valley would be overbuilt if construction were to go ahead.

Constructive reading time

These local boys were more attracted by building blocks last week than books at the library.

Building permits top five-year record

Building permits got off to a slow start in Drayton Valley for the first month of 1989. But they certainly picked up last month.

In fact the $2.3 million recorded in February is the best total for that month in five years.

The biggest project started last month in town was the new Shangi-La Lodge valued at $2,070,000.

Another $221,000 went toward residential construction.

Permits in February of '88 totalled $140,000 after recording $247,000 in '87 and $503,000 in '86.

Four years ago the town had a drastic February as they didn't record any permits.

The $2,310,500 for last month coupled with January's $95,000 gives the town a two-month total of $2,405,500.

Edmonton Eskimo posters at Easter Seal auction

The annual Easter Seal auction, sponsored by Century 21 will be held this Saturday at the Derrick Mall.

Tineta Couturier and Leanne Winder will get things rolling at 1 p.m. with some good old local entertainment.

The auction, being handled by Danny Thompson, will start at 2 o'clock.

The Edmonton Eskimo football club will be represented at the auction. And two Eskimo season tickets for the 1989 season will be auctioned off.

A draw will also be made for three autographed Eskimo posters and the winners will have their pictures taken with the players.

Some of the other items donated by local merchants to be auctioned off include clocks, gift certificates, an industrial sewing machine, glassware, lawn mower, small appliances and sporting goods.

Couch potatoes celebrate

If you're a cable TV subscriber you had better check the number of channels on your set.

If you're one of those couch potatoes who enjoys watching the tube, you better.

QCTV is gearing up for an April promotion that will see six new channels.

These include TSN, Much Music, Arts and Entertainment, Nashville, 24-hour country music and a news channel.

Some homes in Drayton Valley have already been hooked into the extra channels.

According to a QCTV spokesman, the month-long promotion will be free. If viewers like what they see, the channels will be added to their bill beginning in May.

So...you better check out all those channels on your television set.

Recreation

One hundred and ten children and adults signed up for the first annual Kinmen's skate-a-thon last weekend from minor hockey, Evergreen elementary, men's recreational hockey and St. Anthony school.

First skate-a-thon a $7,000 success for local Kinsmen

They were jumping for joy after raising almost $7,000 in 100 minutes.

Children could hardly wait to hit the ice and raise money, not only for the Kinmen but also for their own clubs since the local group was offering 40 per cent of the funds to participants' teams and schools.

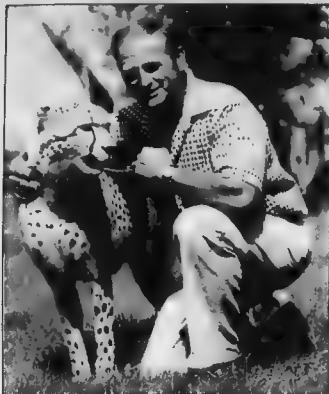

Most children turned the event into a party, some trying ballet, some racing with friends and still others, including the boys above, attempting roller derby on ice.

Young and old alike were out to help the Drayton Valley Kinsmen Club.

"Hey, that's cheating!"

Al Oeming and Tawana
...getting the message across

'Man of the North', cheetah will visit local schools

Al Oeming, or "Man of the North" as he is sometimes called will be bringing Tawana, his cheetah to Drayton Valley on March 14 to present Lives of the Hunted.

Oeming, a world-renowned zoologist and Tawana have been travelling about two months out of the year to educate people on the dangers of extinction of the cheetah and other animals.

Oeming said in an earlier interview that visiting schools, hospitals and senior citizen homes is the only way of getting that message across. He feels strongly that animals such as the cheetah must be conserved.

"For a lot of young people, it may be their first and last look at a live cheetah," he said.

Cheetahs everywhere are falling prey to poachers and Oeming says that a live one has not been seen in India since 1954. There are a few scattered in parts of east and south Africa.

Oeming is the director of Polar Park, east of Edmonton and animals there such as leopards, himalayan tahr, siberian tigers, polar bears and caribou and six cheetahs live in an environment where their natural living conditions have been simulated.

Oeming has brought four cheetahs out of Africa recently and he says it costs $25,000 to bring back each live cheetah. He raises funds by selling playing cards, postcards and caps everywhere he appears.

During his appearances Oeming teaches the audience about the cheetah.

Oeming has been traveling for over 28 years to get his message across. The only thing that changes is his travelling companion. He has buried many travelling companions, all named Tawana, on his famous wildlife preserve.

Outstanding athletes nominations wanted

The recreation department is looking for outstanding athletic achievement.

If you know of an individual or team that has enjoyed some athletic success this past year, they are eligible for an annual award given out by the town.

A copy of the nomination form appeared in last week's paper or they can be picked up at the town office.

You don't have a lot of time to get these nominations in as the deadline is March 22.

Evelyn Haight, 62, swims 30 lengths in 30 minutes.

Berrymoor resident keeps fit in the pool

A life-long Berrymoor resident proved last month that staying fit doesn't have to be limited to the young.

Evelyn Haight, 62, swam 30 laps of the local pool in 30 minutes. Impressed? Considering the woman suffered a mild stroke three years ago, you should be.

Haight did the laps to help raise money for the Ontario Heart and Stroke Foundation as part of a national campaign to celebrate heart month.

After canvassing local businesses and friends for support, she managed to raise $623 toward the February funding drive.

"I really didn't go out of my way to canvass," she said. "I just asked people to help whenever I was in town doing something."

Haight has been an avid swimmer all her life and says she often takes four or five dips per day in her own backyard pool when the temperature gets too high to tend her garden. When not backstroking or paddling, Haight says she's busy playing baseball or bowling with a local seniors' league.

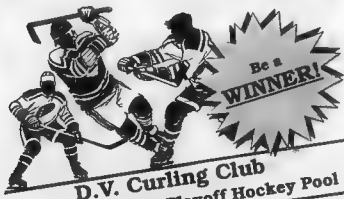

According to an instructor at the pool, approximately 20 area swimmers took part in the funding drive over the month of February. The local contribution to this Ontario campaign was $1,171, she said.

Donations adding up

Berrymoor added its support to the Jaime Gilbert fund Feb. 26 with a $2,212 donation from a benefit team roping competition.

The competition featured open team roping, pro/novice team roping, steer dogging and barrel racing with all entry fees and private donations going to support Jaime's treatment in California.

Total donations have now reached $15,462 from deposits made to the Entwistle Credit Union, Drayton Valley Bank of Montreal and The Western Review. Further donations can be dropped off at these three locations.

Hot tub performs 'near miracles'

By Belinda Atkinson
They come on a medicinal pilgrimage from a distant land.

The sick, the curious, the aged, they all flock to Drayton Valley hoping the warm, bubbling torrents in Park Valley Pool's hot tub will cure their ailments and give them new zest for life.

This may sound overstated and, in fact, the senior citizens from Evansburg who travel to the pool once a week probably make the longest trip.

Nevertheless, the hot tub is no longer thought of as just a nice way to relax.

Lynette Anderson, fitness and swimming instructor, says she has seen near miracles when injured people nurse themselves back to health in the hot tub.

"One man came in a wheelchair the first time. Now he leaves without a cane," she said.

"One lady has asthma and she says she can breathe much easier after she's been in the hot tub."

Anderson says broken and sprained limbs seem to heal quicker, arthritis sufferers feel less pain and those recovering from operations get back on their feet sooner than they would with regular therapy.

Anderson attributes these miracles to the water's constant temperature, 83 degrees (F), and the pulsating jets that massage the injured area gently.

But the sick are not the only ones who can benefit from the local hot tub.

Anderson recommends loosening the muscles in the hot tub before a cardiovascular workout in the pool. Once the muscles have been relaxed, she says the risk of muscle strain is significantly reduced.

For those who would rather relax in the hot tub after a swim, Anderson says the warm water will still prevent post-exercise pain.

However, Anderson issues a warning to a few high-risk groups.

People with heart conditions or high blood pressure, she says, should avoid the hot water because it tends to increase the heart rate and could cause dizziness.

Pregnant women are also asked to stay away from the hot water. Anderson says the temperature could cause a miscarriage, but most commonly promotes viral infections which could harm an unborn child.

The Park Valley Pool boasts the only public hot tub in the area but Anderson says lack of competition has not made attendants lax in upkeep.

"By standards, we only have to clean the hot tub once a month but every second week we empty the water and scrub the walls," she said, adding the water is changed every week.

The hot tub may still be thought of as a relaxing bath, but with more miracles occurring daily, one might soon find himself filling a prescription at the local swimming pool.

Fitness and swimming instructor Lynette Anderson talks to children while their mothers work out at aquacize.

New strategy plan

Help is on the way for Drayton Valley Fish and Game officer Fred Kreiser.

LeRoy Fjordbotten, minister of Forestry, Lands and Wildlife has announced some new conservation strategy plan for the province.

One item that will benefit Kreiser and the area is additional staff.

A press release states that additional district staff will be put in place over a three-year period.

Tom Smith, director of program support for the fish and wildlife division says the plan announced by the minister is still being fine tuned.

Smith told The Western Review a schedule as to when the Drayton Valley office would be changed to a full-time position and another officer with his own vehicle would be added, hadn't been confirmed.

Kreiser is hoping to get another officer on staff this year.

Hines not concerned about slow start

Clayton Hines is not at all worried about his slow start on the Canadian Professional Rodeo Association circuit.

The latest saddle bronc standings indicate the Drayton Valley cowboy, who led the standings all last season, isn't in the top five.

"I haven't done anything in the first three rodeos of the year," he admits.

And, he doesn't appear to be very concerned.

The saddle bronc standings show Mel Coleman in first place with earnings of Derrick Boxing Club fight in provincials

Three members of the Derrick Boxing Club participated in the provincials last weekend in Edmonton.

Shelby Hardin won the gold by default when they couldn't get an opponent for him.

Carl Schmidt lost out to a Medicine Hat boxer in the final of his weight class after he won his opening bout against a Slave Lake fighter.

And, Shawn Hardin lost his first fight to a boxer from the Cougar club.

With the provincials out of the way the Derrick Boxing Club is busy preparing to host a card April 2.

On schedule

The new $750,000 leisure centre at Birchwood Village Greens (Lindale) is right on schedule. It should be ready for the upcoming golf season. The new centre will include an indoor pool.

Boys/girls teams win division title

Both boys and girls teams from H.W. Pickup won the Twins Rivers school division basketball titles last Saturday.

The boys downed St. Anthony's 63-18 in the final after going undefeated in the preliminary round.

The girls followed a similar script as they defeated a stubborn Breton squad 26-19 in the final after going undefeated in the round-robin.

The H.W. Huskies opened the one-day tourney with a 47-16 win over St. A's, then defeated Lindale 59-15 and Breton 63-12.

St. A's made their way into the boys final with a 31-20 win over Breton and a 33-32 squeaker over Lindale.

In the only other boys match Breton edged Lindale 36-29.

The H.W. girls also displayed outstanding talent in their games as they defeated St. A's 39-7 in their opener. And followed that up with a 42-12 win over Lindale and 27-19 over Breton in their first match.

Prior to losing to H.W. the Breton girls defeated Lindale 23-9 and blanked St. A's 24-0.

The only other girls game saw Lindale chalk up a 21-6 win over St. A's.

Cynthia Mackenzie had an outstanding tournament for the H.W. girls...leading them on the scoreboard in each game.

Good cheering sections were on hand for most of the games. The boys played in the St. A's gym and the girls played at H.W.

Hockey tournament

Rose's Well Clippers will host a midget hockey tournament this weekend at the Drayton Sports Centre.

Clippers manager George Bergquist hopes to have eight teams for the tourney which will start Friday night and extend through Saturday and Sunday.

Killam, Josephburg, Thorby, Hinton and Wetaskiwin and the Clippers are the only teams confirmed as of press time.

Lions rodeo will go in June

The Lions are hoping for a break from the weatherman for their annual rodeo.

Last year it rained throughout the parade and the two-day rodeo had been cancelled.

This year's event will be held June 8-11.

Rodeo chairman Lorne St. Clair says plans are underway for a bigger and better fireworks display on June 10.

The first two days of the rodeo weekend will centre around the midway with the rodeo and wagon races on the last two days. The parade will be held on the Saturday and a heavy horse pull is also being planned again.

A queen contest will also be held this year in conjunction with the rodeo.

The annual rodeo dance will be held in the Drayton Sports Centre.

Names were incorrect

The order of names under a recent eight-ender recorded at the Tomahawk curling rink were incorrect.

Members of the rink, left to right, were Bruce Cormie, Val Goertz, Lucas Piskunowicz and skip Ralph Goertz.

Elks bantam teams capture second spot

The Drayton Valley Elks had to settle for second place at a weekend bantam 'B' tournament in Leduc.

Darryl Winter got the Elks off to an impressive start with a five-goal outburst on their way to a 9-4 win over Leduc. Rob Bowers, Craig Pinkowski, Todd Janzen and Cory Schiller had single goals.

Shelby Jorgensen, Ken Plante and Winter all collected a pair of goals in the Elks' second win, a 7-3 decision over Camrose.

But in the final against Devon, they came out on the short end of an 11-6 score. Pinkowski led the way with a pair of goals. Blake Kirkwood, Schiller and Winter added singles.

Assault conviction nets man two years

A man who held Breton RCMP and a liquor store manager at bay with a butcher knife in a Feb. 8 incident has been sentenced to two years in jail.

Harry Wickstrom, 45, of Breton was originally charged with armed robbery but pleaded guilty to a lesser charge of assault with a weapon, after being remanded in custody for psychiatric examination.

The two-year sentence was handed down recently in Leduc provincial court.

Judge T. M. Tomyn also ordered a two-year probation term to follow the jail sentence.

Ski hill finally busy

The Drayton Valley ski hill was extremely busy last Wednesday.

President Dale Rendflesh estimates 250 people took advantage of the club's free ski night.

It was so busy some people waited over an hour for rentals.

In all, 96 rentals were handled by two volunteers.

"We only had five sets of skis left," Rendflesh says.

He chalked the big crowd up to the free night promotion and the excellent promotion the schools gave the event.

The idea of the promotion was to get people thinking about the local ski hill. Rendflesh says it certainly did that.

Women who have abortions are 'walking time bombs'

By Belinda Atkinson

Women who've been through abortions are walking time bombs until they release the anxiety of killing an unborn child, says a crisis counsellor.

Many women go through years of denial and block out the incident entirely while some tell friends they are still pregnant, Beverly Hadland told 230 pro-life supporters March 8 at a tea sponsored by the local Respect for Life association.

The Ontario counsellor compared her clients to Vietnam veterans who can't distinguish reality from memories of war.

"Some women even have babies to make up for the ones they lost."

Unless they receive post-abortion counselling, she said women who fall under the high risk group — those pressured into the procedure, opposed to abortion, of a strong religious affiliation, little emotional support — may distort the truth for the rest of their lives.

"A lot of women have hallucinations, hear voices and haven't nightmares," said Hadland, who gave up two children to abortion in her youth.

Hadland said denial is common as well as abortion connectors — colors, faces, sounds, smells or dates linking the abortion to daily life.

She said women often become angered by connectors or deny the experience for years unless they take certain steps to put the abortion behind them.

Hadland said some women even have babies to make up for the one they lost. Often, though, she said they feel guilty for loving the new baby instead of the first and give less love than they should.

Hadland said a woman must grieve the death of her baby. She asks that her client give a name to the dead child and perform a quiet, personal funeral.

Only when a woman can forgive herself and others who might have influenced the situation can the woman go on to live a full life, she said.

Hadland also discussed the ambivalence a woman goes through in the early stages of pregnancy. Hormonal changes in the body, she says, often cause a woman to seek abortion but she usually feels differently once the emotional rollercoaster subsides.

Earlier in the day, Hadland spoke to local students and suggested abstinence from sex until marriage. This lifestyle, she said, is the only true protection against the devastating effects of abortion.

Crisis counsellor Beverly Hadland addresses pro-life supporters at the Legion.

Veterinarian issues calving alert for area

By Belinda Atkinson
A local veterinarian has issued an alert to farmers in the brink of an abnormally high number of calving complications.

Twin Rivers school board mixed over annexation

Members of the Twin Rivers school board have mixed feelings about annexation.

If the proposed annexation (Alder Flats) takes place acting superintendent George Bevan says it will definitely be a benefit.

However, he says, "It won't be a gift without problems."

One of the board's biggest concern will be over the condition of the Alder Flats school.

Jim Reid, the board's vice-chairman says he would feel better if Twin Rivers was taking over both the Alder Flats and Buck Lake schools, instead of just one.

Bevan says parents in the Alder Flats area want to meet with the board.

The superintendent feels annexation of the Alder Flats area is at least a year off.

At the present time the bid is before the Local Authorities board.

"I can't see us opposing it," Bevan added.

Low hog prices to rise

Hog prices that sagged with record production in 1988 will push up as both Canadian and American producers reduce their herds, says an Alberta Agricultural market analyst.

Last year was the fifth-straight year of post-war hog production high says Ron Gietz, livestock analyst in his quarterly market situation and outlook report. Alberta production increased by 12 per cent. Several times in 1988, single-week marketing records of live slaughter hogs were set. However, Canadian output is expected to be two per cent less in 1989 than it was during last year's record performance.

"Price improvements will be gradual, not dramatic," says Gietz. He adds the improved prices will likely be only for the first three-quarters of 1989 before a normal seasonal price drop in the fall.

Gietz says several factors could affect net returns to Alberta hog producers in 1989. "The most important variable for Alberta hog producers in 1989 will be the barley crop and resulting feed prices. Sharply reduced feed costs could bring a return to profitability in the current year," he says.

For more details or a copy of the quarterly report, contact Ron Gietz in Edmonton at 427-5376.

presentation.

"About 50 per cent of calves have been breech," he said. "I don't know why. It's really unusual. Normally, 10 to 15 per cent is high."

Lookmanjee has never seen this phenomenon before but guesses the cold winter temperatures might be a contributing factor.

Instead of dropping into the birthing canal front legs and head first, in a normal birth, he says many calves appear pelvis first.

Since the cow does not experience normal labor sensations, he says they stop pushing and end labor.

In four cases, Lookmanjee said the problem was not detected until four or five days after labor and the cows were poisoned by their dead calves.

"My advice is go and check right away," he said, if a cow shows any of the following symptoms: large mammary glands, relaxed ligament, swollen genitalia, tail up, clear mucoid discharge or signs of restlessness.

While the local veterinarian has had 15 to 18 cases of breech, other area doctors say calving season is progressing normally.

Karen Josephson, a doctor with the Rocky Rapids Veterinary Service, says none of the three doctors has experienced an abnormal number of breeches or backwards presentation.

"Our calving season is right on par," she said.

Veterinarians from Edson and Stony Plain also say calving season has been normal.

Rodeo contest nets over $2,000

By Shelli Carson

On Feb. 26 a benefit team roping competition was held for Jaime Gilbert at the Thompson arena in Berrymoor.

Jaime is in need of a special operation she can only get in California. Since her insurance will only cover a percentage of the total cost, the community decided to get together and help her family out.

Since many people in this area are rodeo-oriented the open and pro/novice team roping with steer dogging and barrel racing was organized. All entry fees were donated to the Jaime Gilbert fund.

Special thanks are extended to the Thompsons for the use of their arena and steers and Kenny Powell for his efforts in obtaining cash donations from a variety of people and businesses — too numerous to mention.

Entwistle Concrete issued a $100 challenge in three events, provided the following goals were met by one of the participants: $100 to anyone completing a run in five seconds or less in steer dogging; $100 to the team roping for any team who completed their run in nine seconds or less and $100 to the barrel racing to anyone running the barrels in 15 seconds or less. All three goals were met — Reg Pomeranz, steer dogging, 4.69; Dave Jabs and Don Anderson, team roping, 8.51 and Iris Tuftin, barrels, 14.98.

Breton

At the end of the day, the results were: Bob Johnson and Bill Thompson were first in team roping; Dave Jabs and Don Anderson won the pro/novice team roping; Reg Pomeranz won the steer dogging and Iris Tuftin was first in barrel racing.

In all it was a great day and $2,312 was raised for Jaime.

Judy Meade of Breton skipped her team to first place victory over the Evelyn Pederson rink at the Buck Lake ladies' bonspiel.

In the second event, the Janice Boist rink took first place, defeating the Nearly 400 people attended funeral services at the Buck Lake hall Tuesday, March 7 for Larry Franklin Stewart who died March 3.

Alberta ballet educates youngsters

By Sue Kenyon
Students at Eldorado elementary school had the opportunity to see professional ballet recently when the Alberta Ballet company did two performances for the school.

Each performance was made up of two acts. First, children watched some exercises and learned some technical terms of ballet and then the dancers performed the second act of Coppelia for the youngsters.

"The entire performance today is a school demonstration to educate children about ballet," Sharon Randolph Krantz, the ballet mistress of the company said.

Krantz said that the dancers come from all over. Some are from Alberta but one is from Peru, another from Switzerland and others come from British Columbia, Quebec and the United States.

Krantz said the dancers have had a very busy year. They have completed a tour of British Columbia, have toured all over Alberta and they have just completed a tour of seven cities in B.C., Alberta and Saskatchewan.

This school, in the past has brought in about four cultural performances a year but because of losing their grant through cutbacks, Howard Pearson, principal of Eldorado school does not think the school will be bringing in as many.

"This production was subsidized so it cost us $400, where usually it probably would have cost $2,300. It is still cheaper than busing kids to Edmonton to see the performances and this way the whole school has a chance of seeing them," Pearson said.

Alberta Ballet demonstrates some of their exercises.

PC relief scheme promising

Real estate firms in Drayton Valley report that Premier Don Getty's interest relief scheme is having its effects locally.

Dale Luc, sales representative at Farmer's and Ranchers says he's had some inquiries.

"It will be great if it happens," Luc says.

Lorne Pinkoski, owner of Century 21 Hi Point Realty says the scheme has caused some interest.

"It's a terrific election promise," he added.

Bonnie Hunter, a sales representative with Venture

Realty says it has made people more eligible to purchase.

"Some people are going to take advantage of it," Hunter explained.

Chad Nichols of NRS Nichols Realty says his office has received quite a few calls.

"I think it's for real," Nichols says.

Most of the realtors said they were eagerly awaiting some concrete information on the program.

Seniors' Games at Agra/Plex

By Joyce Schadeck

Tomahawk Silver Tops club is hosting the Seniors' Games March 21 at the Agra/Plex.

Members appreciate the Sports/Agra Association leaving the ice in the curling rink after the last chance bonspiel in order that curling can be included in the Games along with floor curling, shuffleboard and cribbage.

Surrounding communities of Drayton Valley, Entwistle, Evansburg, Seba Beach, Wildwood, etc. are requested to limit the number of floor curling teams to four from each club in order that each team be allowed two games.

Winner of the first event at the mixed open spiel held recently was the Harmon Duncan rink of Wabamun who defeated the Charlie White foursome. The Mark Ennis rink defeated the Gary Nelson team in the second event, while the Bert Laiss team were winners in the third event over the Elmer Ellis rink.

The last chance spiel will be March 16 to 19 with a pancake breakfast on Sunday.

March 5 saw a very successful family day at the curling rink. There was a bean supper as well as hay rides provided by Al Nault and Roy Goodings. More than 70 people were in attendance.

AUCTIONEER'S COMMENTS: Here are two very good dispersals. E & M Farms have located their land and Triple S Farms Ltd. have sold their land. Neither do you have the opportunity to purchase low hr. tractors as these by auction. Remember there are no reserves. This is a partial listing of equipment. Plan to attend the double farm dispersal to bid on the low acre equipment. See you sale day! Note: Sale time 10:00 on msc. - machinery should be selling by noon.

HATS OFF TO OUR LOCAL HEROS

Constable Mark Fleming's free time is just as active as his career with the local RCMP detachment.

Mark loves golfing, hunting, fishing and skiing (when he gets the chance).

Mark and his wife Susan came to town last November along with their two children Brian, 3, and Danielle, 1.

Although a native of Fernie, B.C., Mark loves Vancouver, where he worked as an RCMP officer before coming here.

Mark says anyone who hasn't been to the big city should make time for the experience.

This is the first in a series of weekly profiles on the individuals who make our town a better and safer place to live.

Natural gas field discovered

A major natural gas field in northeastern British Columbia has been discovered.

The field, located near Boundary Lake, 40 km east of Fort St. John is expected to be worth $100,000 million.

Its reserves are currently indicated to be in the 200-billion cubic-foot range and gas liquid reserves are in the 2.5-million-barrel range.

New town office attracting visitors

Staff working in the town's new $1.5 million administration complex are excited about the new atmosphere it has created.

"A lot of people say it's nice," receptionist Tammy Kostrub says.

"They're amazed at what's been done," she added.

Originally, the new administration complex served as the town's arena for 20 years. Facilities manager Charlene Jenkins says she just loves the new building.

"People are excited. The kids call the new color schemes awesome," says town manager Manny Deol.

Several groups have toured the new complex and at least six individuals come in daily for a look-see.

Deol says he never had any doubts about the building being converted from an arena to an office building. "It came out the way we visualized," he admits.

Council will hold its first meeting in the complex this Thursday at 8:30 a.m. The public is welcome.

No date has been set for the official opening.

MD commits big bucks to town

The Municipal District of Brazeau has committed over $1 million toward the construction of three new projects in Drayton Valley.

At its meeting last Thursday, council authorized the payment of $412,435 toward fire protection, $230,449 for their portion of the cost sharing toward the new library and $450,000 toward the capital cost of the sports centre.

Contributions toward fire protection and the library will be financed over a 10-year period.

The MD has already paid the town $322,187 toward the sports centre and has the balance in reserve.

Besides its $1,092,884 contribution toward the three projects, the MD will also contribute toward the cost-sharing operation of the sports centre and the indoor swimming pool.

According to municipal manager John Eriksson, that figure is expected to be $35,000 this year. The MD's share last year was $23,500.

An agreement between the town and the MD, officially ratifying the contributions, is expected to be signed during town council's first meeting in its new chambers this Thursday.

Job losses not local

By Belinda Atkinson

A 33-per-cent decline in drilling activity since last February has claimed 7,500 jobs across the province, but industry spokesmen say no jobs have been lost locally.

Jim Reid, area manager of the Energy Resources Conservation Board (ERCB), says the Pembina Field survives most ups and downs because of its concentration on production rather than exploration.

"The whole Drayton Valley area is a stable producing area therefore change in manpower is low," Reid said. "This (decline in activity) affects contractors, seismic and construction."

In February of this year, just 198 rigs were active compared to 299 last year. Industry spokesmen are calling it "one of the most depressed oil-patch drilling seasons on record" but Reid said the area's conventional oil is not as volatile.

Conventional oil, he explained, is less risky than exploration or heavy oil because of the little investment needed to keep an active well going.

Spokesmen for Canadian Oxydental, Esso, Mobil, and Amoco say all jobs are secure.

Although they admit shaky oil prices and uncertainty have kept profits to a minimum, they say Drayton's end of the industry (production) is fairly secure.

Man found guilty

It was incorrectly reported in the Feb. 28 issue of The Western Review (Page 8) that Allan Hasse of Drayton Valley had pleaded guilty to one charge of fraud.

He did not plead guilty. The judge found him guilty.

It was also reported that Hasse was 48 years old. He is 47. The Western Review apologizes to Mr. Hasse for the mistake.

Mental health counsellor leaving

Kelly Frederickson is leaving Drayton Valley. Frederickson, who has been the mental health counsellor for the past 18 months has accepted a transfer to Edmonton where he will continue his work in the public education program.

A recruitment program is underway to find a replacement. If the vacancy hasn't been filled by the end of this month when Frederickson leaves, clients will be handled on an interim basis out of Ledue.

"It's an opportunity I'm interested in," Frederickson says.

"It became available. I

Kelly Frederickson didn't go looking for it," he added.

It was reported in last week's paper that people wanting to see the mental health counsellor faced a three- to four-month wait.

While Frederickson admitted the workload in this area was heavy, he says it wasn't a factor in accepting the new position.

During his 18-month stay, Frederickson was involved in the Drayton Valley Players' 'Whisper Into My Good Ear', served on the board for Big Brothers and played volleyball.

New ambulance authority

The area could see a new ambulance service in the not-too-distant future.

John Erikson, municipal manager for the MD says a new ambulance authority is almost in place and proposals for an ambulance service are presently being accepted.

The existing ambulance service is one of the proposals the authority will be examining.

Erikson expects everything to be finalized by the end of the month.

The MD, town, part of the ID and county of Parkland along with Entwistle and Evansburg plus Breton (in 1990) are expected to make up the authority.

Rocky Rapids grant less

It was incorrectly reported in a recent edition of The Western Review the Rocky Rapids Community Association had received a $27,500 grant. Actually, they received $2,750.

Band back in the swing of things

The show will go on in the Shangri-La Lodge now that a new leader has begun practicing with the band.

Catherine Meredith has taken on the task of band leader that Lil Ross had to give up to return to a full-time teaching position.

Meredith is multi-talented when it comes to playing instruments. She already plays the guitar, harp, drums and flute, but says she can play "just about anything you give me."

Meredith does have experience teaching from a junior choir she taught in British Columbia.

As well, Meredith has been performing "somewhat professionally" for the past 16 years.

Right now she says it will take some time to get to know her band.

"Everybody was really nervous," she says of the second practice session.

The band wants to get more modern and snappy tunes into their repertoire and Meredith thinks that is fine.

She would also like the Christmas, and maybe do band to put on shows for some touring to other special occasions like seniors' lodges.

Farm borrowers get break at banking institutions

Associate Minister of Agriculture Shirley Cripps has announced an enhanced Beginning Farmer Program.

The enhancements will provide greater flexibility to new farm borrowers in preparing and implementing farm development plans. Loans at a nine-per-cent interest rate will continue to be available to first-time and developing farmers through the Agricultural Development Corporation (ADC). Emphasis will be placed on the importance of farm cash flows, and the productive value of farmland will be used as a basis for lending decisions.

Major changes from the existing program include: land ownership is not an absolute requirement of the program. The staged option has now been extended from six years to 10 years.

The number of staged loans over this 10-year time-frame has been increased to a maximum of 20 with a $10,000 minimum loan size.

To improve cash flow, first year start-up costs may now be financed as part of the overall loan program.

Flexible use of the three-per-cent interest incentive will allow payments to be applied directly to loan principal. Borrowers must have a minimum 20-per-cent equity.

Borrowers must make their scheduled payments in order to receive incentives.

A more flexible definition of beginning and developing farmers to more accurately reflect the development stages of farming, with arbitrary asset and net worth limits removed. Increased focus will be placed on: enrollment in such courses as "Gear Up Financially"; minimizing risk through participation in insurance and other safety net programs; and accelerated equity building to reduce interest costs.

The enhancements are in direct response to concerns raised during the recent public review of the Agricultural Development Corporation. "I think farmers will find the results coming from the review are very positive," said Cripps. "We received some excellent suggestions which have been included in this program. Beginning farmers will find that the program provides an important boost for that first step towards owning their own farms."

Knitting crafts for gifts

Alder Flats

By Joan Elmont
Pastor George Hensch was the emcee for a successful Sweetheart banquet at the Alder Flats hall Feb. 18.

Following a pot-luck supper those celebrating birthdays and anniversaries were honored.

Prizes were presented to Grant and Linda Wilkie as the newest-married couple and to Albert and Ivy Kellgren as the longest-married couple present. Reg and Wendy Jensen won the quest for the 'perfect pair'.

RCMP officer Reg Jensen, from Pincher Creek, was guest speaker.

A skit was presented by Duane Hoflin and songs with guitar and violin accompaniment were by Dan Stroman.

A letter from Arlene Spendiff of High Prairie was received by the Alder Flats Agricultural Society.

Spendiff, a retired nurse, has a project she hopes will become province-wide.

She asked that someone in the area coordinate a program whereby concerned local ladies would make and donate quilts and afghans to the Ronald MacDonald House in Edmonton. The items will be a gift to every terminally ill child who stays there while having treatment at the WW Cross Institute and will be theirs to keep.

Anyone interested in this project is asked to contact Lorraine at 388-3815 or Eileen at 388-3062. They would be delighted to let you see the letter and give you

JOINT PRESS RELEASE ON LAW ENFORCEMENT WITHIN THE COUNTY OF PARKLAND

The Solicitor General, R.C.M.P. and the County of Parkland wish to clarify the roles, duties and services provided by the R.C.M.P. and the County Police Department with respect to the provision of protective services to residents of the County of Parkland.

Due to recent amendments to the Police Act, members of the County Police Department, as of January 1, 1989, are no longer authorized to carry sidearms, however have received authorization from the Solicitor General to have shotguns in their possession for the sole purpose of destroying dangerous animals. As of April 1, 1989, the County will be renaming the Police Department to "County of Parkland Patrol Department" to comply with the requirements of the new Police Act.

The Policing responsibilities of the County have not been affected by the new Police Act. The R.C.M.P. have the prime responsibility for the protection of persons and properties, enforcing the Criminal Code, all Provincial and Federal Acts in the County.

The Solicitor General and the County Council wish to emphasize that the powers and duties of the Special Constables remain unchanged. The County Special Constables supplement the protection to persons and property provided by the R.C.M.P. through enforcement of the County By-Laws and certain Provincial Acts being the Highway Traffic Act, Motor Vehicle Administration Act (on County roads and secondary highways), Liquor Control Act, Dangerous Animal Act, Oil Highway Vehicle Act, Litter Act and any regulations pertaining to these Acts. The Provincial Government is also in the process of delegating authority to the Special Constables as Inspectors under the Federal and Provincial Transportation of Dangerous Goods Act. Special Constables are considered Peace Officers under the Police Act and have the authority to perform checks and issue tickets and summonses related to the Acts and Regulations under their jurisdiction. As well, to make arrests as required and provided for by Law.

In conjunction with each other the R.C.M.P. and County Patrol Department will provide community relations programs, particularly in the schools, and carry out joint enforcement programs.

The Solicitor General, R.C.M.P. and the County are pleased with the relationship between the R.C.M.P. and the County's special Constables and believe that the co-operation of the two forces can only enhance the protection of persons and property within the County of Parkland.

Hot talent at ice show

Ice Capades had nothing on the local figure skating club March 4 when 100 talented skaters wowed a capacity crowd at the Drayton Sports Centre.

Whether the children from the learn-to-skate group were paying homage to their hero E.T. or the senior CFSA group was Dirty Dancing, it was pure, professional entertainment.

The title is right. That is showbiz...at its finest!

The crowd cheers as skater spins.

Happy days are here again

The seniors at Shangri-La Lodge have struck up a tune again. Now that a new band leader has stepped forward, the seniors can enjoy the sound of music once again. Some of the unusual instruments, like a drum played with kitchen utensils, combine well with regular instruments like the tambourines and home-made horns.

Renovation seminar

Are you thinking about doing some spring renovations? Or, maybe it's just some minor repairs around the house.

Do you need help with design, finance, basement ideas, framing, windows and doors, siding and roofing, finishing and cabinets or the legal work?

Whatever project you have lined up, three two-hour sessions that will answer most of your renovation questions is planned for March 22, 23 and 29.

Westside Building Products is sponsoring the seminar with the assistance of local professional people such as a banker, lawyer, carpenters and contractors.

However, there is one hitch.

Pre-registrations are needed by March 20.

If you're interested call Ron or Terry at Westside Building Products (542-3808).

Judge Brian Stevenson, immediate past president of Lions Clubs International, presents Aron Brown, original charter member of the Winfield club, with a certificate and pins for a quarter-century of service to the club.

By Susan Mosciold
More than 200 Lions Clubs members and guests from all over Alberta joined the Winfield Lions Club to celebrate the 25th anniversary of its charter at the Winfield Recreation Centre recently.

Immediate past president and guest speaker Judge Brian Stevenson of Calgary, welcomed the crowd. "We are here tonight to celebrate love for our fellow human beings."

After thanking the Winfield Lions for their invitation, Stevenson said, "Winfield Lions means not only service, it means enduring relationships."

Presentations of certificates and pins for a quarter-century of service were made to original charter members of the Winfield Lions Club. The club has been very active over the past 25 years and members have given generously of their time to many community projects.

Winfield Lions have been involved in whole or in part in the building of the arena, race track, curling rink, as well as the building of the recreation centre where they held their anniversary celebration.

The club donated time and/or funds to drug awareness programs in the school, Ugetuck Days, PAWS band, seeing eye dogs, vans for senior citizens, to name just a few.

A new project of Lions Clubs International has not gone untouched by the Winfield club. Members participated in a telethon in December to raise money for the prevention of family violence.

Stevenson addressed this painful subject. "We will continue to attack this malignancy in our midst."

"If you're part of the community, you give something to the community," said PC candidate Tom Thurber, and original charter president of the Winfield Lions. "The community has been good to us, we give something back."

Diabetic eye clinic tomorrow

An eye care clinic will be held in conjunction with the Canadian Diabetes Association meeting tomorrow (Wednesday) night in Drayton Valley.

The meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. in the lower committee rooms at the Elks Hall.

Dr. Paetkau will speak on eye care and diabetes.

An eye care clinic will take place during the day. Call the health unit at 542-4415 to make appointments.

This puppy is guarding his home well. Although it isn't positive this is actually his gate just north of Drayton Valley, he is still not willing to let anyone pass on foot. He likes to chase vehicles as well to deter trespassers further.

New Parkland tax deadline July 1

The county of Parkland's new tax payment deadline of July 1 will be something to bear in mind as penalties for late payment have also increased.

Effective this year, county residents will have to pay their property and municipal taxes by July 1, one month earlier than in previous years.

By collecting taxes a month earlier, the county will not have to borrow money to provide services in July and will save about $200,000 each year in interest costs.

Late tax payments will be penalized 1.5 per cent each month starting Aug. 1. Late taxes go into arrears Jan. 1, and will then be hit with a 12 per cent penalty and a further five per cent penalty March 1.

Scholarships available to 4-H members

The Alberta 4-H scholarship program has more than $41,000 available to be awarded this year to young Albertans pursuing post-secondary education.

"The basis for the majority of the scholarship awards are 4-H achievement, community involvement and academic standing. Criteria does vary so I encourage all past and present 4-H members to apply," says Agricultural Minister Peter Elzinga.

The 60 scholarships range in value from $100 to $3,000. The Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother scholarship is open for applications from the general public. Three $1,500 awards will be given out annually until 1994.

Scholarship application forms are available from regional 4-H offices, district home economists, various rural high schools, post-secondary institutions and the 4-H branch, Alberta Agriculture, 7000-113 Street, Edmonton, AB, T6H 5T6.

The application deadline for a majority of the scholarships is July 15. The exceptions are the Canadian National Exhibition scholarship and the Petro-Canada 4-H Youth Leadership award. Students applying for these awards must do so by June 1.

Teen leadership workshops offered

The county of Parkland's parks and recreation department is offering teen leadership workshops for teens 13 to 18 years of age.

The workshops are designed to develop leadership and instructional skills as well as how to organize activities.

The courses provide necessary skills for teens wanting to become a summer staff member or volunteer with the parks and recreation department.

The workshops are in two levels.

Level I includes arts and crafts, drama, music and outdoor education. It is also aimed at those with no previous experience in the recreation field.

The Level II workshop includes first aid, behavior discipline and programing leadership. These classes are designed for graduates of the Level I course or those who have previous experience.

For more information or to register call Lana Heron at 963-2231 (extension 355).

Author, Bible teacher to visit Breton

Emogene and Bill Kaiser

Widely recognized author and Bible teacher, Dr. Bill Kaiser, will be at Breton high school with his wife, Emogene, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 16, 17 and 18 at 7:30 p.m.

Kaiser is especially known for his practical lessons on faith, grace, and righteousness. Mrs. Kaiser will sing and play the zither.

At the height of a successful engineering career, Dr. Kaiser was converted to Christianity Shortly thereafter, he and his wife entered the ministry when they pastored a church in southern Ohio. They later enrolled at Christ for the Nations Institute in Dallas, where he served as worship leader, Bible teacher, and registrar. Following their work at CFNI, they travelled as missionaries in Europe, Africa, and the United States.

In 1978, Dr. Kaiser became the director at Word of Faith Leadership and Bible Institute, an Interdenominational program broadcast nationwide via satellite.

Since 1986, the Kaisers have been ministering full time in churches and Bible schools throughout the world, focusing most of their attention on the United States, Canada, and Europe. Dr. Kaiser is the author of such books as Who is Christ?, Who in Christ are You?, The Living Word, No Other Gospel, and From the Heart.

Services begin at 7:30 P.M. at Breton high school. Admission is free. For more information, contact Ken at 696-3857.

Read the 'Manufacturer's' manual

By Rev. Barry Parker
DV Anglican Church
While travelling last year, we ran into the travellers' nemesis — the airplane delay. We were informed the main hydraulic system had failed. The passengers were asked to wait in the boarding lounge while repairs were made.

As we stood watching the repair crews swarm over this large and modern airplane, I looked down to view the cockpit. There, on the 'dash', was an open book that showed a schematic diagram of the hydraulic system of this complex machine.

It struck me as ironic, that here was a multi-million dollar piece of high-tech wizardry being repaired, not by sophisticated computers. Rather, someone had the 'owner's manual' open on the dash of the plane, much as you and I would to fix our cars.

To repair this great machine, the mechanics had to go back to basics and use the book, the authority from the manufacturer that would tell them how this complex machine worked.

There is a direct parallel to life today. So often, when things break down in our complex and sophisticated lives, we scurry around trying to fix things. We try this belief, or that diet, hoping it will make our lives happier and more fulfilling.

However, the 'manufacturer' of us — God Himself — has given us a book of basics. In His wisdom, God has made available a method of going back to the basics and using the manual right from the manufacturer.

The Bible is a book for today. It is relevant, powerful and speaks directly to the issues in your life and mine.

Take some time to go back to basics. Pick up a Bible and see what the 'Manufacturer's' instructions are for life.

Purple Pansy Association

Betty Starling is returning president this year of the Purple Pansy Senior Citizens Association. The group held their election of officers meeting last week.

Re-elected as vice president is Millie Gamblin and returning secretary/treasurer is Joan Pruden.

Starling who has been president of the group for the past six years says that so far plans have not been made for 1989, but they are planning on organizing some new social activities for the Wishing Well residents.

Frosty Fun weekend thoroughly enjoyed

By Janet Carlyon
Regional 4-H Specialist
Twenty-eight senior 4-H members took part in the great Frosty Fun weekend Feb. 24 to 26 at Camp Nakamun.

Members enjoyed many outdoor activities such as the mini-olympics. Teams were formed and competed in events such as team sack races, human chain, chuckwagon races and more. Teams were given various decorations — smarties, raisins, pretzels, etc. and were asked to come up with the best sculpture. After the winner was chosen, everyone got their fill of ice cream.

Other activities included a 4-H Awareness session presented in the form of a game show, followed by a scavenger hunt. Saturday evening found members piled on the straw for a great sleigh ride in the moonlight, followed by a beach party/dance that kept 4-Hers dancing up a storm.

On Sunday, members spent some serious time discussing ways and means of winter survival. They also took time to discuss the future of 4-H in terms of the possibility of the age change recommendation. Many valid points were brought forward and members found much concern regarding the proposed change to the age limit.

To end a super weekend, members once again bundled up to face the cold and got 4-H members (and staff) flying high through the sky. This activity involves placing complete trust in the entire group as you lay yourself on the parachute and members all grab hold and pull; tossing you high into the air.

As members packed up to go home, comments were heard: "This weekend went too fast," "What camp will I see you at again?" and "I had a great weekend." Many good friends were made and lots of good memories were taken home.

We all had a great time at camp, and I hope to see many of you at future 4-H camps and programs. Check your summer program book for details.

You're all wet, mom

The first exercise at parents participation day at Park Valley pool in Drayton Valley was to get everyone wet. This small group of moms and kids had fun throwing buckets of water at each other. Needless to say, the moms won this contest and stayed fairly dry while their children ended up soaked.

We shouldn't hesitate to reward ourselves

Pleasurable goodies: Goodies make us feel good, change our pace, relieve stress and are "personal therapies."

They add spice to life and serve as reminders that we have value. Different people want different goodies. Goodies may be travelling, listening to music, laughing, being hugged, shopping, sitting in a tub of warm water or having an exotic drink. Goodies help to "recharge our batteries."

Goodies can be used to reward ourselves. Most of us would not hesitate to compliment others for a job well done; similarly, we should not hesitate to reward ourselves for successfully accomplishing tasks.

Social support systems: Developing trusting and caring relationships at work will result in a "life-line" support system.

Social support systems (at work or outside work) allow people to let their hair down, "kid around," share their lives, keep in touch and have a source of security and help when crises arise.

There are a variety of possible support groups: co-workers, sport or hobby groups, family, church groups and community organizations.

Variety at work: Doing the same thing, such as paperwork for long periods of time is exhausting. It is particularly important to recognize that work which is emotionally draining (suicide counselling or hospice work for example) can only be done for a limited time if limits aren't set: burn-out will occur.

Interagency presents...

Therefore it is important to structure a job in such a way that it includes a variety of tasks each week.

Humor: Humor relaxes us, makes work more enjoyable and takes the edge off intense emotional situations. Recognizing and using humor at work and home relieves stress and helps prevent burn-out.

Changing or adapting to distressing events: There are an infinite number of distressing "events": an unfulfilling job, the death of someone close, the end of a romantic relationship, unresolved religious questions, an unwanted pregnancy and so on. When these events occur, it is important to confront them head on and improve the situation.

Summary: Strategies to prevent and treat burn-out include goal-setting, time management, positive thinking, changing the thoughts which produce burnout, relaxation techniques, exercise, hobbies and special interests, pleasurable goodies, mental health days, social support systems, variety at work, humor and changing or adapting to distressing events.

It is up to each person to choose from this "armagabard" the strategies he or she finds most appropriate and attractive.

The warmer weather made outdoor play very exciting for these youngsters. Trying to outdo everyone else on the monkey bars is always a favorite game in any generation.

'New fangled' not always better

Don't you just hate those balls of fibre that develop on your favorite shirt, sweater or bedspread?

They are caused by normal wear and handling and a lint brush usually won't help. If you want to look well-dressed in your knits and woolsens, you will eventually need to 'de-pill' some of your clothing.

Last year saw the arrival of battery-operated clothes shavers. They refine the safety razor method of 'beheading' pills by cutting the stem. CAC tested eight of these costing from $9 to $35. The lab also tested old standby home remedies and two clothes combs.

Consumer's Corner

By Samia Valleand

It appears that newfangled isn't always better. Both manual combs performed well against the power shavers and were, in fact, more versatile. Fine sandpaper and safety razors also proved effective.

Tests showed it would take more than half an hour for most shavers to de-pill an entire sweater.

Should you want a power shaver, the only practical choice for big jobs was the most expensive model. Although it did not shine on all fabrics, no other shaver did a better job. As well, it was the only model tested that could adapt to household electricity.

CAC Alberta can give you the entire test results. Call the product information office at 420-0747.

Residents attend retirement party

By Alma Johnson
Sympathy is extended to family on the death of Annie Stewart at the age of 91. Funeral services were held at the Entwistle hall Feb. 24 with interment at Brightwood Cemetery.

Recent visitors to the Norm and Glenn Johnson farm were Larry VanSickle and Herb Ziemmer of Mayerthorpe, Larry Flicek of Nielburg, Sask. and Jim Pipher of Putney Heath Farms of Caledon East, Ont. — all looking at cattle and calves.

George and Janet Moroz have returned from a trip to Mexico.

Glenn and Charlene Johnson and family attended the hereford cattle sale for the Cossey family of Tofield, held at Modern Livestock at Clyde Feb. 25.

Stan and Margaret Woloszyn and Chris and Alice Woloszyn attended a retirement party for former county of Parkland employees, Ted Tucker and John Mikulin.

YARD-MAN

School association meeting tonight

By Mae Tryon

The Berrymoor 3B's club is thinking of putting an addition on the Berrymoor Centre. There will be a public meeting March 22, 7:30 p.m. at the centre. The purpose is to see if there is enough interest in the community for this project to go ahead. The public is urged to attend.

Jack and Mary Thatcher of Drayton Valley have returned from a two-week holiday in Hawaii. They report a wonderful time and beautiful weather.

Congratulations to Brad and Linda Perreault of Drayton Valley on the birth of their daughter last month. Proud grandparents are Tom and Ruth Duckworth.

There will be a meeting of the Lindale School Association tonight (Tuesday, March 14) in the school library.

The Lin-Berry-Buck 4-H

Berrymoor

Beef club will hold its meeting tonight (Tuesday) in the Lindale school gym at 7:30 p.m.

The Lindale 4-H Swine club will meet at 7:30 p.m., March 20 in the school library.

Joyce Barrett is home from Kitscoty, where she visited daughter Claudette Levers and family.

The provincial election is Monday, March 20. The polls are open from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Local polling stations include the Berrymoor Centre, Lindale school and Carnwood hall.

The Lindale kindergarten will sponsor a hot dog and bake sale Tuesday, March 21.

Canada Post Corporation

We are growing – in partnership with the community

More rural Canadians are enjoying increased access to postal products and services through retail postal outlets in their communities. This is happening in partnership with hundreds of local businesses right across the country, in a variety of ways.

Here are some examples of how we are expanding

In Whistler, British Columbia. Two new retail postal outlets, operated by local businesses, have opened this year. The new outlets complement the services offered at the Whistler corporate post office. They are the first step to improved service in this rapidly-developing community.

"The response from the customers has been fantastic. It's working out well."
— Harry McKeever, Operator, Retail Outlet, McKeever's General Store

In Rose Bay, Nova Scotia. We have another link in Canada Post Corporation's growing network of postal outlets. This time in a community where for two years, retail service was not provided through a corporate outlet. Retail postal service is now provided in partnership with a local business.

"I feel that the postal outlet here is a great step in the right direction to service the people in the area."
— Sam Emmons, President, Rose Bay area Board of Trade

In Ste-Félicité-de-l'Islet, Québec. A retail postal outlet is now offering postal services and products in a community where no post office existed before.

"In addition to the services provided by a retail postal outlet established in a local business, we now have the benefit of our own postal code."
— Jean-Paul Pellerin, Mayor, Municipality of Ste-Félicité-de-l'Islet

In Lewvan, Saskatchewan. A retail postal outlet is now open to serve customers. The outlet provides customers with access to postal products and services. These services have not been available locally for four years.

"The retail postal outlet in the Co-op convenience store is a good arrangement — they support each other and it provides all the necessary postal services."
— Larry Davis, Councillor, Rural Municipality of Wellington, Saskatchewan

More business for the merchants in your community and longer hours of service for you

Local businesses are benefiting from increased customer traffic. It means a better and stronger business base for the community. We are building local partnerships with the community and business, to provide Canadians with reliable, accessible and affordable postal service.

Canada Post is in rural Canada to stay. That's a promise.

CANADA POST CORPORATION
Our commitment: better service for you.

GOOD GOVERNMENT NEEDS GOOD OPPOSITION That's what made the Drayton Valley Liberal nomination meeting so large it had to be moved to the school gymnasium. People who know Bear Werscher and who had never seen Liberals come out to support a man who would support them if you want an MLA that will represent you vote BEAR Werscher on March 20, 210

A VOICE IN ALBERTA'S OPPOSITION CAN SERVE US ALL BETTER THAN ANOTHER BACKBENCHER
This is what made the DV Liberal nomination convention the largest in history. If you would like a voice in your legislature vote BEAR Werscher on March 20, 211

Cards of Thanks

THE FAMILY of the late Anne Stewart would like to express their heartfelt gratitude to all those who were so kind in our time of sorrow. Special thanks to Dr. Gault and staff at the DV Health Complex medicine station for their kind care and attention. We would also like to thank Rev. Bob Koehn for the comforting service, the Envisette CD99 for the lovely lunch and organist Wilma Tufty. Thank you to everyone for all the cards, flowers, donations to the Cancer Society and kind expressions of sympathy. Your thoughtfulness was greatly appreciated.
Austene, Christine, Elie and families

Agriculture Week

March 13 - 17, 1989

It takes years of effort and planning to create the attractive farmsteads that dot rural areas. It takes generations to maintain them and enhance them. Today, as the years have passed from father to son, it is our pleasure to pay tribute to the stability of our farming community and to those who have made it so. Our best wishes during Agriculture Week apply throughout the year!

Training horses doesn't mean fear or pain

By Wendy Carruthers
"When horses lick their lips they're learning."

This may sound like an old cowboy's tale but it seems to be true and Daryle Schmidt can prove it.

Schmidt, 31, maintains the Pembina Provincial Grazing area southwest of Cynthis. He also trains horses and cattle dogs, an activity he says he can't get enough of.

His concept of training horses differs from the traditional methods of forcing a horse into submission by pain or fear.

Schmidt doesn't take all the credit for his successful training — a method which has brought him horses that other training methods have failed.

"I learned it from Tom Dorrance and Ray Hunt (acquaintances)," he admits. And what is this method of training that Schmidt says makes a better, calmer horse?

"You make them believe whatever they do, it's their idea," he says. "You have to gain their trust, too."

In his training, Schmidt may spend up to two weeks with a horse before he even attempts to ride him.

By then, he says, the horse already knows how to communicate with him and trusts him.

As Schmidt works with Doc,

Daryle Schmidt convinces Doc to stop over the rope.

a three-year-old male, this communication and trust becomes apparent.

At first Doc puts up a little resistance to Schmidt's commands as he is distracted by a horse in an adjacent pen.

Then as Schmidt starts his hand signals Doc submits.

Using only his hands and few 'clicking' noises, Schmidt can make Doc go anywhere in the pen he wants, or right up to Schmidt. All the time, Doc thinks he is going where he wants.

Schmidt explains this phenomenon.

Horses have sense of self-preservation

Schmidt says you have to understand how a horse thinks.

"A horse has a sense of self-preservation," he says.

This preservation makes horses behave as they do. When something bothers or irritates them, they want to get out of the situation.

An example of Schmidt's methods is the way he gets Doc to come directly to him.

When Schmidt walks up to Doc, the immediate reaction is for Doc to walk away.

Just when Doc is about to turn away, Schmidt removes the pressure by backing up and holding his hand out to Doc. Then Doc approaches him, the pressure is off Doc and he believes Schmidt is the source of relief so he moves towards him.

The same method of controlling Doc's direction of walking is used.

Schmidt holds out his arm in the direction he wants Doc to go. If Doc hesitates Schmidt produces an irritant (usually a stick with plastic on it making a loud noise).

Doc finds the solution to the problem is to go in the direction Schmidt is pointing.

Thus, Doc believes he has found the solution himself, but also learns to trust that Schmidt is helping him — like a leader of a herd.

This method of training, Schmidt says, shows the horse the rider will take care of him and it makes Doc do things of his own free will. Unlike forcing a horse into submission with fear, a horse, like any mammal, will perform better when he believes what he does is done from choice.

And, yes, each time Doc figures something out he licks his lips.

Of course, this type of training, like all others, takes patience.

Schmidt obviously has this patience and loves his work. Although his work with the grazing area keeps him quite busy, he would still like to do more training and hopes to start training other people's horses and dogs for farm work.

Anything to keep his cowboy lifestyle alive would please him.

'Diamond mine' found in angora goat herd

By Belinda Atkinson

What animal could be a farmer's best investment? Stumped? Diamonds.

Rudi and Lynn Merschel say their small herd of angora goats has literally turned their hobby farm into a diamond mine.

Commonly referred to as diamond fibre, the luxurious mohair of an angora goat is sought after around the globe for its superior strength, warmth and minimal shrinkage.

Combined with wool, nylon or silk, Lynn says mohair is commonly used in designer sweaters and skirts and, because of its natural fire retardancy, increasingly popular in curtains and upholstery.

The Merschels are already assured a buyer for the next four sheerings (two years) and can confidently assume the $5 to $7/lb. price will not decrease.

But what really makes angora goats a blue chip investment, according to Lynn, is the minimal investment of time and money on a daily basis.

"One adult goat costs the same amount to feed as a house cat," she says.

The goats survive on oats, hay and grass, just as sheep do, but eat far less because of their size.

Self-grooming, odorless, well tempered and quick-

The mohair of the angora goat is sought after world-wide.

witted, Lynn says angora goats are superior to sheep in every way.

"I'd never keep sheep. They smell and they're so stupid," she asserts.

So well mannered are the little goats that in the 16th century Turkish families kept them as house pets and spun their mohair for clothing.

"They're so loveable," she says. "They're so much fun to watch."

Even the name angora which derived from the Arabic word meaning "chosen as the best," backs Lynn's sentiments.

The meat is considered the best (of its species), you can tan the hide and sell the hair so there isn't any wastage," she says.

The profits have just begun to materialize for the Merschels.

Eight of 16 goats are ready to give birth any day and with the stud coming from a bloodline of twins, the Merschels have hopes of almost doubling their herd.

From then on it will only be six months before the herd is sheered and the five- to six-inch hair sold.

The Merschels have found their diamond mine, in part, because of a low initial investment.

Lynn explained the $1,000-per-head price they paid is practically non-existent because of increasing demand.

"You would be lucky to find an angora for $1,500 now," she said.

Lynn said the going price, for an adult female who has kidded is $2,500. In England, where angoras are apparently rare and in great demand, $10,000 per head is average. One angora sold recently for a record $25,000 Cnd.

But once in the business with a pure bred stud and healthy females, Lynn says there could be no smarter investment or better pet than an angora goat.

Angora — a blue chip investment.

Calendar of English Flowers often used as floral almanac

According to a once-popular poem, it begins with snowdrops on Feb. 2 and ends with love-in-a-mist on Nov. 25.

About 250 years ago English periodicals from time to time printed an anonymous poem variously titled "A Calendar of English Flowers," "A Garland of the Seasons," and other similar names.

The poem can sometimes be found pasted into diaries and account books of the period. The poem can hardly be older than 1600 or later than the 1640s, these limits being set by datable references within its text and its use of Catholic feast days, whose observance was forbidden under Cromwell's Puritan Commonwealth.

For today's flower lovers, the poem still retains its fascination as a floral almanac, and some find it a rewarding project to plan a section of their garden around it.

The flower year, according to the poem, commences Feb. 2, the Feast of Purification of Mary, but simply Groundhog Day in our prosaic Yankee usage. On that day in old England, The Snowdrop in purest white array

First rears her head on Candlemas Day;
While the Crocus hastens to the shrine
Of Primrose love on St. Valentine.

Then comes the Daffodil, beside
Our Lady's Smock at Lady-tide,

(March 25)
About St. George, when blue is worn
The blue Harebells the fields adorn;
Against the day of Holy Cross,

The Crowfoot gilds the flowergrass.

The buttercup, known as crowfoot, gilds lawns and meadows by May 3.
When St. Barnaby bright smiles night and day,
Poor Ragged Robin blossoms in the hay;
The Scarlet Lychnis, the garden's pride,
Flames at St. John the Baptist's tide.
(June 24)

From Visitation to St. Swithun's showers,
The Lily white reigns Queen of Flowers;
And Poppies a sanguine mantle spread
For the blood of the dragon
St. Margaret shed.
(July 2)

Then under the wanton Rose again
That blushes for penitent Magdalen
Till Lammas Day, called August's Wheel,
When the long corn stinks of camomile.
Roses may be still found blooming in late July, when they are linked with the feast on July 22 of St. Mary Magdalene.

When Mary left us here below

The Virgin's Bower is full in blow;
And yet anon, the full Sunflower blew
And became a star for St. Bartholomew.

Clematis (Virgin's Bower) blossoms around Aug. 15, followed quickly by the sunflower that usually peaks around Aug. 24.
The Passion Flower long has blowed
To betoken us signs of the Holy Road

The showy Passion Flower was seen as a symbol of the Crucifixion. By Sept. 14 its peak of bloom had passed.

The Michaelmas Daisy, among dead weeds,
Blossoms for St. Michael's valorous deeds
And seems the last of flowers that stood
Till the feast of St. Simon and St. Jude; Save Mushrooms and the Fungus race

That grove till All-Hallow Tide takes place.
(Sept. 28, Oct. 28 and Nov. 1)
Soon the evergreen Laurel alone is green
When Catherine crowns all learned men,
The Ivy and Holly Berries are seen
And Yule Log and Wassail come around again.

Fischer looks forward to Regina in 1989

By Frank Ryan

Sierré Fischer wants to put 1988 behind her as quickly as possible.

It wasn't that the year didn't have its highlights. It was just the way the year ended.

After claiming two top 10s and the Canadian National reserve championship on the heels of an impressive showing at the regionals, the Drayton Valley rider had to miss one of the major shows of the year.

Because she just didn't have the funds, Fischer had to pass up the U.S. Nationals.

But all that is behind her. At least she hopes so.

"I can hardly wait for the Canadians," Fischer says.

They will be held Aug. 16-20 in Regina.

In preparation for that event, Fischer has been riding once a week. She's also planning on attending a number of horse shows this summer in preparation for the regionals July 8-9 at Red Deer followed by a trip to Regina and maybe even the U.S. Nationals.

Ambassador, an eight-year-old thoroughbred will provide Fischer with her transportation again this summer. She's also working with Tuuscruppes, a three-year-old purebred Arabian.

Despite the bitter ending to '88, Fischer says she is heading into the new year with plenty of enthusiasm.

"It promises to be bigger and more exciting," she admits. And, if it's feasible, she plans on attending the U.S. Nationals.

But for now, she is busy getting herself ready for another hectic schedule on the horse show circuit.

If current trends continue, it is predicted by the year 2000 about 20 per cent of all farms in Alberta will account for 75 to 80 per cent of Alberta's gross agricultural production.

'Match cows with resources'

There is no ideal beef animal for all production situations says a Lethbridge research scientist.

"Cattle that are genetically similar may vary in performance in different environments," says Dr. David Bailey of Agriculture Canada's research station in Lethbridge.

Bailey says to ensure efficiency, cattle must be matched with the individual farmer's available resources. Management, labor, feed and climate conditions are included on the resource list. It is important for the producer to recognize these resources both human and environmental, he says.

"It's more economically feasible to match cows with resources than to change the environment," he says. "For example, cow-calf producers wanting to maximize their net income need to appropriately combine their breed of cattle with the type of environment they are in."

Hunters should get written permission — Crime Watch

By Sue Kenyon

If you find a little card affixed to your windshield it just may mean that a member of the Drayton Valley Crime Watch program has been watching you and does not like what you have been doing.

The program which began 10 years ago now has 124 members. Besides watching for suspicious happenings the program also offers a property identification system to its members. This enables members to mark equipment for identification purposes in the event of theft.

If a member does notice a suspicious vehicle, they do not simply call the RCMP. Each member has a number of cards which they fill out.

Part of this card is handed to the police and part of it is placed on the windshield of the vehicle. The card handed to police contains such information as a description of the vehicle, licence plate number and any other identifying features.

The police certainly see the program as a success, and a great help.

"The members are our eyes and ears. I am fully supportive of the program," Sgt. Jim Humphry of the Drayton Valley RCMP detachment says. Humphry said that just recently police were able to recover a front-end loader valued at $20,000 because an observant citizen noticed a suspicious vehicle and reported it to RCMP.

"Without that information we probably would never have recovered it," Humphry said.

Bob Kitching, president of the Rural Crime Watch program says he is not sure whether the program has made a lot of difference in preventing crime.

"It is usually pretty quiet and who's to say it is because of the program," he said.

One problem Rural Crime

Watch members will be addressing this coming hunting season is illegal hunting on private land.

Kitching says they have discussed their concerns with the RCMP and fish and wildlife and they hope to get involved in a 'ride exercise' that will address the landowners' concerns of illegal hunting on private land.

Rural Crime Watch also plans to send letters to the Drayton Valley MLA, fish and wildlife and the solicitor general in regards to the yearly draw.

They don't want to see the draw eliminated but they would like to see hunters get written permission from landowners.

They feel this would eliminate a lot of the illegal hunting on private land that plagued the Tomahawk area last season and in and around Moon Lake, two years ago.

Prevention first line of defence against canola blackleg

Alberta canola producers are currently being furnished with details of a comprehensive response plan to control the virulent blackleg of canola disease.

The response plan has received strong support from municipal districts, growers and the canola industry, in general. Alberta Agriculture crop protection branch staff, have been at meetings province-wide telling farmers about the very destructive disease and how to prevent it spreading to their canola crops.

The objectives of the response plan are to prevent the spread of the fungus in non-infested areas and control disease spread in areas that have already been infested.

Prevention is the first line of defence. This defence includes seed testing for presence of the fungus, fungicide treatment of seed when seeding, crop rotation and control of volunteer canola and wild mustard weeds.

Virulent blackleg of canola was first detected in 1976 in Saskatchewan; it's widespread there now. It wasn't found in Alberta until six years ago.

Once blackleg has infested a field, control measures such as burying stubble have to be taken. Recommended prevention steps should be followed.

Prevention and control is a matter of good crop management. Crop rotation is important for controlling more than just blackleg, for example Sclerotinia white mould, Alternaria black spot and weeds. Seed treatment also controls seedling blight and flea beetles.

Alberta Agriculture will be supplying extension information on the disease to producers through district agriculturalists and agricultural foremen.

Of the total 1.3 million Albertans employed in the province in 1988, an estimated 175,000 of those were directly employed in agriculture. It is also estimated that a further 165,000 people were indirectly employed as a result of agriculture.

Elzinga optimistic about ag future

Agriculture Minister Peter Elzinga says diversification in all sectors will be a key element in the future success of the agriculture industry in Alberta.

The minister said he sees agriculture today in one of the best positions it's been in for a number of years. He notes the challenge is there for both farmers and producers to broaden their production and take advantage of the new market opportunities that will be available in the 1990s and beyond.

"I'm very optimistic about the future of the agriculture and food industry in Alberta, but it's important that we further diversify and add more value to our agriculture commodities through increased food and beverage processing," he said. "As well we must intensify our efforts to diversify primary agricultural production to broaden the base of crops grown in Alberta and develop new and improved meat products that will capture an increased share of domestic and export markets."

The minister said while the provincial government has a strong commitment to assist the industry, the private sector must take initiatives and make investments such as supporting research and development of new technology.

"We can't just depend on outside research and technology. To stay at the leading edge of technology, Alberta must invest in research developments in our institutions. This is being done through the Alberta Agriculture Research Institute, the Farming for the Future program and the Food Processing Development Centre in Leduc."

"In 1987, sales of the food and beverage industry in Alberta of about $4.5 billion, surpassed total farm income in the province. This growing value-added industry holds much potential for future success."

Success record is outstanding

Alberta has an outstanding record of success in the development of modern technology for livestock production. Alberta's vast array of technological and practical expertise is available in a variety of forms and can be designed to fill the particular needs of any interested country.

Consultants are prepared to advise in all areas of animal breeding and herd management.

For those countries wishing to establish a viable AI industry or wanting to update their present technology, Alberta can supply highly skilled professionals to assist.

Peter Elzinga
growth, especially in areas with significant export potential like beef and canola products."

Elzinga says the free trade agreement will further enhance trade with the United States from more than $400 million to at least $600 million a year by 1992.

As well, the minister noted the changing trade policies and improved standards of living in Pacific Rim nations including Japan, Korea, Hong Kong, Taiwan and other southeast Asia countries, are creating new market opportunities for Alberta products.

"In Japan and Korea, for example, we are seeing 'real liberalization' of these markets that will accelerate over the next five years," he said. "Alta's beef alone offers a $300 million (US) market in Japan by the year 2000 — a 30 per cent growth of the existing beef industry, just to service the Japan market."

"Free trade will further enhance trade with the U.S. from more than $400 million to at least $600 million by 1992. Alberta beef will offer a $300 million (US) market in Japan by the year 2,000." — Elzinga

Alberta dairy breeds

Ayrshire

The red and white Ayrshire breed is known for its milk production, adaptability and longevity.

A mature Ayrshire cow will produce an average of 12,000 pounds of milk with a four per cent butterfat content.

Guernsey

The Guernsey breed is noted for adaptability to a wide range of management conditions, quiet nature and ease of handling, efficient feed conversion and production of milk containing a high carotene A and protein content.

Holstein

Holsteins were first imported into Canada from Holland in 1881. Since then the Canadian Holstein has been bred to develop characteristics which are unique to the Canadian breed — a firmly attached udder that will last the lifetime of the cow, docility and volume milk production. The average production of a Holstein cow is 14,450 pounds with 541.2 pounds of fat and 3.75 per cent butterfat.

The Holstein makes up 95 per cent of Canada's dairy herd and is the predominant dairy breed in Alberta.

Jersey

Jersey cattle are renowned for the high percentage of butter fat and solids in their milk, making them particularly desirable for cheese production. Other pronounced characteristics of this breed include economy of production, longevity and climatic adaptability.

Average production is between 9,000 and 14,000 pounds with 5.36 per cent butterfat.

Alberta farmers raise about 33 per cent of Canada's cattle and calves, 16 per cent of the hogs and 28 per cent of the sheep and lambs.

Teen dreams of competing in Oklahoma

By Wendy Carruthers
Tara Fleischhacker has a love of sport that takes her away from friends and family almost every weekend.

As often as weather permits, she travels to Calgary to see Moonlite Bay, her five-year-old gelding, and prepare for the upcoming season of quarterhorse shows.

Fleischhacker, 16, has spent her life in Drayton Valley, but dreams of competing in the World Youth Show this August in Tulsa, Oklahoma open to all riders 18 and under.

The 4-H club got her interested in competitive riding and started her off in the sport.

She only has two more years of youth competition left and then has the choice of going into open (professional) shows or amateur competition.

"I'll probably go into amateur," she says.

Fleischhacker has been competing in quarterhorses since 1983 and has loved every minute of it.

Although she sometimes feels left out leaving her friends behind for long periods of time, "there is nothing I'd rather be doing."

"I'd never quit because of that," she stresses.

Her friends and family are very supportive and helpful, as is her trainer who she says is one of the best for her.

Making qualifying points during the season will get her a place in the World Youth Show.

Western pleasure, western horsemanship, hunter under saddle, English and trail are some of the competitive maneuvers she must complete to earn these points.

Last year she said she was close to qualifying with her horse Mea Kitty Wiskers, nicknamed Kat.

She sold Kat to an adult amateur competitor and hopes to go all the way with Moonlite Bay.

"He (Moonlite Bay) is a different calibre of horse," she says, adding he is bigger than Kat.

Moonlite Bay is already a

Tara Fleischhacker and her previous show horse, Kat.

trained show horse and Fleischhacker practices her voice, leg and hand commands with him.

Those are the things judges will be looking for as she takes her horse on various riding patterns vying for qualifying points.

"Meeting friends (in competitions) is the best part."

Fleischhacker has not made riding her only goal in life though. She wants to go to university and perhaps study radio and television arts or journalism.

Right now however, she wants to ride for a full season when she gets out of high school.

"Competing is good," she says, "it teaches you how to win and how to lose."

Nobody wins all the time, she says, but it looks like competition has already made her a winner.

Mating season a strange time

By Belinda Atkinson
They're a rough bunch — keeping the neighbors awake all night and occasionally murdering one another — but they're family.

That's how Jenny Fedorchuk describes her hobby. In her eyes, the collection is perfect. Neighbors, however, don't always agree.

She has been adding to her little family for four years, starting at one sale, letting nature take its course and adding on here and there.

Her home has become a veritable zoo, though some say the place has just gone to the birds.

They may be right. Two guinea hens, one peacock, two geese, 15 ducks, assorted chickens and 20 pigeons have taken roost at Jenny's small farm on the edge of Breton.

Jenny loves them just the way they are — loud and messy.

"The guinea hens make a lot of noise. That's why I got them," she admits. "The more noise the better I like it."

Jenny refuses to cage them up or teach them tricks since that, according to her, would take away their wild charm.

Instead, they run loose, fight during mating season, gather their own food and, if they are in the mood, take a holiday to greener pastures.

"When I had two pheasants, the male and the female were always together. Then, one day, the female just took off into the woods," she said. "The male still hangs around."

Jenny says mating season is a strange time around her

The family goose fights for her dinner along with the rest of the barnyard.

farm. The males become tyrants with males of other species and will do just about anything to charm their prospective mates.

"The male pheasant used to dance all over the place. The female would just ignore him," she laughed.

"The peacock is the same. The female just ducks under his feathers and tries to get away."

Jenny recalled one mating season when an eight-pound male musk duck, who she said could only be satisfied with three females, pecked a 35-pound tom turkey to death.

Fortunately, these instances are rare. Jenny spends much of her time watching the birds fly and listening to their coos.

She can't say why she is so intrigued by birds, just that she likes collecting different things.

"I enjoy different birds and plants. I guess I just want to be different," she says. "My whole family thinks I'm nuts. I even collect rocks."

'AI the only way of getting good blood lines'

By Sue Kenyon
Amongst all the bags of flour, sugar, cans of pop and other supplies in Kenneth McKenzie's bakery, one also comes across canisters filled with frozen bull semen.

McKenzie is an AI technician. If you are not familiar with the initials, AI, it means, artificial insemination.

McKenzie services to farms in the Drayton Valley area.

and what he does, simply, is inject genetically good semen into cows in standing heat.

Using AI for cattle is the only way of getting good genetic blood lines, McKenzie says. The technique began in the early fifties and is still being used widely.

"The advantage is that farmers do not have to haul their cow around everywhere, nor do they have to buy an expensive bull, and the semen from a genetically good bull can go all across the country," McKenzie says.

There is a disadvantage to the method; if there is a genetic defect not detected it can be passed to cows all over the country, McKenzie says.

"Usually though, defects can be detected, and eliminated from the breed," he says.

'depends on management of herds'

The average success rate of the method is approximately 65 per cent, but McKenzie says he once artificially inseminated 18 cows and got 18 pregnancies.

"It all depends on the management of herds you are dealing with," he says.

The most important thing with AI is having a good corral and a narrow run. Tying the cow up is not a wise course as it increases the cow's adrenalin which diminishes the chances of success. The narrow run should be about 28 inches. "That would be ideal," he says.

McKenzie has a provincial and federal licence which he must have in order to service to farms.

McKenzie services to about 50-60 farms in the area and hopes to increase that number this May or June when the season will start up again. Until then the semen is stored in liquid nitrogen in canisters which he keeps with him.

Why does he keep them in the back of the bakery? He says it is easier for him if he gets a call from a customer.

"I don't have to drive all the way home to get the canister," he says.

The canisters themselves hold tiny straws which are filled with the semen and each straw contains 15,000 live sperm.

Some sperm do get destroyed during the freezing so the 15,000 is to ensure success," he says.

There is a very specific time when the cow can actually be artificially inseminated and this is during the 'standing heat.' McKenzie says that standing heat is while they are still in heat but grazing, they are no longer after a bull.

AI can be used for any particular breed that you want, but it was primarily used in the dairy industry when the process came out in the early 1950s.

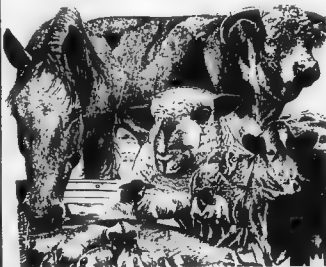

The method is no more expensive than buying a good bull, but McKenzie says the advantage is that you don't have to have a bull around. He said also that genetically good bulls are hard to get as there may be only 16 in all of Canada, but their semen can impregnate cows all over the country.

McKenzie himself has been involved with the method for about 10 years and he says that he has never been hurt or injured by artificially inseminating a cow. When it comes to extracting the semen from the bulls, he says there are company breeders and individual breeders who do it, but he does not do it himself.

AI technician Kenneth McKenzie looks at bull semen kept at -300 C.

a message from the MINISTERS OF AGRICULTURE AGRICULTURE WEEK 1989 "Agriculture is Everybody's Business"

Many of us may be unaware of the essential role agriculture plays in our lives. That is why the theme of this year's Agriculture Week is an especially important reminder of just how this vital industry affects each and every one of us.

As Albertans we all depend on agriculture. The food we eat, the goods and services we take for granted and the lifestyle we enjoy are all closely linked to this major economic sector. The farmer and the consumer, the processor and the producer, the government representative and the private businessman - all have some role to play in the continuing growth and development of agriculture in our province.

As Ministers of Agriculture our role is to encourage all Albertans to become involved in Agriculture Week '89, March 12 to March 18. Take advantage of this excellent opportunity to learn more about this strong and dynamic industry and about the people who contribute to its success. Make agriculture your business.

He trains cattle dogs, too

Training cattle dogs is another sideline of Darryl Schmidt's. His own border collie, four-year-old Guy, has been in training since he was 10 months old.

Schmidt would like to offer his services for training dogs this summer. With Guy being the recipient of second place overall in sheep and cattle penning last season, Schmidt has the reputation to back him up.

Guy, like most dogs, looks upon his owner as pack leader and wants to please him.

Schmidt says border collies have the instinct to look upon other animals as prey and hunt them for their leader. Guy however, has had the killing instinct bred out of him. Now his natural hunting instinct helps to round up, single out or direct entire herds.

Just watching Guy work is impressive; he never takes his eyes off of his herd or flock. Responding instantly to Schmidt's commands, Guy rounds up a couple of sheep and walks them out of the yard and then back to Schmidt.

Minutes later, Guy takes a small herd of cattle to the watering barrel.

Nothing distracts Guy from his task, not even the ever-present KD, Schmidt's cat, who saunters up to Guy while he guards the sheep and rubs up against him. Guy doesn't even acknowledge KD's presence.

Using what Schmidt calls "universal commands," he directs Guy to move the sheep to all areas of the pen to demonstrate Guy's devotion to his work.

"Come by," Schmidt says, and Guy quickly moves the sheep to him in a clockwise direction. "Away to me" will move Guy in a counterclockwise direction.

Guy's eagerness to please is obvious, his dedication limitless. "If only people lived for work the way Guy does..." Schmidt says.

The minute Guy finishes his job and is called away from the animals his expression changes from hungry hunter to happy-go-lucky dog.

KD, perhaps aware that Guy is finished his work, hops up on the fence out of reach and turns his attention to the horses.

Pioneers such as the one who once built this abandoned farm house are now gone, but their broken-down structures remind modern man of sacrifices once made for the future inhabitants of the province.

Thank You!

The Agricultural Service Board, Alberta Agriculture District Office of Evansburg and the West Central Forage Association would like to thank everyone who is involved in the Agricultural Industry. From the hard working farmers in the area who produce food for everyone's table and are involved in the many necessary agricultural organizations, to the agricultural support industry who provide goods and services to the farmers on a local level.

Finally, we thank the urban public who support the local farm industry by purchasing Alberta produced goods. We really do appreciate your involvement!

Silage manual contains up-to-date methods

Alberta farmers who want superior results in harvesting, storing and feeding silage can get information about the most up-to-date methods in a new Alberta Agriculture manual.

The manual contains information that would be very difficult to find from other sources and the methods are explained so farmers can adapt proven practices to their own individual situation.

Farmers who want to use the manual should be aware cost estimates in it are not the results of a cost of production study. The manual has tables of comparative costs prepared by Craig Edwards, farm management economist.

"The comparative costs are calculated the same way for each typical system, so readers can understand the relationship between the costs of different components," says Edwards. "The tables also show a format farmers can use to calculate the fixed and variable costs of a system they are considering, and then be able to compare it with other systems."

Edwards says if a farmer went out and purchased all the components of one of the typical systems in the manual, there could be a big difference between the actual cash flow and the costs shown in the manual.

The typical costs shown in the manual are useful as a quick comparison, but don't include income tax adjustments for individual situations, he says.

The silage manual is available through Alberta Agriculture district offices.

Farmers interested in improving silage methods may also be interested in a recently-released Alberta Agriculture video, "Let's Make Silage." The 12-minute video is hosted by forage specialist Bjorne Berg and animal nutritionist Rick Corbett. The video is available through most Alberta Agriculture district video libraries.

Teamwork

OUR world is full of problems
THERE'S much to cause distress;
WE are all bowed beneath the cares
THAT daily 'round us press.
THERE'S only one solution,
TIS simply stated thus:
A little less of "you and me"
AND a little more of "US!"
THE rule of "each one for himself"
MOST foolish is to follow
IT brings no flavor to the game,
THE victories are hollow.

BUT ... the OTHER plan has never failed
TO bring satisfaction PLUS!
A little less of "you and me" ...
A little more of "US!"
A flake of snow is very small
TIS lost in sight quite quickly,
BUT many flakes, combined, will fill
THE roads and pathways thickly.
UNITED we can face the light,
WITHOUT distress or fuss;
A little less of "you and me"
A WHOLE LOT MORE OF "US!"

1988 good year for agriculture

By Gerald Laarhuis
District Agriculturist
Why was the past year a good one for agriculture in Drayton Valley?

It rained. In the Drayton Valley district rain is something we take for granted — in fact it is often seen as a hindrance during harvest operations. However, for much of Alberta rain (lack of) was cause for much anxiety.

The rain, while late in coming allowed for above average yields of grain and forage crops. Good pasture growth promoted good growth on calves. Our good pastures have also attracted the interest of numerous outside farmers looking for pasture.

Cattle and grain prices were strong. During the past year feeder calf prices have remained strong — largely due to reduced cattle numbers and increased demand attributable in part to the attractive National Tripartite Stabilization programs. For the past few years cow-calf operations have been the most profitable of all major agricultural enterprises.

The drought which affected southern and eastern Alberta also affected much of the world's crop producing areas causing a substantial reduction in world grain production. The reduced production and low carryovers demonstrated just how volatile and sensitive the food supply is. Some estimates predict a world carryover of grain at less than 75 days. What this means is that if there were a total crop failure next year the world would have a 75-day supply of grain.

The oil industry remained active. At times oil and agriculture can be adversaries — when two industries with different interests must share the same resources there is bound to be some conflict. But in general the relationship has been beneficial to area farmers.

The oil industry provides employment, roads and surface lease revenue to many farmers. The oil industry appears to be increasingly concerned about the inter-relationship between their activities and agriculture.

Government programs. There are two sides to the debate on government-financed assistance programs for farmers. One argument being assistance is necessary in an international market where other governments are subsidizing their producers.

An average sow requires just over one tonne of cereal grain based feed per year.

The opposing argument is that assistance programs and supply management programs are capitalized into asset values or in purchasing the "right to produce," therefore providing no long-term solution. They argue further that government programs distort markets, create a greater degree of uncertainty, and only temporarily prevent the movement of resources to more profitable investments.

In any case, local farmers have received some benefit from government assistance programs.

Indications are the upcoming year will see continuing strong markets for both cattle and grain. The somewhat depressed attitude of the last few years has changed to one of cautious optimism for the majority of Drayton Valley area farmers.

Toasty warm

These bales of hay are protected from the snow by a tarp to keep moisture off. According to District Agriculturist Gerald Laarhuis, 1988 was a good year for agriculture in the Drayton Valley area, with indications that 1989 will continue to see strong markets for both cattle and grain.

Fun and learning are 4-H rewards

By Bev Brooks
District Home Economist

4-H in Alberta focuses on the development of the individual to become a well balanced and responsible member of society.

At present 113 Drayton Valley area youth are taking advantage of the program. Their motto, "Learn to do by doing," is enforced with each member choosing a project and being responsible to complete it.

Throughout the project, members learn how to make decisions, the value of planning, and how to keep records. 4-H offers a variety of other activities that provide members the opportunity to improve self-confidence and self-expression as well as have fun and meet new people.

At present there are 34 projects members can choose from. Many of these are represented in the eight Drayton Valley district clubs. Clubs in the area include:

Easyford 4-H Frontier
This outdoorsmen club is in its fourth year of operation. Club members learn about their natural surroundings and how to live in them.

Berry-Buck 4-H Beef
This club has been operating for five years from the Lindale, Berrymoor and Buck Creek areas. Club members gain experience in the beef industry by working with their own project animal.

Tomahawk 4-H Beef
In their 26th year of operation, this club carries the beef project.

Two Rivers 4-H Beef A club that draws its members from the Easyford/Whitby area and is presently operating in its ninth year.

Lindale 4-H Swine Club
A club proud of their 29 years of operation. The swine project is the oldest 4-H club project in Alberta. Its aim is to develop an understanding of modern swine husbandry and gain an appreciation of the potential of the pork industry. Members raise their own pigs for show and market.

Moon Lake Thimbles
This club is in its third year of operation. In the clothing project, members make something to wear and learn to handle different types of fabric. Fitting, alterations and clothing are included.

Lodgepole Steaming Wheelers
In its second year of operation, this multi-club allows members to choose any of a number of projects. Included this year are foods, canine, soft leather, small engines and automotive.

West Valley 4-H LightHorse
Operating from the Violet Grove area for about 16 years, the program develops the management and riding skills of the 4-H member.

Rocky View 4-H Dairy
This Braton area club is the newest one in the district and is in its first year of operation. 4-H members are introduced to the dairy industry. They will raise and show a dairy animal and keep accurate management records.

Volunteer adult leaders are the backbone of each 4-H club. The Drayton Valley district has 53 listed leaders. They and numerous other parents give their time, energy and talent. In return they see the 114 local young 4-H members develop into skillful, cooperative and self-motivating individuals.

4-H is a family affair. Members, families, leaders and the community are encouraged to get involved. Fun, learning and many rewards are had by all.

To get involved with the 4-H team contact Bev Brooks, district home economist at Alberta Agriculture at 542-5368.

High standards

Canada's animal health standards are among the highest in the world as a result of the priorities set in preserving the health of its livestock population.

Today Canada is free of almost all the major animal diseases causing concern to animal production such as foot and mouth, blue tongue, brucellosis and anaplasmosis. Alberta has also been declared officially free of tuberculosis.

Agriculture Canada, through Canadian embassies around the world, maintains contact with veterinary authorities in other countries. Import health agreements are already in place for hundreds of countries and every effort will be made to accommodate the growing number of countries importing frozen embryos, agreements and testing protocols are being drafted.

Savor Alberta flavor...

By Bev Brooks
District Home Economist

After consuming a delicious meal, have you ever stopped to think about where all the products you ate came from? Almost everything starts on a farm.

The bread you put on the table is made from Alberta wheat. The honey you spread on the bread is produced by Alberta bees. Canola fields provide us with the margarine or salad oil you use. Milk, cheese, beef, butter, pork, mushrooms, sugar...everything you can think of have their beginnings on a farm.

Processing our agricultural raw materials here, rather than sending them out of province, is the role of Alberta's food and beverage industry. A great deal of this industry is dispersed in small plants, often in smaller centres. Though not as noticeable as the large "smokestack" industries usually associated with manufacturing, these small industries also contribute significantly to our economy. Look for Alberta-produced, quality red meats. Alberta farmers have improved the

New farm program assists labor costs

The provincial government has announced a new farm employment program. This program will make $4-million available this year to assist Alberta farmers with labor costs.

The program is designed to assist the farm community to meet pressing employment needs, particularly during peak work periods, to create jobs for Alberta workers, while keeping program paperwork to a minimum.

Under the program, which runs from April 1, 1989 to March 3, 1990, farm employers will be subsidized up to $2.50 per hour for a maximum of 704 hours. This is equivalent to eight hours a day for one worker for 88 days. Employees must be new workers hired in addition to the regular staff. Employers must pay the workers a minimum of $5 per hour. However, they are being encouraged to pay above the minimum rate.

Deadline for applying for funding under the farm employment program is Nov 30. Funding is on a first-come basis. Applications and additional information are available through Career Development and Employment offices throughout the province.

"I'd like to enroll a very difficult horse."

quality of our red meats by producing leaner carcasses. A single serving of Alberta beef, pork or lamb can supply good quantities of nutrients with less fat, less cholesterol and fewer calories than ever before.

Fresh Alberta-grown vegetables are available many months of the year. Alberta also has several companies involved in the sprout business. Add them to salads, sandwiches or omelettes, use them as a garnish for appetizers or a fun snack for children.

The Alberta cheese industry is continually growing and diversifying. Fourteen cheese factories produce more than 15 varieties of high quality cheese.

Canola is another very important grain produced here in Alberta. From it we get canola oil and margarines, useful in cooking, baking and frying.

Alberta produces about 40 per cent of Canada's honey. Try it alone, on bread, or in canning and preserving.

These are just a sampling of the hundreds of products produced or processed right here in Alberta. Give me a call at 542-5369 if you'd like a complete listing.

As a consumer of agricultural products you have an important role. By purchasing products produced and processed in Alberta, shipping costs are kept to a minimum, larger markets are created and more employment is made possible.

Next time you purchase a product look for the "Better Buy Alberta" symbol. The Alberta rose is now a familiar sight on store shelves and it means the product is grown and processed right here in Alberta.

A labor of love...

The hard work — clearing the land of rocks and trees — begins long before a farmer can plant his crops. It is through gainless efforts such as this that the world is fed.

New members to 4-H Hall of Fame

Four decades of service to Alberta youth and the 4-H movement was recognized and celebrated with the induction of the two newest members into Alberta's 4-H Hall of Fame.

Georgina Taylor and Harold Anderson were officially inducted into the hall of fame at the 47th annual 4-H leaders' conference in Red Deer Jan. 14. They are the 25th and 26th members of the provincial 4-H Hall of Fame.

Georgina Taylor

Taylor, of Chauvin, together with her husband Harold and son John, have completed more than 50 years of 4-H club leadership.

Taylor has been leader or assistant leader of the Lloydminster Silver Spurs, Battle River Equestrian and the Chauvin Multi clubs over her 17 years of 4-H leadership.

She has also been involved on Vermilion River and Wainwright district, North East regional and Alberta 4-H councils. As an always willing volunteer Taylor served on a number of committees including fundraising, finance, exchanges, show guidelines and beef and light horse project book revision. She has been a member of the Alberta 4-H Council since 1964 and served as council treasurer for two years.

Her involvement with youth is also evident in her support of student sports, youth camps and the local gymkhana club.

Taylor is also a founding member of both the Alberta and Canadian Country Vacations Associations and has served in a number of executive positions with both organizations.

Harold Anderson

During his 23-year involvement with 4-H, Harold Anderson has provided support and leadership to every level of the 4-H organization. He has been particularly involved with public speaking and developing the Alberta 4-H Centre.

For 16 years Anderson, of Delacour, was involved with the Balzac Field Crops, the Irricana Beef and Keoma Small Engine clubs.

While a member of the Rockyview district council he helped to organize district participation in the first highway cleanup and 4-H exchanges in the Calgary area.

Anderson was also president of the Calgary Regional Council from 1974 to 1976 and assisted with the organization of the first 4-H on Parade. In 1983 he was the first recipient of the Calgary 4-H region recognition award.

For nine years Anderson was a member of the Alberta 4-H Council and was president for two of those years. He also served eight years as a member of the 4-H Foundation of Alberta.

His work with 4-H is just one part of his community service. Anderson's other involvements include the Rockyview Municipal Planning Board, the home and school association and local recreation board.

Strong livestock industry

A willingness to innovate and commitment to excellence makes livestock a strong and vigorous industry in the province.

Alberta maintains the largest livestock population in Canada accounting for approximately 40 per cent of the country's beef cattle, 14 per cent of the hogs and 24 per cent of the sheep and lambs. There are more horses in Alberta than anywhere else in Canada. And Alberta is the third largest dairy province with over 200,000 head of dairy cows and heifers.

Alberta's livestock industry also serves a world-wide market supplying animals, as well as semen and embryos, for stock improvement purposes.

The future of

AGRICULTURE

IS IN OUR HANDS

The family farm is Canada's greatest asset. We, who depend on its valuable products, must ensure its stability and prosperity.

Every Canadian should understand the farmer's problems and work with the agriculture industry to find solutions.

As world food exporters, our farmers have helped to alleviate the problem of starvation in third world countries. They've been able to help sustain food supplies when natural disasters strike in other parts of the world.

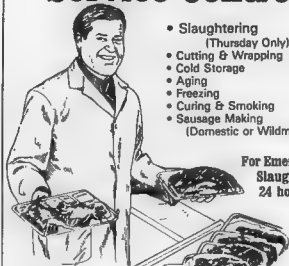

Agriculture Week is designed to draw attention to the accomplishments and needs of the agriculture industry in Alberta, as well as its contribution to the economy of our community.

Six Albertans admitted to Agriculture Hall of Fame

Six Albertans who have made outstanding contributions to agriculture and the quality of rural life have been admitted to the Alberta Agriculture Hall of Fame.

Roy Berg

Roy Berg of Edmonton is a pioneer in animal genetics with a well-deserved international reputation as an eminent meat production scientist. As one of the early researchers to recognize the importance of hybrid vigor through cross-breeding programs, his untiring zeal for improving the beef animal is seen in a legacy of "rainbow" herds found across the province. His ability to interpret and present his results as practical alternatives to farmers has been key to Alberta beef producers making their product the best in the world.

Helmut Entrup
Helmut Entrup (St. Albert), the first Farmers

Advocate of Alberta, has earned the reputation as a fair-minded spokesman for Alberta farmers. During the 15 years he held this position he helped thousands of farmers, gaining the respect of not only the farming community, but government and industry as well. His work, especially in the field of surface rights, has had a lasting impact on agriculture and its relationship with the resource industry.

Henry Kroger

Henry Kroger's (Hanna) experience as a farmer in Alberta's dryland area made him a champion of the province's water resources. His devotion to that cause resulted in the formation of the Alberta Water Resources Commission with him serving as its chairman from 1983 until his death in 1987.

Bill Mead

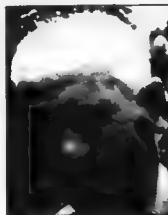

Throughout his 35-year public service career, the late

Bill Mead (Blairmore) was dedicated to the interests of Alberta livestock producers. He made his most significant contributions to livestock production while working as livestock commissioner in Edmonton and as the first director of the animal industry division. During this time he helped establish the Record of Performance program for beef cattle on a national scale, was instrumental in the founding of the University of Alberta Research Ranch at Kinsella, supported modernization of the provincial poultry plant at Oliver, and made improvements to branch recording and inspection systems recognized as the most practical and effective in North America.

Bill Page

Bill Page (Didsbury) is known as the father of Alberta's pork marketing system. His foresight, diligence and dedication to developing a marketing system has paid dividends to both hog producers and pork consumers. He was also one of the driving forces behind the formation of Unifarm, serving as vice president and remains an active member.

John Wallace

John Wallace (Beaverlodge) significantly improved the lives of northern Albertans through his lifelong dedication to finding, testing, and breeding better plants for northern latitudes. Wallace introduced hundreds of plant varieties to northern Alberta. He discovered the Saskatoon varieties, Pembina and Smoky, the latter of which occupies about 95 per cent of the commercial acreages of Saskatoons in Canada. He selected, developed and named the Protom strawberry, the only recommended hardy variety for the northern half of Alberta.

Alberta farmers seeded nearly 18 million acres to all varieties of crops in 1988 with total production estimated at 15.8 million metric tonnes. Tame hay production from 4.7 million acres added another 9 million metric tonnes.

July 11 weather events

More notable weather events have occurred in Canada on July 11 than any other day of the year. Here are some of the significant incidents that have occurred on this date.

1854 Heavy winds capsized several small boats and blew others onto Toronto Island. The schooner Duke sank with the loss of five people.

1888 A tornado struck the area between Montreal and Quebec City, killing 53.

1911 After a prolonged period of hot, dry weather, forest fires broke out in northern Ontario. Fanned by extremely high winds, the fire spread rapidly and engulfed the towns of Cochrane, South Porcupine, Pottsville and Goldlands, killing more than 200 people. Many people died seeking shelter in mines and lakes.

1927 An intense storm, bringing hail, tornadoes, heavy rain and lightning, created havoc across all three Prairie provinces. Crop damage in Saskatchewan alone was estimated at $2 M. Three were killed and hundreds were injured by flying debris.

1932 At Rouyn, Quebec, two miners were killed when lightning struck nearby dynamite caps.

1969 Unusually heavy rainfall, connected with a slow-moving weather system, struck the Maritimes. From the 11th to the 14th, Saint John recorded 198 mm of rain.

1970 Several violent hail storms slashed across central Alberta bringing winds as high as 120 km/h and hail the size of tennis balls. Trees and crops were severely damaged.

1978 A downpour of 64 to 135 mm in 24 hours struck Edmonton and caused flooding, washouts and mudslides. Losses were placed at $43 M.

1983 A heavy 50-70 mm rainfall triggered several major mudslides near Revelstoke, forcing closure of the Trans-Canada Highway. One section of railway track was covered by a mudslide 150 m wide and 2 m deep.

If ever there is a day to have your insurance paid up, July 11 is it!

Largest horse in the world

Red-brown dapple Friesian gelding, Dr. LeGear was foaled in 1902, died in 1919.

Perfectly proportioned, he stood 21 hands tall, measured 18 feet from nose to tail, weighed 2,985 pounds.

He was pronounced by horse experts the greatest horse that ever lived.

Days of yore

Alberta farmers can be thankful that tractors such as this (circa) 1928 edition, have been improved upon.

According to 1988 census figures 33 per cent of Alberta farmers reported no interest payments and are thereby assumed to have no debt. This put Alberta somewhere between the other two Prairie provinces. About 32 per cent of Saskatchewan farmers reported paying no interest and 35 per cent of Manitoba producers reported no interest charges.

Drought assistance program

More details on the Canadian crop drought assistance program (CCDAP) have been announced by federal Agriculture Minister Don Mazankowski and Grains and Oilseeds Minister Charles Mayer.

An estimated $850 million will be paid to producers who suffered significant crop losses because of the 1988 drought.

"We are targeting payments to producers who were most seriously hurt," said Mazankowski. "This requires specific yield loss data and we are working closely with provincial crop insurance agencies to define payment rates for each drought area."

Personalized applications were mailed Feb. 10 directly to farmers in areas where the drought caused significant losses. Applications have been personalized to speed up cheque delivery.

Farmers who have not received an application and who feel they may be eligible can call the program toll-free number for an application. Farmers must return an application in order to be eligible for CCDAP assistance.

For more information on the program, producers can call 1-800-267-6343 between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Grasshopper population decreasing

For the third consecutive year grasshopper numbers will continue their slow population decline in Alberta.

Low to moderate infestations are forecast for 1989, except in some southwestern counties.

A major factor in determining what will happen to the grasshopper population is the weather. Conditions last year have meant a decline in their numbers for 1989.

Weather is a deciding factor in grasshopper reproduction and hatching. The grasshopper outbreak began with unusually warm and dry late summers in 1983 and 1984.

Generally warm, dry springs are the most favorable hatching conditions. Wet, cooler soil delays hatching and if it's prolonged, can even promote growth a fungus that attacks eggs in the soil.

Conditions from the previous fall and winter also affect the grasshopper population. If there is too little moisture over the fall and winter, then incubating eggs can be set back or destroyed.

Canadian weather trivia

Jan. 5, 1884: A spectacular temperature change occurred at Pincher Creek, AB. Thermometer readings were -24.4 at 7 a.m., 0.6 at 8 a.m. and -21.7 at 9 a.m. The temperature remained steady until 3 p.m. and then rose to 2.2 for the rest of the day.

Feb. 7, 1947: Southern Saskatchewan was reeling from a series of blizzards which began Jan. 30 and continued to Feb. 8. For 10 days all highways into Regina were blocked. Railway officials declared conditions the worst in Canadian rail history. One train was buried in a snowdrift 1 km long and 8 m deep.

March 30, 1984: A severe earthquake centred near Anchorage, Alaska produced a tidal wave that damaged several communities on Vancouver Island.

April 21, 1985: The worst April snowstorm in 30 years struck Alberta. The heaviest snowfall of 40 to 80 cm fell in central Alberta. The storm was unusually wet, temperatures were near freezing and the winds were 30-50 km/h.

May 6, 1972: A late blast of winter struck southern Alberta and Sask. Record low temperatures were 9 degrees below average; 35.4 cm of snow fell at Rockglen, Sask.

June 1981: Across western Canada, June 1981 is remembered as the hottest driest month in history. By the end of June, grain growing areas were locked into a serious drought.

July 14, 1983: Hailstones as large as golf balls covered 1800 sq. km. in central Alberta. Thousands of birds were crushed by hail.

Aug. 1, 1987: Edmonton was cleaning up after a tornado devastated the city on the 31st. The storm was the most destructive in Canadian history.

Sept. 24, 1950: The Great Smoke Pall, fed by musk and forest fires in northern Alberta, spread across North America darkening skies in eastern Canada in the afternoon and in Europe 2 days later.

Oct. 12, 1987: Snowdrifts up to 3 m deep were left by a freak blizzard which hit Lesotho in southern Africa. Eight herdboys were frozen to death.

Nov. 14, 1972: Winds of 130 km/h caused Lake Erie to "tilt". The water level at the eastern end dropped 1.2 m, while extensive flooding took place at the western end, causing $25 M in property loss and damage.

Dec. 7, 1917: A cruel blizzard, with 40.6 cm of snow and 55 km/h winds, added greatly to the misery of Halifax. The previous day, the Halifax Explosion—the greatest non-nuclear explosion in history—killed 1630 people and left thousands injured and homeless.

Great natural resource

In the perspective of the '80s, Alberta has developed one of the most productive agricultural economies in the world.

Alberta produces 80 per cent of the total Canadian agricultural output with approximately nine per cent of its population, a major accomplishment for a province less than 100 years old.

Agricultural land is one of Alberta's greatest natural resources. There are nearly 50 million acres (20 million hectares) used in crop and livestock production with approximately 27 million acres (11 million hectares) classified as cultivated.

Most of the cultivated land, including the two million acres (800,000 hectares) under irrigation, is seeded to wheat, barley, tame hay, canola, oats, mixed grains, rye and flaxseed. The remaining land and a major portion of the capital involved in agriculture is directed to livestock production.

Canada major source

Canada is recognized internationally as the major source of quality dairy cattle and many of the top Canadian dairy cattle originate in Alberta.

Alberta has approximately 10 per cent of the national dairy herd with Holsteins making up the greatest percentage of the Alberta dairy population. There are also herds of Jerseys, Ayrshires, Guernseys and dairy-type Brown Swisses.

Most Alberta dairy cattle, purebred and grade, are performance tested. Milk recording programs in Canada are sponsored by the federal and provincial governments and coordinated by the Canadian Milk Recording Board which monitors all such programs to ensure the authenticity of the data. The programs enable breeders to appraise the performance of the cattle at the farm level and in terms of national averages.

Agriculture Week '89
March 12-18, 1989
Agriculture is everybody's business

AGRICULTURE WEEK

Food is the essence of life and Alberta farmers are dedicated to the production of high quality foods. Their progressive nature and efficient production makes Agriculture the backbone of Alberta's economy and supplies our table with 'daily bread'.

NO NATION THAT VALUES LIFE CAN NEGLECT ITS AGRICULTURE.

Spirit of Old West can be found in these recipes

Back in the good old days when men were men and...well, you know the rest...the smell of a hearty meal cooked over an open flame triggered coyote song across the West.

Then, to the coyotes' disapproval, the Wild West was won, John Wayne started advertising milk and a good old buffalo kill was replaced with microwavable Hungryman dinners.

Nevertheless, there's still a bit of the wild spirit in some recipes and, if you listen real hard, you can hear a few wild coyotes yelping with anticipation of the next roundup.

Red meat stabilization amendments

A number of amendments to the existing red meat stabilization programs have been agreed upon by the Alberta government, which provide for participation by producers in every province in national stabilization programs for hogs, sheep and beef cattle.

Premier Don Getty, as chairman of the Agriculture and Rural Economy Committee of Cabinet, says: "These amendments are important to our farmers and ranchers, because they should eliminate the competition that has existed among provincial treasuries in providing support to each province's livestock industry. Alberta has long advocated the development of a level playing field for all Canadian red meat producers."

"The producers are the most important component of these programs," says Agriculture Minister Peter Elzinga. "With their concurrence, and once a legal and technical review of the documents has been completed, the provincial government will be ready to sign these important amending agreements."

Associate Agriculture Minister Shirley Cripps says, "It simply makes good sense to have all producers competing on an equal footing. These agreements reinforce the province's commitment to providing our farmers and ranchers with a strong safety net to carry them through the tough times of the market cycle."

Alberta is the leading oats producing province in Canada. In 1988 Alberta farmers grew 107 million bushels of oats, followed by Saskatchewan with 31 million bushels, Quebec with 18.4 million bushels and Manitoba with 16.8 million bushels.

Moose Head

Skin head and take off horns. Hang by cord or chain over a fire, for 6 hours. Use a stick to turn meat as it roasts.

Another way to cook moose head is to just throw it into the fire; after it is cooked the skin is taken off.

Stewed Porcupine

Put porcupine into a good fire to burn off the quills.

Scrape, then peel the skin off; clean; then boil porcupine in water, enough to cover. Change the water and boil with seasoning to taste, until tender.

Gopher

You may singe all of the fur off, or skin the gopher. Clean gopher. Cut it into 4 parts, split it in half, or leave it whole. It can be roasted on a stick over a fire or it can be boiled.

Beaver Tail

Roast beaver tail over campfire, cut it open and pull the skin off. (This makes a very rich meat.)

Pickled Beaver Paws

Cook beaver paws slowly in water with a little vinegar added, until meat begins to fall from bones. Season to taste with salt, onion, bay leaf or other seasoning. Chill, or seal in sterilized jars. The same can be done with bear paws.

Campfire Bannock

2 cups flour

1/2 teaspoon salt

2 teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons lard
Enough water to make soft dough

Heat frying pan over hot coals; add enough lard to cover bottom of pan.

Spoon dough into pan; flatten top, and fry until bannock is well raised. Turn and cook the other side; add more lard if needed. Do not have frypan too hot. You can also cook this as a dumpling in a stew.

CANADA-ALBERTA Forage Insurance

1989 DROUGHT PROTECTION for Hay Crops and Pastures

Apply for Forage Insurance or confirm your policy by March 31 at your local district office

Forage insurance is no longer an emergency measure in Alberta, although that's how the program started. Experience soon proved that farmers and ranchers everywhere in Alberta need to protect hay crops and pastures from the risk of drought losses every year.

You benefit if you insure every year. Full coverage benefits for continuous participation. But if you drop out of the Forage Insurance plan, your claim is reduced by 25% in the year you re-insure. Your policy is renewed automatically. Subject to confirmation by March 31, your policy continues each year until you cancel it.

That's why thousands of hay and livestock producers will sign up or renew their Canada-Alberta Forage Insurance protection in 1989. It is practical, low-cost assistance when drought creates feed and forage shortages.

NEW APPLICATIONS FOR FORAGE INSURANCE ACCEPTED ONLY TO MARCH 31.

To apply or obtain further information, contact your local district office of Alberta Hay & Crop Insurance Corporation.

By Belinda Atkinson

Local realtors could not confirm last week whether Principal Group founder Don Cormie put his $14-million ranch on the market.

The Edmonton Journal reported March 11 that Cormie listed his 8,000 hectare ranch for $5 million but local realtors say the Tomahawk area estate is not included in their catalogues or update sheets.

Maxine Phillips, of Century 21, said her company is a member of the same real estate board as Canada Trust in Edmonton, which is handling the sale, and should have access to the information.

She and Chad Nichols, owner of NRS, are members of the Edmonton Real Estate Board and have authorization to show the ranch to interested buyers, she said.

A spokesman for Century 21 said it is normal practice to list such a sale in the MLS Catalogue but Canada Trust is not required to do so.

The biggest question circulating about the ranch, however, is whether it will stay on the market for long.

While it is currently exempt from a suit investors launched against the Principal Group, First Investors Corp. and Associated Investors of Canada, it could still be the target of legal action.

The conditional settlement reached in 1987 could be overturned by action against Cormie because of possible fraud, according to The Journal.

Company records used as evidence at the Code inquiry showed millions of dollars were transferred to the ranch through a "once-mysterious Department 8."

Even with the money, the Cormie ranch was still reported to have lost $542,387 in 1987.

Jaime heads to California

By Belinda Atkinson

Three months of worry have ended for Jaime Gilbert with a letter from a California clinic stating her application for treatment has been accepted.

If Lawrence Berkeley Laboratories had turned down the request, the 12-year-old girl would be forced to undergo brain surgery knowing speech and memory would be lost.

But a second chance in the form of cyclotron treatments has given the family hope that Jaime will be cured of Arterio Venous Malformation (AVM) without lasting disability.

"A lot of pressure has been lifted off my shoulders," said mother Jane Robinson, obviously overcome by the news.

Robinson, Jaime and sister Roxanne will fly to California April 8 with initial tests to begin two days after their arrival.

Preparation for treatment will include partially shaving Jaime's head, something Jaime wishes was not necessary, but Robinson is more concerned by warnings in the letter.

"There's a small chance of bleeding as a result of the treatment that could have serious consequences such as brain damage or death," Robinson explained.

She added benefits would not be immediate and cerebral hemorrhaging is possible up to a year after treatment is complete.

"I'm not going to think about that. I'm going to be optimistic," she said.

One thing Robinson cannot be optimistic about, however, is the bill she will face once extensive tests, treatments, transportation and hotel costs are tallied.

Since Jaime will be an out-patient, Robinson says certain costs and medications may not be reimbursed by Alberta Health Care.

Many costs will be covered but insurance regulations stipulate payment will only cover costs comparable to the province's rates.

Cyanide scare reaches local stores

By Belinda Atkinson

A world-wide cyanide scare forced local grocers to clean their bins of $1,650 worth of Chilean fruit early last week.

Blocks owner Hamdon Hamdon removed grapes, pears, nectarines and plums March 13 after hearing on Canada AM that cyanide was discovered in two Chilean red grapes in Philadelphia.

IGA produce manager Anne Reich ordered the removal of grapes, nectarines, peaches and plums March 14 after watching a news report in which Health Minister Perrin Beatty announced a national ban.

According to Reich, Edmonton wholesaler Horne and Pitfield never contacted the store asking that Chilean produce be removed.

"As a rule, they do inform us (in situations) like this but I have a feeling they were very busy," she said.

Grocery People, Blocks' wholesaler, called Hamdon Tuesday afternoon but the produce had already been taken off the shelves, he said.

The grocers destroyed some of the fruit but all unopened cartons have been shipped back to the Edmonton wholesalers.

They are now waiting disposal instructions from the federal Health Protection Branch but the grapes were close to spoiling last Thursday.

Blocks and IGA have been and will continue to offer refunds for Chilean fruit but the grocers are still unsure whether they will receive any compensation.

"I talked to the wholesaler this morning and he said the Chilean government isn't going to pay," Hamdon said.

This rumor was confirmed in an Edmonton Journal report March 16 that Canadian retailers and wholesalers needn't look to Chile for compensation.

Chile's ambassador to Canada Jorge Berguno Barnes made the statement, reasoning a ban was not justified and should be lifted immediately.

"Fruit imported to Canada is Canadian property, not Chilean," he said.

Roadway issue raises tempers

By Frank Ryan

Tempers flared as town council met for the first time last Thursday in their new chambers.

The outburst came during a long discussion on the town's planning of a future network roadway system on the west and southern side of Drayton Valley.

The presentation, made by administration, calls for a new road, to be called 41 Ave., to extend from Highway 22 across to 50th Street near Woodland Chrysler.

Another proposal had a major road being extended along 57th St. (at the Beehive corner on 50 Ave.), near Watine Park and a residential area and south to hook up with 34th Ave. near the mill.

The debate heated up when councillors Alex Salfi and Howard Olsen took different stands on the issue.

"Without plans in front of me I can't approve," Salfi stated.

He indicated his concern over two petitions that had been sent to council earlier and the fact the proposed road (57 St.) was so close to the homes.

"I see traffic being a problem. We will be routing everything through there...RVs, etc.

Local News Briefs

The majority of the dances planned for Frank Maddock High have been cancelled.

Due to the actions of a few at a school dance last month, principal Al Day has cancelled the dances.

The one exception is the senior class year-end dance on May 26.

Mike Anderson and Jeff Wardlow, who are employed with the MD, attended an Alberta Public Safety Services three-day program management course recently in Edmonton.

Adam Eckert Developments has been hired by the MD to build a 16-by-16-foot vault.

A pipe break at the MD building recently cost $1,125 to repair.

The MD contributes 27 per cent of the shared cost of the Drayton Valley Regional Landfill operation and another $75,000 toward the cost of the transfer stations.

The town only had to write off two NSF cheques last year totalling $230

Town council has appointed Collins Barrow as its auditors. They have been doing it for the last 15 years.

Town council has okayed the 1989 garbage contract with V.J. Disposals.

However, it's the town's intention to put the 1990 contract out to bid.

The town has awarded their fuel contract to ICG Liquid Gas.

Both ICG and the UFA Co-op had the same prices for regular and regular unleaded, but ICG was 25 cents lower in its price per litre for diesel.

Councillor Alex Salfi, who is manager at ICG, asked to be excused from the discussion.

James Dryden, who has voiced his concerns, joins committee.

Council appoints committee

Town council has appointed three people from the council appointee had to be the chairman.

The appointments include Dean Hjelte, James Dryden and Wayne Terry. All three indicated in their applications they live near the mill.

Dryden has voiced his concerns about the mill for the past two years.

Howard Olsen will be the town's rep on the committee and will also serve as chairman.

Bob Olson, plant manager at Pelican is also expected to sit on the committee.

Councillor Tom McGee raised his objections that the council appointee had to be the chairman.

"It indicates the town is running," he stated during last Thursday's debate.

Mayer Bob Mayhew disagreed, stating it's only one vote.

"We don't want to control this committee. That really bothers me..."

Councillor Alex Salfi endorsed McGee's thoughts.

"We don't want to control this committee. That really bothers me," he stated.

The committee will address problems with a view to developing solutions that are acceptable to all.

Meanwhile, council is still waiting for a report from Alberta Environment on samples of dust McGee brought to council.

Manny Deol, the town manager, stated that every time he calls the environmental people they are in meetings.

"Their lack of response concerns me. Send them a letter," McGee stated.

Renovations needed to Breton school

By Susan Mosciacki

A classroom in an old wing of the Breton high school attracted a great deal of interest recently.

Fire Chief Allan Smith and maintenance head of Twin Rivers school division Darren McKenzie were called to the school to determine whether safety of the Grade 7 students in the classroom was in jeopardy.

According to principal Jim Musson, the floor of the classroom was sinking and ceiling tiles were coming loose. Musson removed students from the room until the extent of the damage could be determined.

"It would appear that the ground is settling under the building," said Smith. "I asked that they (the school) have someone evaluate the extent of the damage."

"Apparently a tile (ceiling tile) came loose and there is some shifting," said Bill Weber, secretary treasurer of Twin Rivers school division. But there's "no danger there," he promised.

"That whole school needs renovations," said Weber. With only seven schools in the Twin Rivers school division's district, Weber says, "It places them (Breton high) a lot further up the list (for modernization)."

"Twin Rivers school division came out and said that it wasn't serious," said one of the teachers. "They nailed the ceiling tile back up."

The school division believes the ground has settled under the floor of the classroom causing it to sink somewhat. Apparently there is no structural damage to the building.

"While it's still an ugly room, it is safe," said Musson.

Man guilty of fraud

A 35-year-old man was found guilty March 16 of obtaining food and lodging by fraud.

John Douglas Wesley, of no fixed address, committed the offence between Nov. 23 and Dec. 11, 1987 while staying at the Twin Valley Motor Inn in Drayton Valley.

Wesley was sentenced to 30 days in jail plus seven days for failing to appear at his first trial.

Speech problems above norm

By Sue Kenyon

In a review of special needs submitted to the Twin Rivers school board, the Edmonton Regional District states that Drayton Valley shows a higher than normal incidence of speech problems with students with special needs.

"The norm is about 10 per cent so Drayton Valley is higher than that," Susan Beagle, speech pathologist working in Drayton Valley said.

Beagle works with school-age children and she says basically the problems she sees are either language problems or speech articulation difficulties.

"The majority of kids in any area have difficulty with language more than articulation," she said.

Articulation refers to the pronunciation of letters and Beagle said the most common mistakes occur with the letters F, R, T, H, and L.

Beagle said academics and speech difficulties are not necessarily correlated but when testing is done on students with special needs, the percentage of students with speech problems is higher than those without.

"However, a student may do fine in the classroom and yet may have a minor language difficulty," she said.

Ellen Benna, speech pathologist working with preschool children said the higher percentage may be due to simply a higher percentage of children in the norm.

"I may be wrong but this area seems to have an awful lot of young people. Those young people have children and I understand our birth rate in Drayton Valley is higher than usual," she said.

Benna agreed with Beagle saying the most prevalent problem in the area is language.

"Either vocabulary skills are weak or children's understanding of the vocabulary is lower than expected for their age group," she said.

AUDITORS' REPORT

The Revere and Members of Council,
The County of Parkland No. 31

We have examined the consolidated balance sheet of the County of Parkland No. 31 as at December 31, 1988 and the statements of municipal revenues and expenditures and education revenues and expenditures and the consolidated statements of equity in fixed assets, operating surplus and capital finances acquired and applied for the year then ended. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards, and accordingly included such tests and other procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

In our opinion, these financial statements present fairly the financial position of the County as at December 31, 1988 and the results of its operations and changes in its capital financing for the year then ended in accordance with the disclosed basis of accounting described in Note 1 applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

Opinions

Another 12 months for help to arrive?

Call it a two-blow punch. A knockout.

First, we hear that patients who want to see the mental health counsellor are facing between a three- and four-month waiting period.

Then, we got the 'knockout punch last week with news that Kelly Frederickson, the mental health counsellor for the past 18 months will be leaving at the end of the month.

Realizing the agony people went through prior to Frederickson's arrival has a lot of people concerned.

Especially when they hear a recruitment program is underway to fill the vacancy. But, in the meantime, clients who utilized the Drayton Valley office will be handled on an interim basis out of Leduc.

Are we looking at another 12-month wait between counsellors?

Or is it another example of a government freeze?

Maybe it's the government's intention to handle the Drayton Valley and area business out of their Leduc office.

The new MLA is going to hear about this.

A lot of people who care about this sort of thing look at it as another saga in the continuous battle to get professional people out here.

A three- or four-month waiting list and the loss of the mental health counsellor isn't life threatening.

But let's not lose sight of the 11 confirmed suicides recorded here just over a year ago.

Lariettes play great hockey — let's support them

I've got just the deal for someone who wants to make a lot of money.

It's not really a new idea, but one a lot of motorists would undoubtedly appreciate.

One of the real fears of driving, is having a flat tire. Especially when you find out it's next to impossible to get the wheel nuts off.

Most of the nuts were put on by one of those air guns that are common in most garages.

How about a portable gun to take those nuts off. It could operate off the lighter.

We may find there's already one of these on the market. If that's the case, it's a big, dark secret.

We've talked a lot about the apathy in these here parts when any sort of election comes around.

Frankly Speaking

By the time you read this the provincial election will be history, but don't be alarmed at another poor turnout.

If you're looking for an excuse, try the fact that no individual or organization organized an all candidates forum in Drayton Valley.

Any time we've had an election, it's always been considered that it was important to hold an election forum here, as it's the biggest centre in the constituency.

The Drayton Valley Lariettes are hosting the girls provincial hockey championships this Saturday and Sunday at the sports centre.

Larry Nelson, the Lariettes sponsor, has done a tremendous job promoting the girls' game.

I know it would be very gratifying to him to see a good turnout.

Besides that, the girls play an excellent brand of hockey and deserve everyone's support.

Taxes could be better spent

Dear Editor,
The Life Support Society of Drayton Valley and district, who has been operating a lifeline emergency response call service since the beginning of 1985 in the area, at a minimal rate of $10 per month to seniors and disabled people, cannot understand why the government should now be promising thousands of dollars for seniors to purchase their own units at $700 apiece.

Furthermore, have they considered what becomes of those units when seniors no longer require their use; how will the unit be connected with a response centre without going through an established, experienced organization; or, how can a unit operate without backup personnel and servicing? We, like many other non-profit organizations, are funded by local donations and government grants from the Wild Rose Foundation, and New Horizons, which presents no direct tax burden to the citizens of Alberta.

Although we are pleased to see the government recognize the need to keep seniors in their own homes opposed to institutions, we feel our tax dollars could be better spent in providing assistance for the operation and expansion of programs already in place.

Georgina Armstrong

Province may cut STEP in half

Twenty summer students may be affected if the provincial government cuts back on their STEP program.

The town, MD, consortium and the chamber's tourist booth all use summer help from the summer tourist employment program.

However, a Jan. 17 letter to Alberta Recreation and Parks Association says the province is looking at a possible 50 per cent cut this year.

Both the town and MD have received copies of that letter.

For several years the tourist booth has been staffed in the summer by STEP students.

"We've always applied for three students and got three students," says tourist committee coordinator Natalie Gibson.

"I'm not sure what the chamber would do if there was a cutback as we operate on a limited budget," she added.

The town will be applying for 10 or 12 students through the program that sees the government pay about three-quarters of the wages.

"It helps our budget every year," says manager Manny Deol.

The MD will be right behind the town with 10 applications.

The consortium is also very dependent on the students.

"We couldn't function without them in the summer," says consortium boss Joe MacLellan.

"If we don't get the students it will put us in a difficult position with our move and everything."

Pioneers honored at recent Baron's ball

Five area pioneers were honored during the recent Cattle Baron's ball.

They included Augusta Joesting who settled in the Lodgepole/Violet Grove area, Elsie Fleisher of Breton, Ed and Lela Goddard from Lindale, Lester Cropley and Gaston and Marion Jouan.

Statues were presented to each recipient by Cecil Anderson, president of the Drayton Valley Agricultural Society.

Despite an afternoon blizzard, the eighth annual ball attracted a full house at the Legion.

The awards, something the agricultural society hope to make an annual event, were in recognition of outstanding commitment to the development of agriculture and rural life in the district.

Dev Brooks, district home economist and Gerald Dierhuis, district agriculturist, hosted the awards ceremony.

"This is agricultural day. A

day to be proud of our occupation. A chance to reflect on the past year and look with enthusiasm to the future," Laerhuis stated.

"We are here to share our pride in agriculture, to socialize with our neighbors and fellow farmers. We are here because we believe in agriculture here in Drayton Valley and to show it is a worthy and viable occupation," said the district agriculturist.

The pioneers honored at the ball were selected by a committee following discussions with several farmers in the area.

"It will create a bottleneck. It's totally, totally wrong," he told council.

Charlie Miner added that he felt the town had to go back and address the residents' concerns.

When it came time to discuss a budget for road construction, Salfi and Olsen squared off.

"Administration has made up their mind. I get a little upset when we're being railroaded. It's ridiculous," Salfi explained.

"Councillor Salfi has missed the whole point," Olsen remarked.

"Councillor Olsen's off in left field. We're not responsible to the residents if we do this," Salfi replied.

Salfi told council that he just saw the concept hours before it was discussed, and would like more time to digest it.

"When we start budgeting it's not a concept," Salfi said.

Mayor Bob Mayhew got into the conversation and said the intention of the motion was just to put money aside.

Salfi got the last word in when he asked, "Why do we have to budget to put money away for roads?"

Miner cleared up a lot of the concerns when he stated that they were only approving the concept of two roadways. "It doesn't insure construction."

The mayor told council the town was looking at a potential traffic problem in the area and they were going to have to sit down and address it some time.

In the end...the concept was accepted. However, any reference to a budget for roadways was dropped.

Manny Deol, the town manager, said one of the biggest concerns raised by the residents was over the noise. He indicated that would be addressed during the construction process.

Snowfall affects roads

The town is not anticipating a lot of problems over the heavy snowfall the town has received this season.

Manny Deol, town manager, says crews will be out to clear away the worst.

However, he says there's a good possibility all the snow might have an effect on the roads come spring.

The town budgeted $60,000 for snow removal this winter. The storm at the end of January ate up $32,000 of that.

Crowd warms to concert

It was standing room only and not much of that for the 1989 spring concert held at Eldorado school recently. There were a whole lot of people to see those kids performing, kids which Howard Pearson, principal, said made up only one-third of the school.

One of the highlights of the evening came at the end with Jennifer Brewer's debut.

Brewer was the "little bunny, smallest of them all," in an operetta that some students performed. Brewer played the down-and-out bunny that wouldn't hop and played her part tremendously.

The evening began with slides of students, shown to the music, Color my World.

In one hour the students accomplished squeezing in a song called The Windmill performed by Grade 1s. They also performed Dicky Dicky Dinosaur.

Grade 3 recited the poem, March and sang two songs, Let's Go Fly a Kite and The Rainbow Connection.

A combined Grade 2 choir sang several songs including The Happy Wanderer and Mr. Sun.

"Let's go fly a kite," students at Eldorado's spring concert sang out. This was just one of many songs performed by students. This group also sang "The Rainbow Connection."

Town renovations underway

Renovations are expected to start shortly on the old town office.

The Pembina Educational Consortium recently signed an eight-year lease with the town to use the building.

Joe MacLellan, consortium executive director, says renovations are expected to cost about $100,000.

Architects are expected to be in town this week with the final drawings.

MacLellan says the renovations should be done in about three months.

He had hoped the work would have started the first week in March, but even with the delay, he isn't anticipating any problems.

In the lease agreement, the consortium has secured use of the building and the parking lot south to the bowling alley, with the exception of the last row of cars.

A better location and more parking were two of the reasons the consortium went looking for a better facility.

They are presently located in the industrial area on the west side of town.

Powerhouse Further Education Council who presently share quarters with the consortium, will also be moving into the old town office.

Sergeant condemns numerous RCMP transfers at meeting

"We're going to run out of people to transfer pretty soon."

That comment was made by RCMP Staff-Sgt. Jim Humphrey during his appearance before town council last Thursday.

The latest transfers will see Cpl. Tim Vatamaniuk going to McGrath and Const. Yves Robitaille will join the detachment at Cardston.

The transfers don't take effect until June.

Sgt. Tom Turner, who left the local detachment earlier this year for Redwater, says he saw 24 members pass through the Drayton Valley office during his eight years here.

Last year the detachment saw Const. Phil Avison transferred to the drug section in Calgary, Const. Jeff Smith went to Taber and Const. Laura Rutledge resigned to get married.

Former Staff-Sgt. Les Bannerman was transferred to Morinville in August of 1987.

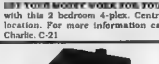

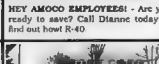

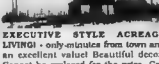

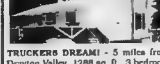

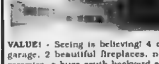

The number of transfers that has all but depleted the local detachment of long service members, actually started in 1986 when Cpl. Chris Lee was transferred to Cardston and Ken Patterson went to Edmonton.

Lee has moved up the ladder, going to Cardston as a sergeant and is now staff sergeant at that southern Alberta detachment.

Turner, a corporal here, was promoted to sergeant-in-charge when he moved to Redwater.

HATS OFF TO OUR LOCAL HEROS

Const. Grant Gingery's life has changed a lot in the last six months.

A new wife, recent placement at his first RCMP detachment and first home outside Quebec add up to many drastic changes for the 25-year-old Montreal native.

Gingery expected a few adjustments when he married and moved here six months ago but has yet to find them, he said.

"So far it's been great," Gingery is now whiling away his free time on a hockey league and still enjoying the honeymoon, since the move didn't allow time for an official one.

Aisha, his wife, works as a registered nurse at the hospital and has also found an easy transition to small-town life.

RCMP band coming

They say if you do something wrong, you have to pay the piper but they never mentioned the saxophonist or violinist.

Nevertheless, 32 pipers and rank-holding RCMP officers will entertain Drayton Valley April 6 at Frank Maddock high school.

The RCMP concert band is world-renowned — having performed in "every corner of the globe" — for expertise beyond the typical marching band repertoire.

Nothing is out of this group's range: themes from well-known films, pop versions of concert hall classics, swing and even a few rock hits.

They promise to play at least one favorite for every concert goer but their mission is more than entertainment.

As musical ambassadors for the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, they encourage good will and promote the idea of authority working with and for communities rather than against.

They carry their message to 300 concerts per year, some gala events such as Canadian Embassy functions, trade fairs, Expo '88 in Brisbane, Australia ... the list goes on.

Approximately 85 per cent of their performances, however, are for charities and community organizations such as the store in Drayton Valley to raise money for the co-sponsoring Kinsmen Club.

The Kinsmen will then put funds back into community efforts.

Tickets are available at Home Hardware, Value Drug Mart, Venture Realty and the local RCMP detachment.

Decked out in his spotted tuxedo and necktie, Tawana stole people's hearts.

Cheetah thrills students

By Susan Mescicki

Local school gymnasiums were packed to near capacity last Tuesday to see, Al Oeming and his "great spotted gentleman."

Tawana, a 125-pound cheetah, was a hit with adults and children alike.

"The cheetahs are losing the race against extinction," said Oeming. "By 1991, the last ones in the wild could be gone."

Oeming is on the road constantly between Oct. 1 and mid-April each year visiting schools, senior citizens' homes and hospitals. He believes he is educating the public about animals facing extinction. "I'm basically trying to sensitize the public," he emphasized.

"One hide off a cheetah, poached, is worth $25,000," said Oeming. He is trying to bring more cheetahs to Canada "while there's still some left."

Dustin Nelson, a Grade 3 student at Eldorado school, was thrilled at having the opportunity to pet the majestic beast. He said he has been doing research on Paulette Davidson (middle) was one of the many children who couldn't wait to pet Tawana.

do, you're inspired by it."

In addition to Eldorado school, Oeming and Tawana visited Evergreen, Frank Maddock, St. Anthony, Breton and Alder Flats schools and the Shangri-La Lodge.

Tournament put on hold

The 40th edition of the Lacombe baseball tournament has been put on hold. At least until 1990.

In the interim, tournament organizers have appointed a steering committee to review all aspects of the tourney and see if it's feasible to facilitate a possible renewal of the event in 1990.

Saskatchewan visitor impressed with gun show

Bill Schiller has already booked space for next year's Evergreen Shooting Club gun show and sale.

Schiller, who lives at Carrot River, Sask. (located 100 miles east of Prince Albert) was very impressed with his visit to the recent show.

His knife display attracted a lot of interest.

And it's basically because of that interest he's already confirmed a space in next year's event.

Schiller isn't alone. Several people who attended the two-day show at the Elks Hall have already confirmed space for 1990.

"Yes, I'm coming back for sure. Mostly because of the interest the knives created and some sales," Schiller enthused.

Another newcomer to the Evergreen show and sale was Verne MacRoberts out of Peace River.

A six foot three-inch 1938 H. Elwell eight-bore punt gun attracted a lot of attention at his display. The asking price was $1,000.

Although he had to take it home, MacRoberts was satisfied with a decision to bypass a show at Fort St. John and come to Drayton Valley.

Tim Losey, a member of the Tomahawk Frontiersmen's Association was pleased with the response the show created.

Despite a weekend blizzard, organizers estimate about 550 people viewed the 60 displays.

Awards were presented to MacRoberts for excellence, Roy Nelson out of Stettler for merit and Mayor Bob Mayhew's display earned him the quality award.

Cougars lose basketball competition

Breton high school girls basketball team competed at the provincials in Nobleford recently.

Breton Lady Cougars had a 13-11 win-loss record going into the zone competitions.

The team continued on to win in their zone and earned the honor of competing in the provincials.

"It was exciting because we were the first team from Breton to get to the provincials," said Michelle Impey, a Grade 12 student who plays centre.

Although the Cougars did not win the provincial competition, coach Laurie Pewtress was proud of his team and their efforts. "They're extremely well mannered, they have an extremely good attitude towards basketball and they all work well as a team," he stated proudly.

Verne MacRoberts shows off his six-foot three-inch gun.

Getty buys horse from breeder

Premier Don Getty has purchased two thoroughbreds from Carnwood horse breeder Paul Luft.

The first one was at a horse auction in Calgary and the second one, last fall, was sold to Getty privately.

The premier has about six horses he races in the province.

The first horse Getty purchased in Calgary, that came from Luft's Chalet Stable, was later named Nice Norman, after former Edmonton Eskimo general manager Norm Kimball.

Nice Norman has raised over $58,000 racing in Alberta.

Mr. Chekov, a name taken from the television show Star Trek, was the name given to the horse Getty negotiated to purchase privately.

Luft, who has been raising thoroughbreds for 12 years, is extremely proud of his association with Premier Getty.

Junior curlers

Hinton takes gold medal

Hinton was the overall winner at last week's midget hockey tournament and Wetaskiwin was winner for the B event. Mayerthorpe won C and Drayton Valley was the winner of the C runner-up.

In Friday night's game Drayton Valley won 9-3 against Josephberg.

Saturday, Whitecourt took the win 7-2 against Drayton Valley. Len Johnson and Mike Ebnedy scored goals for the local team.

Drayton Valley won 1-2 against Devon and Jason Kipling scored five goals for the local team. Cory Dusterhoft made one, Chris Hutchinson and David Hill scored two, Len Johnson, Adrian Aganis and Warren Schnieder all made one.

Winner for the Sunday bronze medal was Mayerthorpe 9-8 against Drayton Valley. Scoring for Drayton Valley in that game were Len Johnson with three, Daylen Pfannmuller, Jason Woods, Darcy Saar, Serge Lacoste and David Hill with one each.

In the final game Sunday Hinton won 8-3 against Wetaskiwin. Hinton took the gold medal and Wetaskiwin took the silver.

Glenn Johnson said Hinton was a "good, strong team, that played an aggressive but clean game."

Town hosts hockey provincials

The first-ever girls midget girls hockey provincials will be held at the Drayton Sports Centre this Saturday and Sunday.

Teams from Medicine Hat, Sherwood Park, Edmonton and the host Lariettes are involved.

Six games will be played Saturday with another full schedule on Sunday with the bronze medal game at 2:15 p.m. and the championship game at 4:15 p.m.

The Lariettes play their first game at 8:30 a.m. on Saturday against the Edmonton Broncos.

The opening ceremonies will be held at noon on Saturday.

A full schedule is posted at the sports centre.

The provincials are being sponsored by the Royal Canadian Legion. They will also be putting on a free steak supper for all the players, coaches and referees.

"...club has a good shot at winning the gold medal," (Larry Nelson)

In conjunction with the provincials, two class 'A' teams will participate in a demonstration game at 12:30 p.m. on Sunday.

The game will feature the University of Alberta Icebreakers and the Sherwood Park Shooters. Liane Kwiatkowski of Drayton plays with the Shooters.

Larry Nelson, the Lariettes sponsor feels his club has a good shot at winning the gold medal.

All they need is a little local support.

Mixed 'spiel results

Between Thursday and Sunday Drayton Valley Curling Club held its mixed bonspiel.

Winner in the A event included skip Dave Sluchinski with Deanna Sluchinski, third; Ray Shapka second and Tina Howarth played lead.

Second in the A event was Dwight Kuzek, third Gimny Kuzek, second was Duke Anderson and the lead was Lynne Anderson. Third and fourth in the A were Keith Jamieson third and John Cameron fourth.

B event winners were the (Cont'd on page 19)

Locals organize fund-raising dance for Jaime

A benefit dinner and dance will be held for Jaime Gilbert April 21 at the Legion.

A magician and live band will be on hand to help raise funds for the local 12-year-old girl's treatment to correct Arterio Vercus Malformation (AVM).

Organizers Danny

Thompson, owner of Brendan New and Used, and Howard McKay, teacher from Evergreen, also plan to approach some celebrities from Edmonton to attract a full house to the 250-seat hall.

"We wanted to have some fun and see if we could raise a bunch of money for Jaime," he said. "It's going to cost a lot of money for her (treatment)."

The B-Blue Band will donate the evening's music and Edmonton magician

John Charles will perform for the children.

Thompson hopes by planning a varied show, both children and parents will want to attend.

He said parents can either choose to take their children home or let them stay for a dance following the entertainment and magician.

Sanding costs break record

This winter's fluctuating temperatures and heavy snowfall have left a chilling effect on the town's operational budget.

According to Manjeet Saran, town engineer, Drayton Valley has spent $20,000 on sanding so far, $6,000 more than all of last winter.

"That (cost) is probably more than the last seven or eight years," he said, adding sanding has continued to the end of April in the past.

Manjeet said the town has come to expect a problematic winter every two to three years where costs skyrocket and workers are kept busy around the clock at times.

He hopes the three, tired public works employees will have a smoother winter next year, but adds it is simply impossible to predict the weather in Alberta.

Restaurant competition at comfortable level

It seems Drayton Valley is at its peak with the number of restaurants in town.

Owners of fast food outlets say their business is still good despite new sit-down restaurants opening, but they say there is no more room.

"The only thing that seems to be left out is McDonalds but I really don't think there is any room for one, not even for another pizza or steak house," Moe Watfa, manager of Burger Baron said.

Watfa has managed the local Burger Baron for the past eight years and he says his business has fluctuated but remains good.

"Every time a new restaurant opens business slows but I would say on the whole, it has remained good," he said.

Oscar Szewc, manager of A&W for the last four years says his drive-thru does less business than his restaurant whereas Sonia Madi, manager for B&W for 13 years says the drive-thru is definitely busier than the restaurant.

"There are lots of restaurants in town and I would have to say our drive-thru gives us the most business, especially at lunch hour," Madi said.

Szewc says his business peaks yearly during May and June.

"Most of the kids are out of school and we get a lot of business from them; it seems to slow in August when most people go away on vacation," he said.

Eight local Highland dancers pass exams

Local highland dancers have been hopping lately between a competition in St. Albert and exams and competitions in Edmonton.

Alberta teachers and judges hosted a large ongoing competition in Edmonton, with three separate events spread over three months.

After points were tallied, two local girls came away with seven golds, two silvers and three bronze awards.

Amanda Town received one silver and two bronze; Shannon Bredin picked up five gold awards and one silver to add to her collection.

Bredin's big event, however, was the difficult challenge sword in which she received two golds and one bronze.

Another competition was held March 11 in St. Albert.

Christen Theisen placed fifth in the sword competition and Shannon Bredin took three gold and a class trophy.

The following dancers passed their exams March 12 in Edmonton and will move up to the next competition level: Alana Swendsen, Paulette Davidson, Marie Kjarlein, Amanda Town, Heather Cunningham, Christen Theisen, Deanne Jolly and Shannon Bredin.

The girls will compete in the annual ninth competition May 26 at Frank Maddock high school.

Fastball leagues gearing up for new season

Services for Children offers best of both worlds

Working mothers are faced with a difficult decision when choosing where to place their children during the day.

While professionally run day care centres hire employees with post-secondary training in early childhood education, some parents may worry overcrowding will result in a lack of adequate supervision.

Babysitters can offer the attention a young person needs but may not have the training to properly handle an emergency situation.

There is one agency, however, that provides the best of both worlds with trained individuals who provide care in their own homes.

Unlike the eight children to one teacher ratio for three and four year olds or the 10-to-one ratio for five year olds at a licensed day care, Services for Children restricts the maximum number of youngsters in a home to three.

"We'd like to have some backup...We really could use more providers."

New located in most urban and many rural centres across the province, Services for Children tries to create a home atmosphere for children of working parents.

According to Rita Lindberg-Davis, who recruits care givers for Drayton Valley, seven women in the area provide day care from their homes.

"Their backgrounds are checked to see if they have criminal records," she said. "It's just a safer way to go."

Beyond that, she says the agency provides health care seminars and demands that suitable toys be available, gates block staircases, snacks follow the Canada Food Guide and crafts are available for the children.

Monthly informational sessions are also held in which care givers meet to discuss ideas for child care.

"The topics could range from a visit by a health nurse to special immunization sessions," she said, adding care givers learned how to mix paints at the last session.

Lindberg-Davis is currently looking for new care givers in the area.

Between the seven care givers, Lindberg-Davis' own licensed day home, and DV Happy Day Care, all preschool aged children are provided for but she says this situation constantly fluctuates.

"We'd like to have some backup," she says. "We really could use more providers."

She warns this is not a money-making venture and women involved often put much of the profit back into crafts.

"It's got to be for the love of it," she says.

If you are interested in becoming a care giver, contact 542-5513.

Rita Donovan cares for Lauren Edwards, 4, during the day.

Calmar man found guilty of cruelty to animals

David Nestorovich of Calmar has been found guilty in Breton Provincial Court of cruelty to animals.

Judge M.G. Tomyn sentenced him to one day in jail, two years probation, and prohibited from owning any animal for two years. Nestorovich was also ordered to reimburse expenses totalling in excess of $200 to the RCMP and the Alberta SPCA.

A charge of failing to provide suitable and adequate feed for pigs, under Section 446 of the Criminal Code, was laid against Nestorovich following an investigation by Special Const. Morris Airey of the Alberta SPCA in January 1989. Fifty-four hogs were found dead and 47 in extremely poor condition on the farm.

As laid out in the Animal Protection Act the 47 live hogs were humanely euthanized on the advice of a licenced veterinarian.

Area oil companies don't work out

By Belinda Atkinson
Company-sponsored fitness programs are popular at oil firm head offices in Calgary and Edmonton but have not caught on in Drayton Valley. According to spokesmen, local workers do not receive compensation for fitness club membership fees nor have they requested it.

"If an employee is interested in a fitness program and it's offered by a doctor then (he) can join and be compensated," said Kim Meunier, administrative assistant for Esso Resources Canada Ltd.

Meunier said local workers have signed up for Tae Kwan Do and similar clubs, but because they were not ordered by a doctor, workers neither requested nor received financial compensation.

Meunier said employees would probably jump at the chance for such a program locally but no one, to her knowledge has attempted to claim membership fees yet.

A spokesman for Home Oil Company Ltd. said local employees are entitled to the same fitness club fee compensation as workers in the Calgary office but no one has bothered looking into it.

"There's nothing available in town so we never enquired about it," she said.

Canadian Occidental Petroleum Ltd. supports baseball and volleyball teams but does not pay fitness club fees, according to the yard and office superintendent.

"There's a (company) gym in Calgary and changing rooms. People can go and pump iron," Joe Palmer said.

Palmer said the idea of building an in-house weight room locally has surfaced from time to time but no one has followed through with definite plans.

A spokesman for Texaco Canada Resources Ltd. said the Calgary office has its own centre and Edmonton employees are compensated for fitness club membership fees but Drayton Valley has nothing in place.

"They'll pay for the membership fee but it has to be an established centre," she said, adding local facilities do not apply.

St Anthony part of resources project

A group of 14 Catholic school divisions, including the one St. Anthony's belongs to, have been given extra resources.

A pilot project of a curriculum resource bank (CRB) started because of a lack of teaching resources, has been made available to St. Anthony's.

"The number of curriculum changes adopted by Alberta Education has increased," says Catholic School Division superintendent Valerie Keates, "but resources (available to rural schools) have decreased."

The CRB has been a success because of a generous amount of funding provided by a Catholic school division near Fort Saskatchewan.

As well, each school participating in this project pays a $10-per-person fee.

This year, the CRB will change subjects each year; three people have been hired to travel around the school districts with teaching materials.

Language arts, math and science are the pilot subjects for the first program.

Workshops are held for the teachers to make the extra teaching resources available to them.

So far, St. Anthony's has received nine workshop days.

An example of how the CRB helps is by providing copies of new resource material before it has to be purchased by the schools.

St. Anthony's has been able to look at four new recommended textbooks in the language arts studies.

After viewing the textbooks for a few weeks, teachers will be able to decide which one will be most appropriate for their classes before purchasing the books outright.

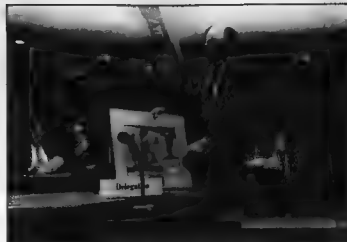

Next year the subjects will likely change. Keates says perhaps social studies will be included in CRB because the subject matter is changing in that area.

District superintendents will be gathering information from the participating schools to determine which subject will be handled next.

So far, Keates says the project is going well. Materials like science project kits are becoming available where there would not have been funding to provide it.

The Catholic School Board may have to look into the project next year as a regular program if it continues to do as well as it is now.

Breton chamber to be 'more aggressive'

"It's time we (the Breton Chamber of Commerce) address our concerns to the MLA," said Rosemary Durrant, chamber treasurer.

The concern, according to Durrant, is to make sure Breton is not ignored. Although Durrant said she didn't believe Breton has been ignored, she said, "It is very easy for small villages to fade away."

The chamber met last Wednesday and elected new officials.

Tom Hawryluk was elected president; Graham Platt, vice-president; Julie Stefura, secretary; and Durrant was re-elected treasurer.

It was decided the chamber would follow the same format as they did last year. Another pancake breakfast and July 1 parade were agreed upon.

Documents signed

Officials praise new chambers

Town council met in their new chambers for the first time last Thursday morning. "It's indeed a pleasure," Mayor Bob Mayhew stated.

The first order of business saw Jeff Hampton, on behalf of the County of Parkland, present a photo to the town, to be displayed in the sports centre.

Each member of council also signed a commemorative plaque.

Visitors to the new council chambers are greeted by a private entrance that features a coat rack and coffee outlet.

The chambers will accommodate at least 50 spectators comfortably.

A table, complete with a public address system, is situated in front of the podium where the mayor and council sit.

Two cameras were used to record the meeting. These were manned by Sheldon Fuson and Dave Turner. The new camera equipment allowed for a split-screen view of happenings in the chambers.

New budget for school

It's budget time for the separate school board. Although no copies of the budget were circulated at last Thursday's meeting, it was clear from the board members' conversation they are looking at $1.6 in revenues. Over 80 per cent of that will go toward salaries.

Chairman Joan Anderson says it's always that much.

The board has also set aside $10,000 in the budget to improve their playground. The school will be working with the town on this project, as they will hopefully be contributing $10,000.

Career paths can take strange turns

Few people have the luxury of knowing where their careers will take them, in say, 1992. Many of us are still in university or college, plagued by nagging doubts about the potential of the profession we're pursuing.

Face it, it was easier in the old days. When he was a mere tot, Tut was confident he'd grow up to be king. No sleepless nights for that boy. And when our dads were lads, most of them weren't inclined to consider bold career moves. They joined the family hardware firm, or went to work for The Company for thirty or forty years.

Certainly there were exceptions. A blinding revelation, or a strange twist of fate can turn a career upside down.

Rock superstar Sting started his working days as a school teacher.

Arthur Conan Doyle decided he'd rather pen Sherlock Holmes novels than wield a surgeon's scalpel.

Aussie entertainer Paul Hogan (Croc to his friends) worked as a painter on the Sydney Harbour Bridge before crossing over into show biz.

Those fortunate souls who knew from age four what they'd be when they grew up didn't always have it so easy either. Not so long ago Alberta's Grammy winning k.d. lang was singing her heart out at pig roasts and pot-luck suppers.

Bette Midler paid her dues crooning in bath-houses, accompanied on the piano by Barry Manilow.

Scott Fitzgerald was sure he could become a novelist, but he had to put in a year or two as an advertising copywriter to pay the bills.

There is a bright side to working in the eighties. Your career path may be a heck of a lot more complicated than your grandfather's, but it's bound to be more interesting.

Tillage projects underway

Methods to reduce tillage in a summerfallow year are the aims of two southern Alberta projects now underway through funding assistance from the Canada/Alberta Agreement on Soil, Water and Cropping Research Technology Transfer (CARTT) program.

One of the projects is a cooperative venture between the County of Wheatland Agricultural Service Board and CARTT. The board supplied interested farmers with 10 litres of 2,4-D for fall application on land slated for summerfallow in 1989.

In this demonstration project, farmers are responsible for applying the herbicide and observing the length of time the first tillage operation can be delayed in the spring in comparison to land where the herbicide wasn't applied. Direct involvement by farmers makes the demonstration more effective, says Jim Laslo, agricultural fieldman for the county.

The second project is a conservation fallow project proposed by Ron Wright of Vauxhall. A legume plowdown, a chemical fallow and a reduced tillage fallow will be compared to a conventional fallow.

CARTT's objective is to develop and transfer appropriate conservation tillage and cropping technology which will minimize soil degradation and sustain economic crop production.

Asking for gym space — again

The separate school board is making a request for more gym space.

The board is hoping the department of education will listen this year after denying a similar request last year.

Last Thursday's board meeting heard that the present gym is used to capacity.

St. Anthony school principal Ron Williams told the board a new gym wouldn't be able to connect to the present gym. However, neither Williams or the board had any idea where on the school grounds, that a new gym would be built.

"According to the department we're allowed more gym space. We have to keep applying and will hopefully move up the ladder," Williams stated.

The board has requested a modernization review for the 25-year-old school.

Teachers will be paid

Four teachers will be paid for the two school days they miss as part of St. Anthony school's 13-day trip to Europe.

The decision to pay the teachers for Wednesday and Thursday of this week was ratified by the board last week.

Five adults and 33 students make up the European trip group.

Tim Kjerlien, a member of the board, expressed his thoughts over short notice of the trip. The board only sanctioned the trip last Thursday, although it has been in the planning stages since last spring.

Kjerlien was also concerned that two administrators were going on the trip. In the absence of principal Ron Williams, who will make the trip, Wayne Tournier, has been named acting designate principal.

Excitement mounts for kids

By Susan Mosciicki
Excitement is mounting for students of St. Anthony school as they prepare to leave for Europe March 21.

School principal Ron Williams said 33 grade 8, 9 and 10 students have been planning and working (fund-raising, etc.) towards the trip since last May. "Each student got credit for his or her own efforts." The trip will cost about $1,700 for each student.

Williams says students and adults will go to Heathrow in London, take a rail trip to Canterbury, bus to Dover and take a ferry to France. They will also visit Belgium, West Germany, Holland and Luxembourg.

Students will return to Canada April 2.

Chris Hawkins, a Grade 9 student, offered details of how he raised money for the trip. "I went on a summer job at my uncle's...and I've been selling chocolates and I work at Saan."

"I'm looking forward to the (first time) plane trip, seeing the Crown jewels, and the history of the place, I guess."

Youth Challenge '89 a success

By Delaine Robinson
FMHS work experience

Youth Challenge '89, recently held at Frank Maddock, was a refreshing change of pace for most.

The conference, sponsored by AADAC and student council, offered a variety of sessions, with topics ranging from chinese cooking to sexual assault.

Grade 12 student Kimara Nelson worked closely with Rita Daley, beauty culture instructor, school secretary Marjorie Fuhrer and AADAC representative Carol Robinson Baker organizing the challenge.

Several popular courses included chinese cooking with instructor Agnes Mah; Lady Beware, with instructor Const. Greg Feder, and tai chi, taught by Randy Baker.

Displays by AADAC, Respect for Life, and Birthright were a few of those found in the gymnasium. A fund-raising bake sale, put on by the fine arts committee to help finance their spring trip was also in the gym.

Student opinions and comments on the conference were generally positive.

"The course made me realize that I do a lot of things which aren't proper (etiquette)," said Grade 11 student Christina Gilbert, who attended the course on self-improvement.

"It was very informative; the instructor was very persistent and aggressive, which helped a lot," commented Michael Glasel, after attending teen sex education.

The Youth Challenge '89 conference was well attended and was deemed a success by students and teachers alike.

Agnes Mah taught students the fine art of chinese cooking last week during Youth Challenge '89 at Frank Maddock high school. Here Mah makes shrimp toast.

Victims usually know offenders

By Susan Mosecicki

'Sexual assaults are going to happen with a stranger' is a myth, students were told at a Youth Challenge '89 workshop at Frank Maddock high school last Tuesday.

Barbara Aylett, a worker from the Sexual Assault Centre in Edmonton, informed students that in actuality, only 25 per cent of sexual assaults happen with strangers. She said most offenders are either well known to, or casual acquaintances of, the victim. Another myth, according to Aylett, is that sexual assaults take place at night. "Approximately 58 per cent take place in the day time."

"Trust your feelings" and "say no" was Aylett's advice to minimize the chance of being assaulted.

Sexual assault is any kind of unwanted sexual contact. "It's an act of violation and the weapon is sex."

Offenders offend because they want power, or because they're angry at the world and they make some kind of threat to make you keep it a secret, said Aylett. When it's kept a secret, the offenders retain power.

"Five per cent are sadistic offenders," noted Aylett. "They actually represent only a very small portion of offenders." She indicated that it was unfortunate only the sadistic offenders receive publicity.

Tammy Cartwright and David Namchuk put the finishing touches on their St. Patrick's Day cakes.

Const. Greg Feder demonstrates how easy it is to get out of a hold in the event of assault. Holding Feder's arm is 16-year-old Lise Kuhn.

Program reduces risk of sexual assault

By Sue Kenyon

Installing a double core door in your home, having a cordless telephone and a room with no windows are cautionary measures suggested by Const. Greg Feder during a presentation of Lady Beware held at Frank Maddock and H.W. Pickup schools last week during Youth Challenge '89.

The Lady Beware program is designed as a presentation to reduce the potential for sexual assault while walking, driving and in the home.

Inside the home, Feder said there should be a room which has a double core door, no windows and a telephone; a secure room where one could run in the event of an intruder.

"Bathrooms are ideal for this and instead of installing a telephone in the bathroom, a cordless telephone is ideal," he said.

A double core door is simply a solid wooden door.

"Most interior doors are hollow," he said.

A group of approximately 20 students, all women, heard the presentation at Frank Maddock.

Feder told the audience one of the best ways to remove oneself from a potentially dangerous sexual assault situation is stalling for time.

"Basically what that means is talking to the rapist," he said. If there is even any excuse to remove oneself, that is even better.

"If you are outside a school dance and can say anything, like you have to go back to get your purse," that will usually work.

In a more violent situation, what Feder says doesn't work is the disease or pregnancy excuses.

"They (the perpetrators) usually don't care if you're pregnant and if you say you have herpes they will probably respond, 'Oh great, so do I,'" he said.

He also doesn't suggest the aggressive response. He told the girls that if the victim responds aggressively there is more chance they will be sexually assaulted and beaten.

If there are any weapons involved he warned not to even try any aggressive moves.

"It's a real nut who has a gun," he said.

Breton fire association elects new officers

The Breton and Rural Fire Protection Association held its election of officers recently.

Fire Chief Allan Smith was re-elected; deputy fire chief Dale Randall replaced Bill Marks and Ray Stevenson was re-elected as secretary-treasurer.

Smith says the fire association is looking at upgrading training courses for the firemen, and upgrading the communications equipment. They are also looking at some kind of pager system.

"We're in the process of building a new fire hall," says Smith. He added the association is ready to pour the concrete but will wait until the Warburg plant opens up in order to support local business. "We should be able to move in early spring."

Young 4-Hers eligible for awards

In the last four months, more than 260 Alberta 4-H club members have received special awards of excellence recognizing both their club and community achievements.

"The great thing about the program is that it's giving credit to accomplishments at various levels of 4-H achievement," says Ted Youck of Alberta Agriculture's 4-H branch. "Even younger members can be saluted for their efforts because the bronze award can be earned by members with only three years of 4-H involvement. It's encouraging for these young members, and another good reason to stay involved."

The medallion awards are presented for four levels of achievement based on members' accumulated "yearly diary" scores. Points are awarded for both 4-H and community activities.

On average, members will have enough points to receive a bronze award in their third year, a silver in their fourth and fifth year and a gold in their sixth or seventh year of 4-H. Platinum is the highest level of achievement. Usually a member must have eight or more years of involvement with 4-H to receive this award.

A member whose last year in 4-H was 1987-88 is eligible to receive an award. For more information about the award contact a district home economist or regional 4-H specialist.

Availability of nutrients determines crop yield

By Gerald Laarhuis
District Agriculturist

With the coming of spring farmers' thoughts change to crops and spring cropping decisions. One of the required decisions relates to fertilizer use.

Crops harness the energy of the sun, using it to convert soil nutrients and water into plant material. The availability of nutrients determines the yield of the crop. The following table indicates the nutrient requirements of oats and barley.

Nutrients used by crops (lbs/acre)

N	24.2	8
Barley (50 bu/acre)	99.23	25.13
Oats (54 bu/acre)	99.23	27.18

* N nitrogen; Ph phosphorus; P potash; S sulphur

These nutrients must either come from decaying organic matter or supplemented chemical fertilizer. A one per cent drop in soil organic matter releases 1200 lbs/acre of nitrogen. That equals 40 pounds of nitrogen per acre per year for 30 years.

The black soils — say in Calmar, once had organic matter contents as high as 30 per cent. After a century of cropping, these levels are down to five or six per cent. This declining organic matter base is the reason these soils have been so productive and are now requiring increasing amounts of fertilizers to maintain yields.

Unfortunately, the grey-wooded soils of the Drayton Valley district only have one- to two-per-cent organic matter content. This relatively low organic matter content will not release enough nutrients to sustain ongoing high yields of either forage or grain.

Grey wooded soils require special management to sustain yields. The continuous removal of all growth depletes the soil of organic matter and nutrient reserves. These nutrients must be replaced with either chemical fertilizer or manure. It will require about 50 tons of manure per acre to increase organic matter by one per cent.

Other recommended practices to improve soil quality include incorporation of crop residues, the use of legume forage crops, and plow-down of crops.

Regardless of how soil is managed, it is generally a sound investment to have soil analysed for available nutrients, and making management decisions based on these tests.

Our Town in Review

March 19, 1989

Bob Mayhew was re-elected to his second term as president of the Rotary Club. Junior high teams from Drayton Valley defeated Warburg in basketball action.

Outstanding player awards were presented to Cheryl Davidhuk and Allan Hicks. Members of the Galvary Baptist Church were planning a ground-breaking ceremony at the site of the new church, located at the corner of 80 Ave. and 45 Street.

March 21, 1979

What many Drayton Valley constituency residents expected would be a close race wasn't, as Terry Shirley Cripps, a Winfield farm wife and former teacher, swept the polls with 56 per cent of the popular vote in the provincial election.

None of the three other candidates came within attaining 50 per cent of her votes to retain their $100 deposit.

No one was injured and damages were slight in a Thursday morning fire at the Drayton Valley Hotel.

Seasonal Employment

The Agricultural Service Board for Improvement District #14 requires weed inspectors and a pesticide applicator for a 4 month term commencing May 1, 1989. Positions in Edson and Evansburg, agricultural background and able to work with the public required.

A company which sold defective child car seats has gone into receivership and can no longer provide the parts necessary to repair the defect, warns the Alberta Motor Association.

additional 1200 seats manufactured in June 1986 have been added to the recall.

The AMA warns that owners of seats not included in the original recall now must check again that their unit is safe. A statement of compliance label is found on the back of all approved child restraint systems to identify both the manufacturer and the date of manufacture.

All Bo-Peep Hi-Rider XL seats manufactured in the first six months of 1986 must now be destroyed.

Continued use of a defective car seat could result in serious or fatal injuries if a child was involved in a collision.

Further information about the child safety seat recall is available from the AMA's consumer information department, 1-800-222-6578.

Home test for lead

Lead is a useful but deadly metal. Lead-based glazes provide a hard, smooth coating on ceramic pottery, for example.

However, if lead leaches from the glaze and into foods, it can accumulate in the body. This can produce toxic effects that can be mistaken for symptoms of a host of other diseases.

One way to avoid lead poisoning is to be careful about your choice of dishes. Avoid storing food in ceramic dishes, especially very acidic foods such as fruit juices or wines. Be wary of dishes made by amateur potters or purchased in other countries — including Italy, Mexico and China. Older dishes are also suspect since federal government standards for lead release were not imposed until 1971.

Even dishes that were originally safe can become

Consumer's Corner

By Samia Valleand

hazardous if the glaze starts to break down after years of use or too many trips through the dishwasher. There is a way to check any dishes you may be leary of.

The Consumers' Association of Canada is aware of two companies that market a home test kit for lead. The kits provide a rough idea of how much lead is being released from a dish. They are a good tool for identifying those dishes that release very large amounts of the toxic chemicals.

New league members welcome

By Linda McGinn
Whitby Community League has met twice since January to study hall plans.

It was decided a 40-foot by 80-foot building to add to our existing dance floor would meet the community's needs.

Ave Peck has been busy looking into the grants available.

The menu was chosen for our St. Patrick's Day dance and hopefully, we'll have a sellout crowd for the 1st dance in the old hall.

Whitby

Anyone wishing to join our league is invited to attend our next meeting or call Laurie at 542-6208.

Anyone in the Whitby area who feels they have a newsworthy item or information they would like to share with the community, please call the correspondent, Linda McGinn, at 542-6718.

SAVE 5% ON YOUR PROPERTY TAXES

The Town of Drayton Valley is once again offering a 5% discount on prepayments for 1989 Property Taxes (excluding local improvements), to a maximum of your current tax levy. Payment must be received on or before Friday March 31, 1989.

As 1989 Property Taxes have not yet been calculated, please base your payment on 1988 Tax amounts.

We cannot stop the clock

By Rev. Robert Cochran
Calvary Baptist Church

Jesus took Peter, James and John with Him into the hills to pray. And as He was praying, His face began to shine and His clothes became dazzling white and blazed with light.

Peter and the others had been very drowsy and had fallen asleep. Now they woke up and saw Jesus covered with brightness and glory. Peter blurted out, "Master, this is wonderful! We'll put up shelters." — for the wanted to stay there.

But Jesus said as it were, "No, Peter, we can't stay here, we are needed down in the valley," and the next day, as they descended from the hill and a sight met their eyes. A large crowd was milling around a young boy, desperately ill, that no one seemed to be able to help. His father brought him to Jesus and He healed the boy and handed him over to his father.

Dr. William Barclay tells of an occasion when they had just come out of chapel from morning prayers.

It was a beautiful July morning, with a sky of cloudless blue and a sun of summer heat shining on the green of the lawns and the colors of the flower beds. A lady turned to him and said, "If we could only stop the clock now!"

It was a golden summer morning and she would have liked time to stop just there. And I suppose all of us have had times and moments when we would have liked time to stand still and things to remain forever just as they were.

But even the golden

moment would lose its charm if it was indefinitely extended, because the interest of life lies not in sameness but in contrast.

It is hunger which gives food its taste. It is thirst which makes cool clear water so refreshing. It is tiredness which makes sleep so welcome. It is toil which makes rest the thing which the body and mind long for.

It is loneliness which gives friendship its value. It is the rain which gives the sunshine its joy. It is the rain which gives the sunshine its joy. It is the dark of the night which gives the dawn its glory.

It is parting which makes reuniting a happy thing. It is the contrast between the dark and the light which gives both its pathos and its glory.

If life consisted of only one kind of experience, it would lose the very quality which makes it life. It is just because life is interwoven of sorrow and of joy, of gladness and of grief, of laughter and of tears, of silence and of song, that it is as it is. It is the many-colored texture of life which creates the fullness of life.

A life which had no experience of tears would lose something of infinite value, for, as the proverb says: "All sunshine makes a desert." A life which never had a problem, a faith which never had a doubt, an existence which never knew anything but luxury and comfort, would all be sadly lacking in something of great value.

However much we want to, we cannot stop the clock at any one moment. Life has to go on, and the moment has to pass. But the moment does not entirely pass; it becomes part of the store of memory.

The golden moment can be stored in the memory, and when life is bleakly grim, we can go back to it and find sunshine and strength for the dark days. Life can neither stand still nor go back; the golden moment cannot be caught and held and transfixed, and it would not be good for us if it could.

But it can be stored in the memory and forever possessed.
